ST PAUL'S EPISTLES TO THE THESSALONIANS:

WITH A CRITICAL AND GRAMMATICAL COMMENTARY, AND A REVISED TRANSLATION,

BY

CHARLES J. ELLICOTT D.D.

BISHOP OF GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL.

THE THIRD EDITION, CORRECTED.

LONDON:

LONGMAN, GREEN, LONGMAN, ROBERTS & GREEN.

PREFACE TO THE THIRD EDITION.

A VERY slight amount of change has been found necessary during the revision of this volume for the new edition. It is however brought fully up to the standard adopted in the Third Edition of the Pastoral Epistles, especially as regards the Translation.

It is as well to call the reader's attention once for all to the fact that in these two Epistles the Codex Ephraemi only contains ch. i. 2—ii. 8 of the First Epistle. This has been often noticed in the critical notes, but not invariably.

GLOUCESTER, April, 1866.

PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION.

THE present edition differs but little from the first. There will be found however traces of a regular and deliberate revision on every page. Scriptural references have been again verified; readings and interpretations have been carefully reconsidered, and the grammatical principles on which the interpretations appear to rest tested by fresh investigation. Though the result is a very small amount of change, yet the amount of time thus spent in reconsideration has not been wholly thrown away; as the Commentary is now presented anew to the reader with a humble yet increased confidence in the general soundness of the principles on which it is based.

EXETER, December, 1861.

PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION.

THE present volume forms the fifth part of my Commentary on St Paul's Epistles, and is constructed as nearly as possible on the same plan as the portion which appeared last year, viz. that containing the Epistles to the Philippians, the Colossians, and Philemon. I particularly specify this, as I have been informed by friends on whose judgment I can rely that the last portion of my labours is an improvement on those which preceded it.

If I may venture to assume that this is really the case, I cannot help feeling that it is to be attributed not only to increased experience, but also to the cautious but somewhat freer admixture of exegesis which two of the three Epistles contained in the volume seemed more especially to require. This slight modification, and so to say dilution, of the critical and grammatical severity which distinguished the earlier parts of the work has been continued in the present volume, but it has been done both watchfully and cautiously, and will be really seen more in the way of slight addition than in actual change. Time and experience both seem to show that the system of interpretation that I have been enabled to pursue is substantially sound, that plain and patient accuracy in detail does in most cases lead to hopeful results, and serves not unfrequently to guide us to far loftier and more ennobling views of the Word of Life than such an unpretending method might at first prepare us to expect.

The modifications then, or rather additions and expansions, are really slight, and may be briefly summed up under two heads; on the one hand, an attempt to elucidate more clearly the connexion of clauses and the general sequence of thought; and on the other hand, an attempt to develop more completely the dogmatical significance of passages of a more profound and more purely theological import. Neither of these portions of sacred interpretation was neglected in the early parts of this Commentary, but in the present a deepening sense of their extreme importance has suggested this further expansion and development.

A few slight additions to other departments of the Commentary may be briefly noticed.

To the ancient Versions which I have been in the habit of consulting, viz. the Old Latin, the Peshito, the Gothic, the Coptic, the Philoxenian Syriac, and the two Ethiopic Versions, I did not think it would be necessary for me ever to make any addition. I have been convinced however by the able notice of the Armenian Version in Horne's Introduction by my learned acquaintance Dr Tregelles that this venerable Version has greater claims on our attention than I had before believed. In spite of the excellent edition of Zohrab, I had shared the opinion entertained by the majority of critics that the once-called 'Queen of the Versions' had but slender claims to that supremacy, and had suffered so much from Latinizing recensions as to be but of doubtful authority. The charges which have been brought against the labours of King Haithom in the thirteenth century, and the readings adopted by the collator Uscan in the seventeenth, tended of late years to awaken the suspicions of critical scholars. It is fair however to say that the charges of Latinism do not appear to be well founded, and that this ancient Version deserves the attention of the critic and commentator; still, if I am not presumptuous in hazarding an opinion, I do seem to myself to perceive a generally Occidental tinge in its interpretations, and I have more than once verified the observation of Loebe and De Gabelentz that there are coincidences and accordances with the Gothic Version that seem to be not wholly accidental. My knowledge however is at present too limited to enable me to speak with confidence.

I have then deemed it my duty to make use of this Version, and to acquire such a knowledge of the language as should enable me to state faithfully its opinion in contested passages. To the student who may feel attracted towards this interesting, highly inflected, yet not very difficult language, I will venture to recommend the Grammar and Dictionary of Aucher<sup>1</sup>. The former is now selling at a low price, and can easily be procured. Its great defect is in the <sup>1</sup> Since the above was written a much more useful and better arranged Grammar has come under my notice, viz. Brevis Linguæ Armeniacæ Grammatica, by J. H. Petermann (Berol, 1841). It has a simple Chrestomathy and good Glossary, but no Syntax. The standard Grammar of a larger size appears to be that of Cirbied. [1861]. syntax, which I cannot think very clearly or scientifically arranged; and in the Chrestomathy, which is not at first sufficiently easy and progressive. The extracts, though curious, are not well suited for a beginner, and are not introduced by any elementary lessons in parsing and grammatical application. A strong sense of the value of such aids reminds me that I may not unsuitably take this opportunity of recommending the Coptic Grammar of Uhlemann. It is extremely well arranged, is brief and perspicuous, and besides a good progressive Chrestomathy is furnished with a small but very useful Vocabulary.

I again venture to commend these ancient Versions to the attention of all students who have leisure, and an aptitude for the acquisition of languages. It is startling to find how little we really know of these ancient witnesses, how erroneous are the current statements of their mere readings, how neglected their authority in interpretation. And yet we see on all sides critical editions of the sacred volume multiplying, and, in at least one instance (I regret to say that I allude to the otherwise useful editions of Dr Tischendorf), can abundantly verify the fact that Latin translations, not always trustworthy or exact, have been the main authorities from which the readings have been derived. Is it too much to demand of a critical editor, of one who is by the very nature of his work free from the many distractions of thought that are the lot of the commentator,---is it too much to demand that he should consider it a part of his duties to acquire himself such a knowledge of these languages as to be able to tell us plainly and unmistakeably what are and what are not the true readings of these early and invaluable witnesses? Nay more, it is, and it will ever be, of paramount importance that the loval critic should use no eves but his own. He may endeavour to procure collations from others, he may try to proceed on the principle of division of labour, but he will I firmly believe ultimately be forced to admit that this is one of those cases in which labour cannot be well divided. and in which the mechanically-made comparisons of the associated collator can never be put in the same rank with the results of the intelligent search of the professed critic. The very interest that the latter feels in what he is looking for protects him to a great degree from those inaccuracies which the mere collator can never hope entirely to escape; added to which, his exact knowledge of the variations of the reading at issue will save him as nothing else can from confounding merely a greater inclusiveness of meaning with evidences of distinct textual change. To cite a single and familiar instance,—how often must the critical scholar have observed that Oriental Versions are adduced on one side or other in such cases of prepositional variation as  $\dot{\epsilon}\nu$  and  $\delta\iota\dot{a}$ , when the plain fact is that the greater inclusiveness of the Beth or Bet of the Version leaves the actual reading which the translator had before him a matter of complete uncertainty. Are then our scholars, and more especially our critics, to shrink from such a useful and even necessary duty as the study of the ancient Versions? Are a certain number of weary hours, more or less, to be set in comparison with the ability and the privilege of making clearly known to others the critical characteristics of Versions of the Book of Life that have been the blessed media of salvation to early churches and to ancient nations?

One word, and one word only, as to my own humble, most humble efforts in this particular province. Time, toil, and patience, have done something; and though, alas, my knowledge is still limited, yet I may at length venture to hope that in most of these Versions the student may fully rely on my statements, and that the number of those statements that may hereafter be reversed by wiser and better scholars than myself will not be very large. I am forced to say this, as I have observed in one or two reviews with which I have been favoured, that avowals of inexperience, which seemed the more suitable and becoming in proportion as the means of detecting it were in fewer hands, have been understood to imply that my citations from these ancient authorities confessedly could not be relied on. This however has not been and is not the case. While I sensitively shrink from dragging into notice the amount of my own labours, I still perceive that I must beware of leading the reader to pass over what may be of real use to him, and of feeling distrust where actually there may be no just ground for it. The intelligent scholar will see at a glance that to state fairly and correctly the translation of words of which the subject is familiarly known is a task which certainly does not lie beyond the reach of ordinary patience and industry.

Among other additions the reader will I trust be benefited by the still increasing attention paid to our best English divinity. I have made it my study to refer especially to sermons on all the more interesting and difficult verses, and it is unusually cheering to find that no portion of my labours has been more kindly appreciated, or has apparently been of more real service to theological students. Without drawing any unfair comparison between English and German divinity, it does not seem one whit too much to say that if we are often indebted to the latter for patient and laborious exegesis, it is to the former alone that we must go if we would fain add to our mere contextual knowledge some true perceptions of the analogy of Scripture, and are really and sincerely interested in striving to comprehend all the profound and mysterious harmonies of Catholic Truth.

With regard to matters of textual criticism, the student will observe in this volume the same persistent attention to the principal differences of reading, even in the grammatical notes. My constant effort is to popularize this sort of knowledge, to make exegesis lend it a helping hand, and insensibly to decoy the student into examining and considering for himself what human words seem to have the best claims to be regarded as the earthly instruments by which the adorable mercies of God have been made known to the children of men. These notices, it must be remembered, are merely selected, and neither are nor are intended to be enumerations of all the differences of reading; still I have good hope that no reading that deserves attention has been overlooked.

I have now only to conclude with a few notices of those works to which I am especially indebted. The list is gradually becoming shorter. I have been enabled to use so many more first-class authorities than when I commenced this series, that it does not seem disrespectful to omit silently such as can be fairly considered second-class from pages where text and notes only too often stand in an undesirable though unavoidable disproportion.

In these Epistles, as in the Pastoral Epistles, I have lost the sagacious guidance of Dr Meyer; I have not however so much to lament the change of editor as in the Epistles above alluded to. Though distinctly inferior to Meyer, especially in the critical and grammatical portion of his work, Dr Lünemann is still a commentator of a very high order. His exegesis is usually sound and convincing, and no one, I am sure, can beneficially study these two beautiful Epistles without having at hand the Commentary of this able editor.

The larger and more comprehensive Commentaries will be found specified in former portions of this work, but I must pause to express my hearty sense of the continued excellence of my friend Dean Alford's Commentary. As our readers will see, we occasionally break a friendly lance, more especially in matters of detail. These gentle encounters however are not only unavoidable but even desirable. It is by all such amicable conflicts of opinion that the truth, often lying midway between those engaged in her defence, is most surely seen and recognised. Of the separate editions of these Epistles I desire to specify the very able Commentaries of Pelt and Schott. The former of these two writers has the great merit of being one of the first of later times who distinctly felt the importance of using the exegetical works of the Greek Fathers, and the latter supplies a good specimen of that patient mode of grammatical interpretation which has now obtained such general currency. Though both these works have been many years before the world, and though in many cases their opinions have been reversed by more modern expositors, they can neither of them be justly considered as superseded or antiquated.

Last of all I come to the edition of Professor Jowett. And here I would rather that our differences of opinion appeared in their respective places than were specifically alluded to. I feel it however a duty to speak, and it is with pain that I must record my fixed opinion that the system of interpretation pursued by Professor Jowett is as dangerous as I believe it to be inaccurate and untenable. After making every possible allowance for the obvious fact that our systems of interpretation are completely and persistently antagonistic. after willingly making in my own case every correction for bias, I still feel morally convinced that the objections to Professor Jowett's system of interpretation are such as cannot be evaded or explained away. After having thus performed a very painful duty, I trust I may be permitted to express my full recognition of the genius that pervades his writings, the ease, finish, and, alas, persuasiveness of the style, the kindly though self-conscious spirit that animates his teaching, and the love of truth that, however sadly and deeply wounded by paradoxes and polemics, still seems to be ever both felt and cultivated. May these good gifts be dedicated anew to the service of Divine Truth and be overruled to more happy and more chastened issues.

It now only remains for me with all humility and lowliness of heart to lay this work before the Great Father of Lights, imploring His blessing on what I may have said aright, and His mercy where my eyes have been holden, and where I have not been permitted to see clearly all the blessed lineaments of Divine Truth.

INTRODUCTION.

THIS calm, practical, and profoundly consolatory Epistle was written by the Apostle to his converts in the wealthy and populous city of Thessalonica not long after his first visit to Macedonia (Acts xvi. 9), when in conjunction with Silas and Timothy he laid the foundations of the Thessalonian Church (Acts xvii. 1 sq.). See notes on ch. i. 1.

The exact time of writing the Epistle appears to have been the early months of the Apostle's year and a half stay at Corinth (Acts xviii. 11), soon after Timothy had joined him (1 Thess. iii. 6) and reported the spiritual state of their converts, into which he had been sent to enquire (ch. iii. 2), probably from Athens; see notes on ch. iii. 1. We may thus consider the close of A.D. 52, or the beginning of A.D. 53, as the probable date, and, if this be correct, must place the Epistle first on the chronological list of the Apostle's writings.

The arguments in favour of a later date are based either on passages which have been thought to imply that the Apostle had preached the Gospel for some time elsewhere (ch. i. 8), or on statements in the Epistle (ch. iv. 13, v. 12; see 2 Thess. iii. 17) which have been judged to be in accordance with a greater interval between the time of the first preaching at Thessalonica and the date of the Epistle than is usually assigned. These have all been satisfactorily answered by Davidson (Introd. Vol. 11. p. 435), and have met with no acceptance at the hands of recent expositors or chronologers; comp. Lünemann, Einleitung, p. 6, Wieseler, Chronol. p. 40 sq.

The main object of the Apostle in writing this Epistle can easily be gathered from some of the leading expressions. It was designed alike to console and to admonish;—to console, with reference both to recent external trials and afflictions (ch. ii. 14 sq.), and still more to internal trials arising from anxieties as to the state of their departed friends (ch. iv. 13 sq.);—to admonish, with reference to grave moral principles (ch. iv. 1 sq.), Christian watchfulness (ch. v. 1 sq.), and various practical duties (ch. v. 14) which had been neglected owing to the feverish expectations and anxieties which appear to have prevailed at Thessalonica even from the first: comp. ch. iv. 11, and see notes in loc. St Paul had heard of all these things from Timothy; and this information, combined with the Apostle's full consciousness that there were many points both in knowledge and practice in which they were deficient (ch. iii. 10) and on which he would fain have further taught them personally (comp. ch. ii. 17 sq.), appears to have called forth this instructive and strengthening Epistle.

The authenticity and genuineness of the Epistle are placed beyond all reasonable doubt both by clear external testimonies (Irenæus, Hær. v. 6. 1, Clem.-Alex. Pædag. 1. p. 109, ed. Potter, Tertullian, de Resurr. Carn. cap. 24) and by still stronger internal arguments derived from the style and tone of thought. The objections that have been urged against it, like those advanced against the Second Epistle (see Introd.), may justly be pronounced rash, arbitrary, and unworthy of serious consideration. They will be found fully answered in Davidson, Introd. Vol. 11. p. 454 sq.

The absence of the I. Παύλος] official designation  $d\pi \delta \sigma \tau o \lambda o s$  in the salutations of these Epp. is not due to their early date, nor to the fact that the title had not vet been assumed by St Paul (comp. Jowett), but simply to the terms of affection that subsisted between St Paul and his converts at Thessalonica, and their loving recognition of his office and authority ; comp. Beng. in loc., and see notes on Phil. i. I. The reason of Chrys., followed by Theoph. and Œcum., διὰ τὸ νεοκατηχήτους είναι τούς άνδρας και μηδέπω αὐτοῦ πείραν είληφέναι, does not seem sufficient. That it was 'propter reverentiam Silvani' (Cajet., Est.) is far from probable, for comp. 1 and 2 Cor. i. r, Col. i. r. Σιλουανόs] Identical with Silas mentioned in the Acts (comp. Acts xvi. 10 sq. with I Thess. ii. 1, 2, and Acts xviii. 5 with 2 Cor. i. 19), a  $\pi \rho o \phi \eta \tau \eta s$  (Acts xv. 32), one ήγούμενος έν τοῖς ἀδελφοῖς in the Church of Jerusalem (ver. 22), and also probably a Roman citizen (Acts xvi. 37): he was sent by the Apostles and elders of that Church with St Paul and St Barnabas to Antioch, and, after first returning to Jerusalem (ver. 33), accompanied the former on his second missionary journey (Acts xv. 40) through Asia Minor to Macedonia. There he co-operates with the Apostle (Acts xvii. 4) and Timothy (comp. Acts xvi. 3, xvii. 14, I Thess. iii. 6) in founding the Church of Thessalonica, and after staying behind at Berœa (Acts xvii. 14) rejoins St Paul either at Athens or Corinth, and actively preaches the Gospel in the last named city (2 Cor. i. 19). It does not seem improbable that he afterwards joined St Peter, and is identical with the Silvanus mentioned in I Pet. v. 12; compare Bleek on Hebr. Vol. I. p. 408. He is here placed before Timothy (so also Acts xvii. 14, 15, xviii. 5, 2 Cor. i. 19, 2 Thess i. 1), as being probably the older man, and certainly the older associate of St Paul. According to tradition, Silas was afterwards Bishop of Corinth, and Silvanus of Thessalonica (compare the list in Fabric. Lux Evang. p. 117); the former name however, though paroxytone, is in all probability only a contracted form of the latter; see Winer, Gr. § 16. note I, p. 93. For further and legendary notices of Silas, see Acta Sanct. July 13, Vol. III. p. 476, and for an attempt to identify Silas with St Luke. see Journal of Sacr. Lit. Oct. 1850, p. 328 sq. Tunóleos] The name of this convert is too well known to need more than a brief notice. He was the son of a Greek father and a Jewish mother (Acts xvi. 1, 2 Tim. i. 5), most probably from Lystra, and perhaps converted by St Paul on his first visit to that city (Acts xiv. 8 sq.). He accompanied the Apostle on his second missionary journey to Macedonia, remains behind at Berœa (Acts xvii. 14), is summoned by St Paul when at Athens: probably rejoins him there (comp. 1 Thess. iii. 1, 2, and see Neander, Planting, Vol. I. p. 195), is despatched to Thessalonica, and returns to the Apostle at Corinth (Acts xviii. 5). After an interval, he reappears in St Paul's third missionary journey, and is sent from Ephesus to Macedonia (Acts xix. 22) and Corinth (1 Cor. iv. 17). He was with St Paul when he wrote 2 Cor. (i. 1) and Rom. (xvi. 21), accompanied him from Corinth to Asia (Acts xx. 4), and subsequently was with him when he wrote Phil. (i. I), Col. (i. 1), and Philem. (ver. 1). He appears afterwards to have been left in charge of the Church at Ephesus (I Tim. i. 3), and finally is summoned by St Paul to Rome, at the close of the Apostle's second imprisonment. He is named by Eusebius (Hist. Eccl. III. 4, comp. Const. Apost. VII. 46) as first bishop of Ephesus, and is said to have suffered martyrdom under Dom tian; see Phot. Biblioth. CCLIV. p. 1402 (ed. Hoesch.), Acta Sanct., Jan. 24, Vol. II. p. 562, and Menolog. Græc. Vol. п. р. 128. It may be remarked that Silvanus and Timothy are here named with St Paul, not merely as being then with him (comp. Gal. i. 2), or as the 'socii salutationis' (see notes on Phil. i. 1), but also as having co-operated with him in founding the Church of Thessalonica.

τη έκκλ. Θεσσαλ. κ.τ.λ.] 'to the Thessalonica was a large (Lucian, Asin. § 46), wealthy, and populous city (Strabo, Geogr. VII. 7. 4, Vol. II. p. 60, ed. Kramer), at the north-east corner of the Sinus Thermaicus. Tt was built on the site of or near to (Pliny, Hist. Nat. IV. 10 [17], ed. Sillig) the ancient Therme (Herod. VII. 121, Thucyd. I. 61) by Cassander. in honour of his wife  $\Theta \epsilon \sigma \sigma a \lambda o \nu i \kappa \eta$ (Strabo, Geogr. VII. Fragm. 21, Vol. II. p. 79, ed. Kram.), and under the Romans was of sufficient importance to be chosen first as the capital of the second district of Macedonia, and afterwards, when the four districts were united, of the whole province: see notes on ver. 7, and Livy, XLV. 29. It afterwards became a libera civitas (Pliny, l. c.). It retained its importance through the middle ages (see Conyb. and Howson, St Paul, Vol. I. p. 345 sq., ed. I), and even at the present day, under the name of Saloniki, is one of the chief cities of European Turkey: see Leake, N. Greece, Vol. III. p. 238 sq. For further notices, see the good account of Conyb. and Hows. l. c., Winer, RWB. Vol. II. p. 608, Pauly, Real Encycl. Vol. VI. p. 1880, and especially the learned and comprehensive treatise of Tafel, de Thessal. ejusque agro, Berol. έν Θεώ πατρί κ.τ.λ. 1830. must be closely joined with  $\tau \hat{\eta} \, \epsilon \kappa \kappa \lambda$ .  $\Theta \epsilon \sigma \sigma$ ., to which it stands in the relaWe thank God for your spiritual progress. To connect these words with what follows (Koppe), or to understand xalpew heyovow (Schott,-not Winer [Alf.], who expressly adopts the right view) is arbitrary and untenable, and to supply  $\tau \hat{\eta}$ or  $\tau \hat{\eta} \circ \tilde{\upsilon} \sigma \eta$  (De W., Alf., comp. Chrys., Syr.) unnecessary and even inexact, such unions without an art, being by no means uncommon in the N.T.; see exx. in Winer, Gr. § 20. 2, p. 123, and for the principle of such combinations, notes on Eph. i. 15. Commentators call attention to the fact that the term  $\epsilon \kappa \kappa \lambda$ . occurs only in the addresses to I and 2 Thess., I and 2 Cor., and Gal., while in the supposed later Epp. Rom., Eph., Phil., Col., the more individualizing  $\tau o \hat{i} s \dot{a} \gamma los$  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . is adopted. The variation is slightly noticeable; it does not however seem to point to gradually altered views with regard to the attributes of the Church (Jowett), but merely to the present comparative paucity of numbers (compare Chrys.), and their aggregation in a single assembly; comp. Koch, p. 56, note. On the meaning and application of the term, see Pearson, Creed, Art. IX. Vol. I. p. 397 (ed. Burt.), Jackson, Creed, XII. 2. I sq. χάρις ύμιν κ.τ.λ.] Scil.  $\epsilon$ ίη, not  $\epsilon$ στω (Schott); see notes on Eph. i. 2. On the blended form of Greek and Hebrew greeting, see notes on Gal. i. 3, Eph. i. 2. KLN and DE omitting  $\dot{\eta}\mu\hat{\omega}\nu$ ; most mss.; Fuld., Tol., Copt., Syr.-Phil. with asterisk), Æth. (Platt); Chrys. al. (Lachm. in brackets)]; the omission however is fairly supported [BFG: some mss.; Vulg., Syr., Æth., Arm.; Chrys. (comm.), Theoph., al. (Tisch.)], and on critical grounds is decidedly preferable, as the uniqueness of the form in St Paul's Epp. would be likely to suggest interpolation; comp. Col. i. 2.

2. Euxapiorouper] ' We give thanks ;' see note on Phil. i. 3, and add 2 Thess. i. 3, ii. 13. It has been doubted whether the plural is to be understood of the Apostle alone (Koch, Conyb.), as in ch. ii. 18, iii. 1 sq., or to be referred also to Silvanus and Timothy; contrast Phil. i. 1, 3. As the plural is elsewhere used in reference to the Apostle and his ouveryol (comp. 2 Cor. i. 19, and notes on Col. i. 3), and as Silvanus and Timothy stood in a very close relation to the Church of Thessalonica, it seems most natural here to adopt the latter view; so Lünem., and Alford, who however appears inexact in claiming all the ancient commentt., as Chrys. and the Greek expositors seem clearly, though indirectly, to adopt the former view. On the late use of the verb ev xapi- $\sigma \tau \epsilon \hat{\iota} \nu$  in the sense of 'gratias agere,' see notes on Phil. i. 3, and esp. on Col. i. 12; the more correct  $\chi d\rho \psi \xi \chi \omega$ occurs in I Tim. i. 12, 2 Tim. i. 3, and as an alternative reading in Philem. 7 (Tisch.). These thanks are returned to God (the Father, comp. Col. i. 3), ώς αυτός έργασάμενος τό  $\pi \hat{a}\nu$ , Chrys.: so 2 Thess. i. 3, 2 Tim.

Eph. i. 16), not to the participle (Phil. i. 4, Col. i. 3, Philem. 4), Even if the second  $i\mu\hat{\omega}\nu$  be omitted (see below), the connexion with the participle will be almost equally untenable, as the expression  $\mu\nu\epsilon la\nu$   $\pi o i \epsilon i \sigma \theta a i$  $\pi \epsilon \rho l \tau i \nu o s$ , though not unclassical (Plato, Protag. p. 317 E), is not elsewhere found in St Paul's Epp.; so Syr., Æth., the Greek expositors (silet Theod.), and nearly all modern editors. The verv  $\epsilon \dot{v} \chi a \rho \iota \sigma \tau l a$  was tacitly commendatory (τδ εύχαριστείν κ.τ.λ. μαρτυρούντός έστιν αυτοίς πολλήν προκοπήν, Chrys.), the inclusive nature of it still more expressly so. The difference between the use of  $\pi \epsilon \rho l$  (I Cor. i. 4, dcc.) and  $\dot{\upsilon}\pi\dot{\epsilon}\rho$  (Rom. i. 8, &c.) in this and similar formulæ in the N.T. is scarcely appreciable; see notes on Eph. vi. 10. Perhaps, as a general rule, we may say that in the former the attention is more directed to the object or circumstances to which the action of the verb extends, in the latter more to that action itself; see notes on Gal. i. 4, and Phil. i. 7.

μνείαν ὑμῶν ποιούμ.] 'making mention of you;' not a limitation of the preceding εὐχαρ. πάντοτε, but a definition of the circumstances under which it took place; see Rom. i. 9, Eph. i. 16, Philem. 4, and comp. Phil.

i. 3, 4, 2 Tim. i. 3. For further remarks on the formula (not 'making mention of or remembering,' Jowett, but simply the former,-as often in Aristotle, al.), see notes on Philem. 4. and for a distinction between uvnun (γενική τύπωσις ψυχής) and μνεία (λόγος κατ' ανανέωσιν λεγόμενος), Ammonius, Voc. Diff. p. 05 (ed. Valck.). Myela has the meaning 'commemoratio' only when it is joined with ποιείσθαι, see notes on Phil. i. 3. The reading is doubtful; Lachm. omits υμών after μνείαν with ABN1; Vulg. (Amiat.), C omits ὑμῶν (I); see crit. note on Eph. i. 16. It does not however seem improbable that the presence of the former  $\dot{\upsilon}\mu\hat{\omega}\nu$  suggested a supposed emendatory omission.

The adverb is referred by Vulg., Syr., Æth., Arm., and some modern expositors, to the preceding participle, but far more naturally by Chrys. and the Greek commentators to μνημονεύοντες, each new clause serving to enhance and expand what had preceded; so Lachm., Tisch., Buttm., and perhaps Copt., Vulg. (Amiat.). Alford connects it with  $\pi \sigma \iota \sigma \iota \sigma \mu$ . urging Rom. i. 9, but there the order is different.

μνημονεύοντες] 'remembering,' Auth., 'memores,' Vulg., Clarom.; participial clause parallel to the preceding μνείαν ποιούμενοι, and defining not the cause (Schott) but the circumstances and temporal concomitants of the action : the  $\epsilon \dot{v} \chi a \rho \iota \sigma \tau \iota a$  found its utterance in the prayers, and owed its persistence  $(\pi \dot{\alpha} \nu \tau \sigma \tau \epsilon)$  to the unceasing continuance of the µvήµη. The first participle has thus more of a modal, the second of a temporal tinge; ov μόνον φησίν έπι των προσευχών μου μέμνημαι ύμων άλλα και άλλοτε πάντοτε, Theoph. It has been doubted whether unnuov. is here 'commemorare' (Beza), or 'memor [esse'] (Vulg., Syr., Æth., Arm., and appy. Copt.) as in Heb. xi. 22 (but with  $\pi \epsilon \rho$ ) and a gen.). The context  $(\xi \mu \pi \rho o \sigma \theta \epsilon \nu \Theta \epsilon o \vartheta$  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda.$ ) seems to be slightly in favour of the former (De Wette), but St Paul's use of the verb, and the case which follows it (gen. not accus.), are somewhat decidedly in favour of the latter; see ch. ii. 9, Winer, Gr. § 30. 10, p. 184, Jelf, Gr. § 515, obs., and notes on 2 Tim. ii. 8. The three objects of the Apostle's remembrance then follow in their natural order (so ch. v. 8, Col. i. 4, comp. Tit. ii. 2; aliter 1 Cor. xiii. 13), dyány being the result and exemplification of  $\pi l \sigma \tau \iota s$ , and  $\delta \pi is$  the link between the present and the future; comp. also I Pet. i. 21, 22, and see Reuss, Théol. Chrét. IV. 20, Vol. II. p. 219, and esp. Usteri, Lehrb. II. I. 4, p. 238.

μένη. The precise meaning and connexion of these words has been much contested. The simplest view seems to be as follows: (1) ' $\Upsilon \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$  is not immediately dependent on urnuor. (Œcum.), as this would involve an untenable ellipse of a prep. before the succeeding words (see Herm. Viger. p. 701, Lond. 1824), but is a possess. gen. in connexion with Tou Epyou, and also (as its slightly emphatic position suggests) with TOU KOTOU and The UTO- $\mu o \nu \hat{\eta} s$ : see further exx. in Winer. Gr. § 22. 7. note 1, p. 140. (2) Toû έργου is certainly not pleonastic, but must stand in parallelism both in force and meaning (hence not 'veritas,' Kypke, Obs. Vol. II. p. 332) with the succeeding τοῦ κόπου (Winer, Gr. § 65. 7, p. 541), and has probably here not so much a collective (Syr. ), [opera]), as a tinge of active force, imparted both by the context and the following τοῦ κόπου; comp. Eph. iv. 12, Knapp, Scripta Var. Arg. Vol. II. p. 491 note, and Usteri, Lehrb. II. I. 4, p. 238. (3) T $\hat{\eta}s \pi l \sigma \tau \epsilon \omega s$  is certainly not a gen. of apposition (Alf.), as it would thus lose all parallelism with the succeeding genitives, but is either (a) a gen. of the origin (Hartung, Casus, p. 17, comp. notes on Col. i. 23), 'quod ex fide proficiscitur,' Grot., or perhaps more simply (b) a possessive genitive,  $\tau o \hat{v}$ έργου being the prevailing feature and characteristic of the  $\pi i \sigma \tau is$ , and that by which it evinces its vitality; comp. Chrys., ή πίστις δια των έργων δείκνυ- $\tau \alpha \iota$ , who however, with Theod., al., limits to Epyon to endurance in sufferings (τὸ ἐν κινδύνοις βέβαιον, Theod.), a very doubtful restriction.

τοῦ κόπου τῆς ἀγάπης] 'toil of love,' i. e. (retaining the same genitival relation as in the preceding words)

'the toil which characterizes and evinces the vitality of love;' 'multum est per se dilectio, sed multo magis si accedunt molesti labores, id enim Kóπos,' Grot.; see notes on I Tim. iv. 10. The  $d\gamma d\pi \eta$  is here not in reference to God, or to God and one another (comp. Œcum.), but simply to the latter (Col. i. 4, Heb. vi. 10); and that as evinced,-not merely in teaching (comp. De W.) or in bearing a brother's faults (Theod.) or in ministering to the sick, dc. Part II. § 3, and Neander, Planting, Vol. I. p. 479 (Bohn). In some cases it seems almost to occupy the place of  $\delta \lambda \pi is$ , as it stands in conjunction with  $\pi l \sigma \tau \iota s$  and  $\dot{a}\gamma\dot{a}\pi\eta$  in 1 Tim. vi. 11, Tit. ii. 2, and with  $\pi i \sigma \tau \iota s$  in 2 Thess. i. 4: for a full notice of other shades of meaning, comp. I, Beng., Alf.), not with τοῦ ἔργου τῆς πίστεως  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . (Theod., Theoph. 2, Jowett), as in such a case the article could scarcely be dispensed with. "E $\mu\pi\rho\sigma\sigma\theta\epsilon\nu$ is joined expressly with  $\tau o \hat{v} \Theta \epsilon o \hat{v}$  only in this Ep. The finite verb has thus three participial clauses attached to it; the first serves principally to define the manner, the second the time and circumstances, the third the reason and motive of the action. These delicate uses of the Greek participle deserve particular attention; comp. Krüger, Sprachl. § 56. 10 sq. See also Phil. i. 3, 4, 5, and notes on ver. 5. It is somewhat singular that so good a commentator as Theodoret should refer elbbres to the Thessalonians ; so also Grot., who connects the clause with the remote  $\epsilon_{\gamma\epsilon\nu\eta\theta\eta\tau\epsilon}$ , ver. 6. There is no trace of such a connexion in any of the ancient Vv. except Æth.-Pol.

ήγαπημένοι ὑπὸ Θεοῦ] 'beloved by God;' comp. 2 Thess. ii. 13; so rightly Syr., Vulg., Clarom., Copt., Æth.-Pol., and inferentially Chrys. (ὑπèρ γἀρ τῶν τοῦ Θεοῦ ἀγαπητῶν τί οὐκ ἄν τις πάσχοι). To connect ὑπὸ Θεοῦ with τὴν ἐκλογήν, as Æth. (Platt), Theoph., and our own Auth., involves a disturbance of the natural order, and an ellipse of εἶναι that is here highly improbable. The article is inserted before Θεοῦ by ACKN; 10 mss.

την  $\dot{\epsilon}$ κλογην  $\dot{\nu}$ μών] 'your election;' scil. out of others not  $\dot{\epsilon}$ κλεκτοί, with reference to the sovereign decree of God made before the foundation of the world; see Eph. i. 4, and notes in loc. To refer this merely to the manner of their election to the Gospel (Baumg.-Crus., Jowett 2), or to any internal renewing of the Spirit (Pelt), is in a high degree forced and unsatisfactory. On the use of the terms  $\dot{\epsilon}\kappa\lambda\dot{\epsilon}\xi a\sigma\theta a\iota$ , έκλογή, and έκλεκτός, in St Paul's Epp. see Reuss, Théol. Chrét. IV. 14, Vol. II. p. 132, and on the doctrine generally, the clear and in the main satisfactory statements of Ebrard, Dogmatik, § 560, 561; comp. also the very valuable remarks of Hooker, on Predest. Vol. II. p. 705 sq. (ed. Keble), especially pp. 711, 712.

5. ETL] 'in that,' because.' > VAS Syr., 'quia,' Vulg. (not perfectly conclusive), and sim. Copt., Æth., Arm.: reason for this knowledge on the part of St Paul and his companions, or having here its causal force (Winer, Gr. § 53. 8. b, p. 395), and, with its regular objective characteristics (Krüger, Sprachl. § 65. 8. 1), referring to known facts as confirmatory of a preceding assertion. The Apostle argues they must be elect, first because (ver. 5) he and his companions were enabled to preach the Gospel among them with such power, and secondly (ver. 6) because they received it with such joy; έκ τούτου φησί δήλον ότι ἐκλεκτοί ἐστε, ἐκ τοῦ τόν Θεόν τό κήρυγμα έν ύμιν δοξάσαι, Theoph. Others, as Bengel and Schott, give or its expository force, 'that,' 'to wit that' (see Krüger, Sprachl. § 61. I. 3), and place only a comma after  $i\mu\hat{\omega}\nu$ ; in which case ver. 5 becomes an objective sentence (Donalds. Gr. § 584 sq.) dependent on  $\epsilon i\delta \delta \tau \epsilon s$ , ### έν λόγφ μόνον άλλα και έν δυνάμει και έν Πνεύματι άγίφ και έν πληροφορία πολλή, καθώς οίδατε οιοι έγενήθημεν

and more distinctly explanatory of the nature of the  $\epsilon\kappa\lambda\alpha\gamma\eta$ . This is grammatically tenable, but certainly not exceptically satisfactory, as the whole context seems to have more of a direct and argumentative, than of a dependent and explanatory nature.

τδ εὐαγγ. ἡμῶν] 'our Gospel,' 'the Gospel which we preached;' the gen. being appy. that of the mediate source or origin (Hartung, Casus, p. 23), or perhaps rather of the mediate causa efficients; see notes on ver. 6.

oùs èyevitôn els ùµâs] 'came not unto you;' not 'erga vos,' Calv., but simply 'ad vos,' Vulg., Copt., the preposition not having here its ethical force (comp. Philem. 6), but simply marking the direction which was taken by the  $\epsilon i a \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda \iota or$ ; comp. Donalds. Cratyl. § 170, and notes on Gal. iii. 14.

The reading is perhaps doubtful. Ilpòs ύμâs is well supported, viz. by AC2D EFG; 5 mss.; Chrys., Theoph. (Lachm.). As however  $\epsilon$  is appears a less probable correction for  $\pi \rho \partial s$  than the converse, and is supported by strong external authority [B (perhaps C1) KLN; nearly all mss.; Chrys. (ms.), Theod., al., Griesb., Tisch.], we retain the reading of Rec. If  $\pi \rho \delta s$  be adopted, the same meaning will be admissible (comp. 2 John 12, not Rec.), but will seem less probable than 'apud' (Clarom.; comp. I Cor. xvi. 10), as the general reference of the context is rather to the development of the Gospel among them than the circumstances of its first arrival; for this meaning of γενέσθαι πρόs (denoting continuance) in the N.T., which Alford seems to doubt, see Meyer on I Cor. ii. 3, and Fritz. on Mark, p. 201.

On the passive form  $\dot{\epsilon}\gamma\epsilon\nu\eta\theta\eta$ , which occurs noticeably often in this and the following chapter (8 times, against 17 in the rest of the N. T. of which 5 are quotations from the LXX.), but appy. does not involve any passive meaning (Alf.), see Lobeck, Phryn. p. 108, Thomas M. p. 189 (ed. Bern.), and notes on Col. iv. 11.

iν λόγφ] 'in word;' not merely equivalent to λόγοs (comp. Jowett), but, as usual, with a reference to the sphere or domain of its action; 'non stetit intra verba,' Grot.; compare Winer, Gr. § 48. a. 3. a, p. 345.

ένδυνάμει κ. τ. λ.] 'in power and in the Holy Ghost;' 'in the element of power and-to specify a yet higher principle (kal being not so much explanatory as slightly climactic, see notes on ver. 6)-in the influence of the Holy Ghost;' the preposition as before defining the sphere, and thence inferentially the manner, in which the preaching took place; see notes on ch. ii. 3. Δυνάμει does not appear to refer specially to 'miraculous powers' (Theod., Theoph., al.), but, as in the similar passage I Cor. ii. 4, to the reality, energy, and effective earnestness, with which the Apostle and his followers preached among the Thessalonians. Jowett defends the reference of ev ouv. to the influence produced on the Thess., but is thus led 'the inspiration of the speaker caught by the hearers,' which, as tending to obscure the reference to the personal  $\Pi \nu \epsilon \hat{\upsilon} \mu a$  äyıov, seems in a high degree precarious and unsatisfactory. On the use of  $\Pi \nu \epsilon \hat{\nu} \mu a$  as a proper name, see notes on Gal. v. 5, and comp. Winer, Gr. § 19. 1, p. 111.

preachers ; subjective, corresponding to the more objective side presented in the preceding clause: comp. Heb. x. 22,  $\pi\lambda\eta\rho o\phi opla \pi l\sigma\tau\epsilon\omega s$ , which latter subst. Alford here unnecessarily inserts in translation. Of the three explanations which Jowett proposes, (a) certainty, (b) fulness of spiritual gifts, Corn. a Lap., al., (c) effect, fulfilment, Thom. Aq. 2, the first alone seems in harmony with the context, if limited to the Apostle and his companions. To refer it to the Thessalonians (Musc., comp. Zanch. ap. Pol. Syn.), or to them and the Apostle (Vorst., Schott), seems to mar the correct sequence of thought, and to introduce notices of the state of the recipients which-come first into view in ver. 6. The word  $\pi\lambda noo \phi$ opía (Hesych.  $\beta \epsilon \beta a i \delta \tau \eta s$ ) appears to be confined to the N.T. (Col. ii. 2, Heb. vi. 11, x. 22) and the ecclesiastical writers. The  $\epsilon \nu$  before  $\pi \lambda \eta \rho o \phi$ , is omitted by BN; some mss.

(who throws undue emphasis on the passive form), but, with the more certain and natural sense, 'came to be, proved to be;' see notes above, and on Col. iv. II. The  $\pi o \iota \delta \tau \eta s$  was not evinced merely in confronting dangers (Theod. comp. Chrys.), but in the power and confidence with which they delivered their message. δι' ύμας] 'on your account,' 'for your sake ;' ' propter vos,' Vulg. ; not with so specific a force as  $i\pi \epsilon \rho \ i\mu \hat{\omega} \nu$  (comp. Theod., who uses this latter formula in connexion with κινδύνους ὑφεστάναι), nor yet one so undefined as  $\pi \epsilon \rho l \, \dot{\upsilon} \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$ . but with a clear and distinct reference to the cause and best interests ['sake,' -Sax. sac, Germ. Sache] of those to whom the Apostle preached;  $\tau \hat{\eta} s \dot{\epsilon} \mu \hat{\eta} s$ [ήμετέρας] σπούδης της είς ύμας ή ύμων παρά Θεοῦ ἐκλογὴ πρόφασις γέγονεν, The ev vuiv, it need scarcely Œcum. be said, is simply 'among you;' dveστράφημεν έν ύμιν, Theoph. The έν however is omitted by ACN; 4 mss.; Vulg. (Amiat.).

6. καl ύμεις κ.τ.λ.] 'and [because] yebecame imitators of us;' second ground for knowing that the Thess. were έκλεκτοί,-the καl not being ascensive (comp. notes on Eph. ii. 1, Phil. iv. 12) or equivalent to 'sic, more Hebræo' (Grot.), but simply copulative, and the verse remaining, if not structurally, yet logically, under the vinculum of the preceding  $\delta \tau \iota$ . It thus seems best to place neither a period (Tisch., Alf.) nor a comma (Lachm., Buttm.), but a colon, after ver. 5. Here, as in ver. 5. Lünem. and Alf. lay a stress on the passive form  $\dot{\epsilon}\gamma\epsilon\nu\dot{\eta}\theta\eta\tau\epsilon$ . This however is lexically doubtful: the Apostle is rather dwelling on the effects produced among them, on what they came to be, and thus significantly adopts not the simple verb  $\mu \iota \mu \epsilon \hat{\iota} \sigma \theta a \iota$ , but the more definitive μιμηταλ γίνεσθαι; see 1 Cor. iv. 16, xi. 1, Eph. v. 1, Phil. iii. 17. Kal TOU Kuplou] 'and of the Lord,' all misunderstanding is prevented by means of the insertion of  $\tau o \hat{\nu}$  K. with the slightly climactic kai, see Hartung, Partik.

Vol. II. p. 320], forms the sort of connecting link between its simply copulative and simply ascensive uses, and may perhaps be termed its climactic use; comp. Fritz. on Mark i. 5, p. 11. For a brief analysis of the leading distinctions in the use of this particle, see notes on Phil. iv, 12.

The exact manner in which the Thessalonians became imitators of their founders, -and of the Lord, is defined in the concluding words of the verse, έν θλίψει πολλή μετά χαράς Πν. άγίου: joy amid suffering and affliction is the 'tertium comparationis;' comp. Rom. iv. 20. It is scarcely necessary to add that  $\tau \delta \nu$  $\lambda \delta \gamma o \nu$  is here practically equivalent to τόν λόγον τοῦ Κυρίου (ver. 8), τοῦ Θεοῦ (2 Cor. ii. 17), or τη̂s άληθείas (Eph. i. 13), and refers to the preaching of the Gospel, which was the loyos kat' égoχήν; comp. Between the two usual forms of the gen. of 'ablation' (see Donaldson, Gr. § 448, 449), viz. (a) the stronger gen. of the causa efficiens, and (c) the weaker gen. originis, which forms the point of transition to the partitive genitive, it is perhaps not hypercritical in the N. could hardly apply to those who had received the Gospel before them (of προλαβόντες, Chrys., Theoph.), for, as Lünemann observes, the church of Philippi was the only one in Europe which received the Gospel before that of Thessalonica; comp. ch. ii. 2, Acts xvi. 12 sq. The reading is very doubtful: the plural  $\tau i \pi o vs$  (Rec.) is well supported [ACFGKLN; most mss.; Boern., Syr.-Phil.; many Ff.], but seems so much more likely to have been changed from the singular than vice versâ (Schott), that on the whole  $\tau \dot{\upsilon} \pi o \nu$ , though having less external authority [BD1(D3E and 1 ms. read τύπos); 7 mss.; Clarom., Sangerm., Vulg., Syr., Æth. (both), al., Lachm. (non marg.), Tisch.], is here to be preferred. πάσιν τοις πιστ.] 'to all the believers ;' πιστεύουσιν not having here a pure participial force. τοις ήδη πιστεύουσι, Chrys., but, as often in the N.T., coalescing with the article to form a substantive; see Winer, Gr. § 45. 7, p. 316.

έν τη Μακεδ. καl έν τη 'Ax.] 'Macedonia and Achaia,' i.e. the whole of Greece; Acts xix. 21, Rom. xv. 26, comp. 2 Cor. ix. 2. Macedonia was at first (B. C. 167) divided by the Romans into four districts, but subsequently (B.C. 142) reunited into one province comprising all the northern portion of Greece. Achaia proper was also united with Hellas and the rest of the Peloponnese (B.C. 142) in one province, and as the leading state at that time gave the name to the whole southern portion of Greece; see Winer, RWB. Vol. I. p. 16, and Vol. II. p. 44. The omission of  $\dot{\epsilon}\nu$  before  $\tau\hat{\eta}$  'A- $\chi \alpha t \alpha$  (Rec.) has against it all the uncial MSS. except KL.

proof and amplification of the preceding assertion. The preposition is here simply local (Alf.),-not ethical ('vobis efficientibus,' Storr; a very questionable paraphrase), nor both combined (Schott),-and marks the Thessalonians as the simple terminus a quo of the  $\dot{\epsilon}\xi\eta\chi\epsilon\hat{\iota}\sigma\theta\alpha\iota$ . It may be observed that appy. in all cases in the N.T. where  $d\pi \partial$  is said to be equivalent to  $\dot{\upsilon}\pi\dot{\upsilon}$  the action implied in the verb is represented as emanating from, rather than wrought by the assumed agent; comp. Luke vi. 18 (not Rec.), James i. 13, see Winer, Gr. § 47. b, p. 331, and notes on Gal. i. I.

έξήχηται] 'hath sounded forth;' an  $d\pi$ . λεγόμ. in the N.T. (Hesychius,  $\dot{\epsilon}\xi\tilde{\eta}\lambda\theta\epsilon\nu$  έκηρόχθη), but found in the LXX. (Joel iii. 14, Ecclus. xl. 13) and occasionally in later writers, e.g. Polyb. Hist. xxx. 4. 7, τδ κύκνειον  $\dot{\epsilon}\xi\eta\chi\eta\sigma aν \tau es.$  The word forcibly marks both the clear and the pervasive nature of the λόγος τοῦ Kυρίου: ὡς ἐπὶ σάλπιγγος λαμπρὸν ἡχούσης καὶ ἐπὶ πολὺ φθανούσης, Theoph.

ό λόγος τοῦ Κυρίου] 'the word of the Lord,' i.e. the Gospel (see above, ver. 6) as received by the Thessalonians, not 'the report that it was received by them' (De W.), still less 'your bright example became itself a message from the Lord' (Alf.),—both of which interpretations seem needlessly artificial. The Gospel was received by them with such eager zeal, its words were so constantly in their mouths and so wrought in their hearts, that it swelled as it were into a mighty trumpet-call that was heard of all men sounding forth from Thessalonica.

 $i v \tau \hat{\eta}$  Μακ. καl 'Αχ.] Here the omission of the article and prep. before 'Αχαία is not only permissible (on the ground that the previous more exact specification of each would preclude any misconception), but really grammatically exact: Macedonia and Achaia now form a whole in antithesis to the rest of the world; comp. Winer, Gr. § 19. 4, p. 116 sq. The reading however is very doubtful: Lachm. inserts  $\epsilon \nu \tau \hat{\eta}$  with the strongest external testimony [CDEFGKLN; 30 mss.; Vulg., Clarom., Syr. (both), al.], but as the insertion of the  $\epsilon \nu \tau \hat{\eta}$  would seem so much more likely to have been a conformation to ver. 7, than its omission to have been accidental, we retain the reading of Rec., Tisch., though only with B; majority of mss.; some Vv.; Chrys., Theod., al. In A. there is a lacuna (ver. 8 beginning with and' ev mantl) arising from Homeeteleuton. άλλ' έν παντί κ.τ.λ.] There is some little difficulty in the exact connexion, as  $d\lambda\lambda' \epsilon \nu \kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . seems clearly to stand in immediate antithesis to où  $\mu \delta \nu o \nu \kappa \tau$ .  $\lambda$ . (opp. to Lünem., who places a colon after Kuplov), but yet stands associated with a new nominative. The most simple explanation is that of Rückert (Loc. Paul. Expl. Jen. 1844), according to which the Apostle is led by the desire of making a forcible climax into a disregard of the preceding nominative, and in fact puts a sentence in antithesis to ou µbvov-'Axata, instead of the simple local clause  $\dot{\epsilon}\nu \pi a\nu\tau i \tau \delta\pi \varphi$ or έν όλω τῷ κόσμω (Rom. i. 8) which the strict logical connexion actually required. Rec. inserts kal after άλλά, but on decidedly insufficient authority-viz. D3EKL; Vulg. (not Amiat.), and several Ff. On the distinction between this latter form ('ubi prior notio non per se sed quatenus sola est negatur') and où μόνον...άλλά ή πρός τον Θεόν] 'which is toward God,' 'to God-ward,' Auth.: more exact definition of the  $\pi l \sigma \tau \iota s$  by means of the repeated article : comp. Tit. ii. 10, notes on Gal. iii. 26, and Winer, Gr. § 20. 1, p. 110 sq. The less usual preposition  $\pi \rho \partial s$  is here used with great propriety, as there is a tacit contrast to a previous faith  $\pi \rho \partial s \tau \dot{a}$ είδωλα (see ver. 9), in which latter case the deeper  $\pi l \sigma \tau$ .  $\epsilon ls$  (faith to and into,-surely not 'on,' Alf.) would seem to be theologically unsuitable. On the meaning of  $\pi l \sigma \tau$ .  $\pi \rho \delta s$ , see notes on Philem. 5, and on the force of πίστιs and πιστεύειν with different prepp., Reuss, Théol. Chrét. The currency of the report was probably much promoted by the commercial intercourse between Thessalonica and other cities, both in Greece and elsewhere; see Koch in loc., and Wieseler, Chronol. p. 42, who suggests that Aquila and Priscilla, who had lately come from Rome to Corinth (Acts xviii. 2), might have mentioned to the Apostle the prevalence of the report even in that more distant city. If this be so, the justice and truth of the Apostle's hyperbole is still more apparent; to be known in Rome was to be known everywhere : contrast Baur, Paulus, p. 484. Rec.

The fundamental distinction that  $\lambda a \lambda \hat{\epsilon} \hat{\nu}$  (Hesych.  $\phi \theta \dot{\epsilon} \gamma \gamma \epsilon \sigma \theta a$ ) points merely to sound and utterance,  $\lambda \dot{\epsilon} \gamma \epsilon \omega$  to purport, is mainly observed in the N.T., with the exception that  $\lambda a \lambda \hat{\epsilon} \hat{\nu}$  is sometimes used where  $\lambda \dot{\epsilon} \gamma \epsilon \omega$  would appear more natural, but never vice vers  $\hat{s}$ ; see esp. the good note of Lücke on John viii. 43.

9. avtol ' they themselves ;' i.e. the people in Macedonia and Achaia and elsewhere; a very intelligible 'constructio ad sensum;' see Winer, Gr. § 22. 3, p. 131, and notes on Gal. ii. 2. The interpr. of Pelt, 'sponte,' auto- $\mu \alpha \theta \hat{\omega}_s$ , is here artificial and unnecessary: autol stands in somewhat emphatic antithesis to the preceding  $\dot{\eta}\mu\hat{a}s$ ; 'we have no need to say anything about you, for they to whom otherwise we might have told it themselves speak of it and spread it;' où mapaµéνουσιν άκοῦσαι περί ὑμῶν, ἀλλὰ τούς παρόντας καί τεθεαμένους τὰ ὑμέτερα κατορθώματα οί μη παρόντες μηδέ τεθεαμένοι παραλαμβάνουσιν, Chrys.

περl ήμῶν] 'about us,' scil. the Apostle and his helpers; not 'de me et vobis simul,' Zanch. (compare Lünem., well answered by Alf.), as the studied prominence of περl ήμῶν and the real point of the clause are thus completely overlooked : instead of our telling about our own success, they do it for us; & γαρ αύτουs έχρην παρ' ήμων άκούειν, ταῦτα αὐτοί προλαβόντες λέyours, Chrys. όποίαν κ.τ.λ.] 'what manner of entering in we had unto you .' fuller explanation of the preceding  $\pi \epsilon \rho l \dot{\eta} \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$ . The reference of the qualitative  $\partial \pi o(a\nu)$  to the dangers and sufferings undergone by St Paul and his followers in their first preaching at Thessalonica (Chrys., Theoph., (Ecum.) is rightly rejected by most modern commentators: the  $\pi o\iota \delta \tau \eta s$  is rather evinced in the power and confidence with which they preached, and serves to illustrate verse 5.

Etooõos has here no ethical meaning, 'indolem nostram' (Æth.-Pol.; comp. Olsh.), but, as always in the N. T. (ch. ii. 1, Acts xiii. 24, Heb. x. 19, 2 Pet. i. 11), is simply local in its reference, 'introitus,' Vulg., Arm., 'ingressus,' Copt., 'quomodo venimus ad vos,' Æth. (Platt): so too inferentially the Greek commentators, and after them most modern writers. The present  $\xi\chi o\mu\epsilon\nu$  (Rec.) appy. rests only on the authority of cursive mss., and is rejected by all modern editors.

πῶς ἐπεστρέψατε] 'how ye turned;' illustration of ver. 6. The πῶs does not necessarily involve εὐκόλως, μετὰ πολλῆς σφοδρότητος, Chrys., 'quantâ facilitate,' Calv., but simply points to the fact of ἐπιστροφή (Alf.), the clause being not modal but objective; comp. Donalds. Gr. § 584. In the verb ἐπιστρέφειν the prep. does not here seem to mark regression (comp. notes on Gal. iv. 2), but simply direction: both meanings are lexically admissible (see Rost u. Palm, Lex. s. v. and s. v. ἐπί, c), but the second seems to be most πρός τόν Θεόν marks the conversion in its general rather than its specifically Christian aspects, with reference to the former heathen and Gentile condition of the Thessalonians: if they had been Jews, the appropriate formula, as Olsh. well observes, would have been mpds rdv Kúpiov. On this and the following verse, see a sound sermon by Sherlock, Serm. LIII. Vol. III. p. 56 (ed. Hughes). δουλεύειν  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda.$  'to serve the living and true God ;' infinitive of the purpose or intention, είς το δουλεύειν κ.τ.λ., Chrys., -a form of the final sentence (Donalds. Gr. § 606) not uncommon in St Paul's Epp. ; see I Cor. i. 17, Eph. i. 4, Col. i. 22. On the difference between this and the infin. with  $\omega\sigma\tau\epsilon$  (consecutive sentence), see notes on Col. l. c., and comp. Winer, Gr. § 44. I, p. 284, ed. 6, but more fully in § 45. 3, ed. 5. God has here the appropriate title of (Qr (Acts xiv. 15) in contrast with the dead (Wisdom xiv. 5, 29, comp. Habak. ii. 19) and practically nonexistent (I Cor. viii. 4, see Meyer in loc.) gods of the heathen, -and that of alyouvos (John xvii. 3, I John v. 20, comp. 2 Chron. xv. 3) in contrast to their false semblance (Gal. iv. 8) and ματαιότηs (hence אלילם Lev. xix. 4, xxvi. 1). 10.  $dva\mu \acute{e}v \acute{e}v$ ? 'to await;' second great purpose involved in the  $\acute{e}\pi\iota\sigma\tau\rho o$ .  $\phi\dot{\eta}$ : hope of the nature here described, as Lünem. observes, involves and includes faith, and forms a suitable preparation for the allusions in the latter portion of the Epistle. If  $\chi a \rho \dot{a}$  be said to be the key-note of the Ep. to the Philippians (iii. 1),  $\epsilon \lambda \pi ls$  may truly be termed that of the present Ep. The verb  $dva\mu \ell \nu \epsilon \iota \nu$ , a  $d\pi$ .  $\lambda \epsilon \gamma \delta \mu$ . in the N. T., does not here involve any reference to awaiting one who is to return (comp. Beng.), nor yet any specific notion of eagerness or joy (Flatt), but simply that of patience ('erharren,' Winer) and confidence; the avà having that modified intensive force ( $\pi \rho o \sigma \mu \epsilon$ νειν, Theod., see I Tim. i. 3; περιμέvew, Theoph., see Acts i. 4, which is so hard to convey without paraphrase; see esp. 'Christus nos semel  $\dot{\epsilon}\lambda \nu \tau \rho \dot{\omega} \sigma a \tau o$ , semper ρύεται'), or (b) as 'rem certo futuram'

This powerful word  $(\partial \rho \gamma \eta)$  is not merely synonymous with κόλασις or τιμωρία (Orig. Cels. IV. p. 211; comp. Lünem.), but implies definitely the holy anger of God against sin,-that anger which, when deeply considered, only serves to evince His love; see esp. Müller, Doctr. of Sin. The present participle has no future tinge,  $e. g. = \mu \epsilon \lambda \lambda \delta v \sigma \eta s$ (Olsh., Koch), but marks the certainty of the coming (Bernhardy, Synt. x. 2, p. 371), and hints at the enduring principles of the moral government of God; comp. CHAPTER II. Ι. Αύτοι γάρ οίδατε] " For ye yourselves know;' explanatory confirmation of the first part of ch. i. 9, by an appeal to the knowledge and experience of his readers. In ch. i. o two distinct subjects are alluded to,  $(\alpha)$  the power and confidence of the preachers, (b) the obedience and receptivity of the hearers, comp. Chrys.: the former is amplified in the present and 11 following verses, the latter in ver. 13-16. Tap is thus certainly not resumptive, nor yet explicative, but what Hartung (Partik. yáp, § 2) terms 'argumentativ-explicativ,' the dpa element of the particle referring to what had preceded ('quasi pro re natâ jam recte atque ordine hoc ita se habere dicitur,' Klotz), the  $\gamma \dot{\epsilon}$  element adding an explanatory asseveration; see esp. Klotz, Devar. Vol. II. p. 235. If the distinction of Hand (Tursell. Vol. II. p. 375) be correct, 'nam ipsi,' Vulg., is here a judicious correction of 'ipsi enim,' Clarom.

ότι ού κενή γέγ.] ' that it has not been empty,' i. e. void of power and earnestness; 'non inanis, sed plena virtutis,' Beng. In this form of the objective sentence-by no means uncommon after verbs of 'knowledge, perception. &c.'-there is an idiomatic anticipation of the object, which serves to awaken the reader's attention to the subsequent predications; see esp. Krüger, Sprachl. § 61. 6. 2. For other forms of the objective sentence, see Donalds. Gr. The exact meaning of  $\kappa \epsilon \nu \dot{\eta}$ \$ 502. has been somewhat differently estimated: it can scarcely involve any ethical reference ('deceitful,' Hammond, μῦθοι ψευδείs και λήροι, (Ecum.). or any allusion to accompanying dangers (Theod., Theoph.), or yet to the results of the eloodos (De Wette I), as these belong to the second part of ver. 9,-but, as yéyover and the leading idea in the following words ( $\epsilon \pi a \dot{\rho} \dot{\rho} \eta \sigma$ .  $\epsilon \nu \tau \hat{\omega} \Theta \epsilon \hat{\omega} \kappa.\tau.\lambda.$ ) both suggest, to the essential character of the eloodos, its fulness of power and purpose and reality; ούκ άνθρωπίνη οὐδὲ ή τυχοῦσα, Chrys. So rightly De Wette 2, Lünem., and Alf.

2.  $d\lambda\lambda d$  introduces the positive antithesis to the preceding negative of  $\kappa\epsilon\nu\eta$   $\gamma\epsilon\gamma\sigma\nu\epsilon\nu$ ; see I Cor. xv. 10. Rec. reads  $d\lambda\lambda\lambda$   $\kappa al$ , but has only the support of a few mss., and Clarom.

It is doubtful whether the participle is here concessive ('although we had, dc.,' Lünem.; see Plato, Rep. II. p. 376 A), or simply temporal. If  $\kappa \alpha l$  (Rec.) were to be admitted in the text before the part., the former meaning would seem more probable, as in such cases the  $\kappa a l$  (though not =  $\kappa a l \pi \epsilon \rho$ , De W.) serves to sharpen the antithesis involved in the concession (see Krüger, Sprachl. § 56. 13. 1 sq.); as however ral must be rejected, the simple participle seems here more naturally regarded as temporal; comp. It seems more exact to retain this primary meaning; for though mappyola has indisputably in the N.T. the derivative meaning of confidence, boldness (see on Eph. iii. 12), still after a comparison of Eph. vi. 20, and Acts xxvi. 26 (a speech of St Paul's), the idea of bold speech, even though reiterated in  $\lambda \alpha \lambda \hat{\eta} \sigma \alpha \iota$ , can scarcely be excluded. This παρρησία was έν τῷ Θεῷ ήμῶν; it was in Him (not exactly 'per Deum,' Schott 1), as the causal sphere and ground of its existence, that the  $\pi a \dot{\rho}$ - Lünem., Alf., and others, far less plausibly, consider the inf. as a simple object-infin. after  $\epsilon \pi a \rho \rho \eta \sigma$ . The ancient Vv. here give no distinct opinion, except perhaps Syr.-Phil., 'in fiducia (?) in Deo nostro loqui, dc.,' where the inf. seems clearly regarded as explanatory: so too τὸ εὐαγγ. τοῦ (appy.) Schott, Alf.): still, as this defence rests mainly on a doubtful use of  $\dot{\epsilon}\nu$ ,—as a recognition of the change of prepp. might have suggested a change from  $o\dot{v}\delta\dot{\epsilon}$  to  $o\breve{v}\tau\epsilon$  nearly as probably as a non-recognition of it the converse,—and lastly, as the uncial authority very distinctly preponderates in favour of  $o\dot{v}\delta\dot{\epsilon}$ , we revert to the reading of Tisch. (ed. 1). So Winer, Gr. § 55. 6, p. 437, Olsh., De W., Lünem., Koch.

especially of the concluding words; of πλανώντες ούκ είς κινδύνους έαυτους έκδιδόασιν, Œcum., compare Chrys. There is here, as Bengel acutely observes, an 'ætiologia duplex,' the present yàp introducing a reference to the Apostle's regular habit, the second  $\gamma d\rho$  (ver. 5) to that habit as specially evinced among the Thessalonians. The word παράκλησιs here includes 'totum præconium evangelicum' (Beng.), and approaches in meaning to  $\delta\iota\delta\alpha\chi\dot{\eta}$  (Chrys.), or διδασκαλία (Theod.), from both of which however it is perhaps distinguishable, as being directed more to the feelings than the understanding; comp. notes on I Tim. iv. 13, and Beng. in loc. who says ' παράκ. late patet : ubi desides excitat est hortatio, ubi tristitiæ medetur est solatium.' A good dissertation on  $\pi a \rho a \kappa a \lambda \epsilon i \nu$ ,  $\pi a \rho d$ - $\kappa\lambda\eta\sigma\iota s$ , and  $\pi\alpha\rho\dot{\alpha}\kappa\lambda\eta\tau\sigma s$  will be found in Knapp, Script. οὐκ ἐκ πλάνης] 'is not of error;' not 'grounded on,' Alf. 1, but 'having its source in,' Alf. 2, the prep. retaining its usual and primary force of origination from; see notes on Gal. ii. 16, Winer, Gr. § 47. b, p. 329. The verb to be supplied is not  $\eta\nu$  (Syr., Æth.) but  $\partial \sigma \tau i\nu$  (Copt.); as the Apostle is here referring to his general and habitual mode of preaching; see above. Lastly, πλάνη is not transitive, 'impostura,' Beza, 'seducendi studium,' Grot. (comp. Theoph.), but, as appy. in all passages in the N. T., intransitive, 'error,' Vulg., 222. [error]Syr., the context serving to show whether it is in the more abstract sense of 'mentis error' (Irrthum) as in Eph. iv. 14, or as here in the more general meaning of 'being deceived' (Irrwahn, delusion), whether by oneself or others; comp. was found, and by which it was, as it were, environed; comp. 2 Cor. iv. 2. μή περιπατούντες έν πανουργία μηδέ δολούντες τον λόγον του Θεού, a somewhat instructive parallel. The use of ev, especially with abstract or nonpersonal substantives, is always somewhat debateable in the N.T., and can only be fixed by the context; it sometimes librates towards did both with gen. (I Pet. i. 5) and acc. (Matth. vi. 7), sometimes towards µετά (ver. 17, Col. ii. 7, iv. 2, see notes), sometimes, appy. very rarely, towards κατά (Heb. iv. II),-but is commonly best referred to the imaginary sphere in which the action takes place ; see Winer, Gr. § 48. a, p. 345, and Rost u. Palm, Lex. s. v., where this prep. is very fully discussed. On the reading of this passage, see crit. note, and on the most suitable transl. of ou...oude, notes to Transl.

4. Kabis Sebokup.] 'according as we have been approved ;' our autox eipoτόνητοι διδάσκαλοι καθεστήκαμεν, άλλ' ύπό τοῦ Θεοῦ τὸ εὐαγγέλιον ἐπιστεύ- $\theta\eta\mu\epsilon\nu$ , Theod. Kabws (see notes on Gal. iii. 6) has here no argumentative force (Eph. i. 3, see notes), but stands in correlation to  $ov\tau \omega s$ , marking the measure or proportion existing between their approval by God to preach the Gospel and their actual performance of the commission. The idea of a recognition of any worth on the part of God in the δεδοκιμασμένοι (Chrys., Theoph., (Ecum.) is certainly here not necessarily involved in the word.  $\Delta o$ - $\kappa \mu a \zeta \epsilon \nu$  is properly (a) 'to put to the test' (Luke xiv. 19, Eph. v. 10, 1 Tim. iii. 10, &c.), thence by an easy gradation (b) 'to choose after testing' (see Rom. i. 28, with infin.), which again passes insensibly into-(c) 'to approve of what is so tested;' comp. Rom. xiv. 22, I Cor. xvi. 3, and notes on Phil. i. 10. In the present case the appended notice of the subject in respect of which the dokuaala was exercised seems clearly to limit the meaning to (b):  $\epsilon \pi \epsilon \iota \delta \eta \epsilon \delta o \xi \epsilon \nu \alpha \dot{\upsilon} \tau \hat{\omega}$ και έδοκίμασε πιστεύσαι ήμιν, Theod. πιστευθήναι το εύαγγ.] 'to have the Gospel entrusted to us,' comp. I Tim. i. II, Tit. i. 3: explanatory infinitive serving to define more nearly that to which the dokuaala was directed, see Winer, Gr. § 44. 1, p. 285; compare Madvig, Synt. § 148. For remarks on, and exx, of the idiomatic construction of the accus. rei with  $\pi_{i\sigma\tau\epsilon'_{io\mu}a\iota}$ and similar verbs, see Winer, Gr. § 32. 5, p. 204. ούχ ώς άνθ. apéokovtes] 'not as busied in pleasing men;' the present tense having here its fullest force, and marking that which they were engaged in, were seeking to do; our apéoreur béhovres, Theoph.; see Scheuerl. Synt. § 31. 2, p. 313, and comp. notes on Gal. i. 10. The particle is serves as usual to characterize the action, and to define the aspect in which the whole was to be regarded, 'not as striving to please men, but (as striving to please) God, dc.;' comp. Bernhardy, Synt. VII. 2, p. 333, and notes on Eph. v. 22.

τῷ δοκιμ. κ.τ.λ.] 'who proveth, trieth, our hearts;' δοκιμ. here relapsing back to its primary meaning, see above. The plural  $\dot{\eta}\mu\omega\nu$  can here scarcely be referred otherwise than to St Paul and his fellow-preachers at Thessalonica: if the sentence had been general, it would have been omitted (Rom. viii, 27); if the reference were simply

ποτε έν λόγω κολακείας έγενήθημεν, καθώς οίδατε, ούτε έν

to St Paul, the plurals  $\kappa a \rho \delta l as$  and  $\psi v \chi \dot{a}s$  (ver. 8) would seem wholly inappropriate. The art. before  $\Theta \epsilon \hat{\varphi}$  (Rec.), though well attested [AD<sup>3</sup>EFG KLN<sup>4</sup>], seems due to grammatical correction, and is rightly rejected by Tisch.: it is inserted in brackets by Lachm.

5. Ούτε γάρ κ.τ.λ.] Confirmation of this general character of his and their Apostolic teaching by a special appeal to the experience of his readers; comp. ver. 3. έν λ. κ. έγενήθημεν] 'came we [to share] in;' scarcely 'were we found employed in' (comp. Lünem.), as the more distinct passive meaning cannot safely be maintained : see notes on Eph. iii. 7; on the form, The Greek see note on ch. i. 5. commentators (Chrys., Theoph.) paraphrase it simply by ekolakeúoaµev; this however somewhat falls short of the idiomatic γίγνομαι έν, 'in aliquâ re versor' (Matth. Gr. § 577. 5, Vol. II. p. 1004), and fails to mark the entrance into, and existence in the given thing or condition; see notes on I Tim. ii. 14.

λόγφ κολακείας] 'speech of flattery,' 'sermone adulationis,' Vulg., 'verbo adulationis,' Syr., Copt., 'blanditiis ... in voce,' Æth. (Platt): Xóyos having here its simple and proper meaning of 'speech,' 'teaching' (not coextensive with Heb. דְּבָר,-a use apparently not found in the N. T.), and kolakelas being a gen .- not of quality ('assentatorio,' Beza), nor of origin ('ex adulandi studio profecto,' Schott), but of the substance and contents; comp. 2 Cor. vi. 7, Eph. i. 13, al.; and see Scheuerl. Synt. § 12. 1, p. 182, Hartung, Casus, p. 21. The word κολακεία [possibly connected with Khelew, Pott, Etymol. Forsch. Vol. I. p. 233, or with κόλος, κλάω, in sense of broken-spiritedness, cringing] is a  $d\pi$ . λεγόμ. in the N. T., and is defined in Pseud.-Plat. Def. p. 415 E (Vol. IX. p. 272, ed. Bekk.) as όμιλία ή πρός ήδονήν άνευ τοῦ βελτίστου: comp. Theoph. Charact. 2. It serves here more specifically to illustrate the ἐν δόλφ of ver. 3, and forms a natural transition to the next words, the essence of κολακεία being self-interest; δ δὲ ὅπωs ὠφέλειά τις αὐτῷ γίγνηται εἰς χρήματα καὶ ὅσα διὰ χρημάτων κόλαξ, Aristotle, Ethic. in προφάσει πλεον.] 'in a cloke of covetousness;' 'prætextu specioso quo tegeremus avaritiam,' Beng. The exact meaning of these words is not perfectly clear. Πρόφασιs is not here 'occasio,' Vulg., Clarom., nor 'accusatio,' Hamm., nor even 'species,' Wolf, still less is otiose, Loesn. (Obs. p. 376), but has its simple and usual meaning of 'prætextus' (comp. Copt.; ] the gen.  $\pi\lambda\epsilon_{ov\epsilon\xi}$  is a gen. objecti (comp. Scheuerl. Cyr. 11. 1. 25, πρόφασις μειονεξίαs, and see exx. in Rost u. Palm Lex. s. v. (b), Vol. II. p. 1251. The Apostle and his companions used no λόγos which contained κολακεία, nor any  $\pi \rho \delta \phi a \sigma \iota s$  which was intended to cloke their  $\pi \lambda \epsilon o \nu \epsilon \xi l a$ . On the true meaning of  $\pi\lambda\epsilon_{ov}\epsilon\xi la$ , see notes on Eph. iv. 19, and on its distinction from φιλαργυρία, Trench, Synon. § 24.

6. ούτε ζητούντες κ.τ.λ.] 'neither seeking glory from men;' continued notice on the negative side of the characteristics of his own and his companions' ministry ; jnrouvres being dependent on the preceding  $\epsilon_{\gamma\epsilon\nu\eta\theta\eta}$ - $\mu\epsilon\nu$ , and the clause serving to illustrate où  $\chi$   $\dot{\omega}s \dot{a}\nu\theta\rho$ .  $\dot{a}\rho\dot{e}\sigma\kappa$ ., ver. 4. It is very difficult here to substantiate any real distinction between  $\dot{\epsilon}\xi$  and  $\dot{a}\pi\delta$ . The assertion of Schott and Olsh. that ék refers to the immediate,  $d\pi \partial$  to the more remote origin, is true (see notes on Gal. ii. 16), but here inapplicable: that of Lünem. and Alf.,- 'that ex belongs more to the abstract ground of the  $\delta\delta\xi a$ ,  $d\pi\delta$  to the concrete object from which it was in each case to accrue,' -is artificial and precarious. It would really seem more probable that they are here synonymous (Winer, Gr. § 50. 2, p. 365), and that while in the first clause éx might seem more idiomatic in immediate union with  $\zeta \eta \tau \epsilon \tilde{\nu}$ , the disjunctive clauses into which it is expanded might admit of and be lightened by the change to  $\delta \pi \delta$ . St Paul's love of prepositional variation has often been noticed; comp. Winer, Gr. § 50. 6, p. 372, and notes on Gal. i. I.

δυνάμενοι ἐν βάρει είναι] 'though we could be of weight;' concessive participial clause subordinated to the preceding part. ζητοῦντες: comp. Krüger, Sprachl. § 56. 13. 1, Donalds. Gr. § 621. The meaning of ἐν βάρει εἶναι is somewhat doubtful. Two interpretations deserve consideration: (a) 'oneri esse,' Vulg., Æth. (Copt. baros, uncertain), Bápos retaining its more simple meaning, and referring to the Apostolic right of being maintained by the Churches (Theod.); comp.  $\pi \rho \partial s$ τό μή έπιβαρήσαι, ver. 9, 2 Thess. iii. 8, où kareβápyoa, 2 Cor. xii. 16, and άβαρη ... έμαυτον έτήρησα, 2 Cor. xi. 9: (b) 'in gravitate [honore]esse,' Clarom., and appy. Syr. Jones ] [honorabiles esse; see Schaaf, Lec. s. v.], Bápos having its derivative sense of 'weight,' 'authority;' comp. Diod. Sic. IV. 61, το βάρος της πόλεως (την lσχύν, Suid.), esp. XVI. 8 (where it is associated with  $d\xi l\omega \mu a$ ), and somewhat similarly Polyb. Hist. IV. 32. 7, XXX. 15. I: see esp. Suidas, s.v. Of these (a) is plausible on account of  $\epsilon \pi \beta a \rho$ . ver. q: as however the concessive clause is closely appended to one in which  $\delta\delta\xi a$  is the prevalent notion, and as the reference to  $\eta \pi i \delta \tau \eta s$  serves to enhance the same idea by contrast, it seems more exceptically correct, and more in harmony with the immediate context, to adopt (b); so Chrys.  $\pi o\lambda$ - $\lambda \hat{\eta} s \, d\pi o \lambda a \hat{v} \sigma a \iota \tau \iota \mu \hat{\eta} s$ , and less decidedly Theoph. and Œcum.

ώς Xp. ἀπόστολοι] 'as Christ's Apostles;' the possessive gen. marking with slight emphasis whose ministers they were (see notes on Eph. i. 1, Col. i. 1), and the term ἀπόστολοι receiving its more extended sense (see notes on Gal. i. 1), and including Silvanus and Timothy. De Wette, Koch, al., refer the plural solely to St Paul, but without sufficient reason. Though a reference to the Apostle's coadjutors must not perhaps be strongly pressed in every case where the plural occurs, yet in the present passage the plurals  $\kappa a \rho \delta l a s$  (ver. 4) and  $\psi v \chi \Delta s$  (ver. 8) seem distinctly to favour the wider application.

7. αλλ' έγενήθημεν] Statement, on the positive side, of the behaviour of the Apostle and his helpers, the  $\dot{a}\lambda\lambda\dot{a}$ introducing an antithesis, not merely to the last clause, but to the whole of the preceding verse: they did not seek δόξαν as διδάσκαλοι, but, what was very different (see Klotz, Devar. Vol. II. p. 2), evinced the affection of a parent: ού βάρυ ούδε κόμπον έγον άπεδειξάμεθα, Chrys. ήπιοι] 'gentle:' a ols leyou. in the N.T., here and 2 Tim. ii. 24. The epithet is similarly applied to a father (Hom. Od. 11. 47), to a ruler (Herod. 111. 89), to a god, Dionysus (Eur. Bac. 861), as marking 'animi lenitatem in aliis ferendis' (Tittm.), and pointing to an outward exhibition of an inward  $\pi \rho a \delta$ της' comp. Etym. M., ήπιος' ό έν λόγω πάντα ποιών καὶ μὴ πάθει, ἐκ μεταλήψεως δέ και ό δια λόγου προσηνής και  $\pi \rho \hat{a} os$  (where however the derivation seems too much pressed), see Tittm. Synon. I. p. 140, and notes on 2 Tim. l. c. The reading is doubtful; νήπιοι is most strongly supported [Lachm. with BC1D1FGN1; some mss.; Vulg., Clarom., Copt., Æth. (both), al.], but as a repetition of the N. owing to the somewhat common use of νήπιos in St Paul's Epp., is more probable than that of an omission, and as  $\nu \eta \pi \cos$  mars both the sense and metaphor, we seem justified in retaining ήπιos, with AC2D3EKLN4; great majority of mss.; Sah., Basm., Syr. (both). So Tisch., and the majority of recent editors. έν μέσω ύμων] 'in the midst of you;' scarcely, by an anticipation of the image, 'sicut gallina pullis circumdata,' Beng.,—but, with a hint at the absence of all assumption of authority, 'as one of yourselves,' 'ut æquales idque cum omnibus,' Zanch. ;  $\dot{\omega}s ~ \dot{a}\nu ~ \epsilon t \pi o \tau \tau s ~ \dot{\epsilon}\xi ~ \dot{\nu}\mu \hat{\omega}\nu$ , où  $\chi t ~ \dot{\tau}h\nu ~ \ddot{a}\nu\omega ~ \lambda a\beta \delta\nu \tau \epsilon s ~ \lambda \hat{\eta}\xi \nu$ , Chrys.

ώς έαν τροφός κ.τ.λ.] 'as a nurse (nursing mother) doth cherish her own children ;' the particle is having here not a temporal but simply a comparative force (Klotz, Devar. Vol. II. p. 757) Jo [sicut etiam] Syr., 'tamquam si,' Vulg., Clarom., 'sicut,' Copt., Æth.,-and combining with eav and the pres. subj. in marking the habitude or perhaps rather the continuance of the objectively-possible event; see Winer, Gr. § 42. 3. b, p. 274, and comp. Herm. de Part. av, p. 275, Green, Gr. p. 57 sq. Rec. reads av with AD3(K?)LN; most mss. For exx. of somewhat similar usages of Tpopos, see the list collected by Loesner, Obs. p. 377, and on the meaning of  $\theta d\lambda \pi \epsilon \omega$  [fostering warmth of the breast, comp. Deut. xxii. 6], see Krebs, Obs. p. 345, and notes on Eph. v. 29. The tenderness conveyed in the tà éautis tékva should not be overlooked; την φιλοστοργίαν αύτοῦ δείκνυσιν, Theoph. The present clause must not be marked off by a colon at  $\dot{\nu}\mu\hat{\omega}\nu$  (Lünem.), but regarded both as an illustration of the preceding words, and as the protasis to the following ουτως όμειρόμενοι ύμων εύδοκουμεν, ver. 8.

 δμειρόμενοι ὑμῶν] 'earnestly, affectionately, desiring you,' 'having a fond affection for you;' ἐπιθυμοῦντες, Hesych., Photius (Lex. p. 242). This form, though not found in the current lexicons (Rost u. Palm not excepted), # δοῦναι ὑμῖν οὐ μόνον τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τοῦ Θεοῦ ἀλλὰ καὶ τὰς ἑαυτῶν ψυχὰς διότι ἀγαπητοὶ ἡμῖν ἐγενήθητε.

is supported by all the uncial and more than 30 cursive mss., and rightly adopted instead of inerp. (Rec.) by Lachm., Tisch., and most modern commentators. It is not compounded of ouov and elpeur (Theoph., Phot.). but is either (a) a form of the shorter μείρομαι (comp. δύρομαι, δδόρομαι), Winer, Gr. § 16. 4, p. 92, or (b) a late and perhaps coarsely-strengthened form of the more usual inelpopul, comp. Fritz. 1, on Mark, p. 792. As it seems probable that µelpoµaı (Nicander, Theriaca, 402) is not an independent verb, but only an apocopated form of iµeipoµaı 'metri causa' (see Rost u. Palm, Lex. s.v. µelpop.), it seems safer to adopt (b), and to consider oucloouge as a corrupted and perhaps strengthened form of the more usual verb.

outus ... evor.] 'So ... had we good will;' the  $ov\tau \omega s$  being connected not with the participle but with the finite verb. The verb eudok. is here not present, 'cupimus,' Clarom., but imperf., 'cupide volebamus,' Vulg. (comp. Copt., an-temat), the past tenses being commonly found in the N.T. with the more Attic ev (comp. Lobeck, Phryn. p. 140, 456), not with no as B here, and a few MSS. elsewhere, see ch. iii. I [BN], I Cor. x. 5 [ABC], Col. i. 10 [ADE], al. The verb evoor, is only found in writers after the time of Alexander (see Sturz, de Dial. Maced. p. 167), and appears to be commonly used in N.T. not as a mere equivalent for dokéw (comp. Koch), but as conveying the idea either of the 'propensa voluntas' (Fritz.), or of the free, unconditioned, and gracious will (Luke xii. 32, Gal. i. 15, comp. 1 Thess. iii. I) of the subject; comp. notes on Eph. i. 5, and esp. see Fritz. Rom. x. I, Vol. II. p. 369 sq. For a notice of the constructions of εὐδοκ. in the N.T., see notes on Col. i. 19.

μεταδούναι] 'to impart;' properly and specially connected with  $\tau \delta \epsilon \dot{v} \alpha \gamma \gamma$ . but also by a very intelligible zeugma with ras éaur ŵv ψuxás, the compound verb being in the latter case understood in its simple form; comp. δούναι την ψυχήν, Mark x. 45. The use of μεταδιδόναι with a dat. and acc., though less usual than with a dat. and gen. (Jelf, Gr. § 535), is not without example, especially when the partitive notion is owing to the context inadmissible: see Krüger, Sprachl. § 47. 15. άλλά καί κ.τ.λ.] 'but even our own souls,' 'nostras animas,' Clarom., 'Vulg.; not with any Hebraistic tinge (=נפשותינו) 'nosmet ipsos' (Koppe), nor even merely 'nostras vitas,' but perhaps with a faint reference to the deeper meaning of  $\psi v \chi \eta$ , as pointing to the centre of the personality (Olshaus. Opusc. p. 154, Beck, Seelenl. § 1), our life and soul (Fell), our very existence, and all things pertaining to it. On the plural, see above on ver. 4, and on the use of  $\dot{\epsilon}a\nu\tau\hat{\omega}\nu$  with reference to the first person, Winer, Gr. § 22. 5, p. 136. The force of the strong antithesis où μόνον... άλλά καl is noticed in notes on ch. i. 8. διότι άγαπ. ήμιν έγεν.] 'because ye became very dear (beloved) to us;' surely here with no reference to the Agent by whom they were made so (Alf.), but simply to their having become so, owing to their eager and earnest reception of the Apostolic message; see notes on ch. i. 5. On the pronominal conjunction διότι, here used in its slightly modified sense of δid τοῦτο ὅτι (eo quod), 'quoniam,' Vulg., 'quia,' Clarom., see Fritz. Rom. i. 19, Vol. I. p. 58, but correct the very doubtful statement (endorsed by Koch) that  $\delta\iota\delta\tau\iota$  is there equivalent to  $\gamma\lambda\rho$  or 'nam,' see Meyer in loc. The reading of Rec.  $\gamma\epsilon\gamma\epsilon\eta\sigma\sigma\theta\epsilon$  is only supported by K; mss.; and may have been a correction to harmonize the clause with the supposed present  $\epsilon\iota\delta\sigma\kappa$ .

9. μνημονεύετε γάρ] 'For ye remember;' confirmation of the main declaration of ver. 8, μεταδοῦναι...τàs έαυτῶν ψυχάs, not of the more remote έγενήθημεν ήπιοι (comp. Olsh.), still less of the subordinate causal member διότι κ.τ.λ. (Lünem.; comp. Just., Alf.),-a doubtful reference of yap appy. suggested by limiting the term  $\psi v \chi \dot{a} s$  unduly, and still more by finding no allusion in the present verse to actual dangers. This however is not necessary: the Apostle and his followers practically gave up their 'existence' to their converts, when they spent night and day in toil rather than be a burden to any of them. Mynu. is of course the indic. pres. On µvn- $\mu o\nu$ , with the accus, see notes on ch. i. 3, and esp. on 2 Tim. ii. 8. Winer, Gr. § 19. 5, p. 117. The words κόποs and  $\mu \delta \chi \theta os$  are again found connected in 2 Thess. iii. 8 and 2 Cor. xi. 27: the former perhaps marks the toil on the side of the suffering it involves (see notes on I Tim. iv. 10), the latter, as its derivation seems to suggest [connected with µbyis, and perhaps allied to µéyas, see Pott, Etym. Forsch. Vol. I. p. 283], on the side of the magnitude of the obstacles it has to overcome: the connexion of  $\mu\delta\chi\theta$ os with νυκτός και ήμ. έργαζ.] 'working night and day;' modal participial clause defining the circumstances under which the κήρυγμα was delivered. On the secondary predication of time vuktos kal nuépas, and on the strict grammatical force of the gen. as pointing to some indefinite point of the space of time expressed by the subst. (contrast 2 Thess. iii. 8, Rec., Tisch.), see notes on I Tim. v. 5. There is perhaps some emphasis in the collocation of the whole expression, but appy. none in the fact of vukto's preceding hutpas (Alf.), as St Paul always adopts this order; see further on I Tim. l. c., and comp. Lobeck, Paralipom. p. 62 sq.

The addition of  $\gamma d\rho$  after  $\nu\nu\kappa\tau\deltas$  [Rec. with D<sup>3</sup>EKL; mss.; Chrys. (text), Theod.], though partially defended by De W., seems to have been an insertion 'nexus causâ,' and is rightly rejected by most modern editors.

έργαζόμενοι has here a special reference to the manual labour (Schott) of the Apostle and his associates; comp. Acts xviii. 3. In 1 Cor. iv. 12 (comp. Eph. iv. 28) the verb is enhanced by the addition  $\tau a \hat{s} t \delta t a s \chi \epsilon \rho \sigma t \nu$ .

Gr. § 578. b. It is singular that Winer (Gr. § 31. 5, p. 191, ed. 6) should have been induced merely by the plural following to adopt the less probable translation 'unter,' especially as in ed. 5 (p. 241) he has added the more exact rendering 'Botschaft an die Völker gebracht;' comp. ώς όσίως κ.τ.λ.] 'how holily and righteously and blamelessly we behaved to you that believe;' characteristics of the behaviour of the Apostle and his associates, the adverbs όσίως κ.τ.λ. not being merely adjectival, but serving as secondary predicates (Donalds. Gr. § 436 sq.) to define the form and manner of the 'comparatum esse' involved in  $\epsilon \gamma \epsilon \nu \eta \theta \eta \mu \epsilon \nu$ : see Winer, Gr. § 54. 2, p. 341, Krüger, Sprachl. § 62. 2. 3. The adverbs are grouped together somewhat cumulatively, to express both on the positive and negative side the complete faithfulness of the ministry. The ordinary distinction between the two former  $(\pi \epsilon \rho i \ \mu \epsilon \nu \ d\nu \theta \rho \omega \pi o \nu s \ \tau a$ προσήκοντα πράττων δίκαι' άν πράττοι, περί δέ Θεούs όσια, Plato, Gorg. p. 507 B; comp. Chariton, I. 10), urged here with some plausibility (Theoph., Alf., al.) on account of the preceding  $\dot{\nu}\mu\epsilon\hat{\imath}s$  $\kappa \alpha i \delta \Theta \epsilon \delta s$ , is still always precarious in the N.T.; see notes on Eph. iv. 24, Tit. i. 8. Perhaps it is safer to say that dolws and dikalws form on the positive side a compound idea of holy purity and righteousness whether towards God or towards men, while άμέμπτωs (see Phil. ii. 15, iii. 6) gives on the negative side the idea of general blamelessness in both aspects and relations. To refer  $d\mu\ell\mu\pi\tau\omega$ s to Paul and his companions ('respectu sui ipsorum,' Beng.), or to regard it as merely the negative reiteration of  $\delta_{i}$ ralws in ref. to men (Olsh.), seems too restrictive; comp. Luke i. 6.

Winer, Gr. § 31. 3. b, p. 245 (ed. 5,—omitted in ed. 6). This however seems very doubtful; the Apostle would scarcely have appealed to God in ref. to the judgment of the Thessalonians; nor would an allusion to their estimate of a former line of conduct have been so pertinent as one to their consciousness that they were the interested objects of it. The addition  $\tau o s \pi \iota \sigma \tau$ . is not otiose (Jowett), nor suggestive of different relations with unbelievers (comp. Theoph.), but enhances the appeal to the conduct displayed towards the Thess., by showing that their spiritual state was such as would naturally evoke it.

11. καθάπερ οίδατε] 'even as ye know;' confirmatory appeal to the individual experience of his hearers; the general δσιότης και δικαιοσύνη και άμεμ- $\phi$  a of the Apostle and his companions was verified by its strict accordance  $(\kappa \alpha \theta \dot{\alpha} \pi \epsilon \rho)$  with what was observable in special cases. The genuine and expressive form  $\kappa a \theta d \pi \epsilon \rho$  ( $\kappa a \theta d a$  marking the comparison,  $\pi\epsilon\rho$  the latitude of the application, 'ambitum rei majorem vel quamvis maximum,' Klotz, Devar. Vol. II. p. 722) is only used in the N. T. in St Paul's Epp. (II times), and in Hebrews (ch. iv. 2, v. 4 Rec.), the later  $\kappa \alpha \theta \omega s$  (see notes on Gal. iii. 6) being the greatly predominant form. The simple  $\kappa a \theta d$  only occurs once, Matth. xxvii. 10. ws Eva EKAGTOV] ' how as regards each one of you,' 'unumquemque, nemine omisso,' Schott; the ws referring to a finite verb that has been omitted (see below), and the accus. being governed by the participles, and put prominently forward to mark the individualizing reference of the acts; BaBal, iv Togovitw πλήθει μηδένα παραλιπεῖν, Chrys. The collective vµas follows, as serving still more clearly to define that all were included: it is thus not so much a mere pleonastic repetition of the pronoun (Col. ii. 13, comp. Bernhardy, Synt. p. 275), as a defining and supplementary accus. somewhat allied to the use of that case in the  $\sigma \chi \hat{\eta} \mu \alpha \kappa a \theta'$ ölor kal  $\mu \epsilon \rho os$ , Jelf, Gr. § 584.

ώs πατήρ] Appropriate change from the image of a nursing-mother (ver. 7) to that of a father; the reference not being here to the tenderness of the love, but to its manifestation in instruction and education. The remark of Theoph. (suggested by Chrys.), avw μέν οῦν τροφῷ ἐαυτόν ἀπείκασε νῦν δέ πατρί την άγάπην δεικνύων και την προστασίαν, is thus not wholly appropriate. παρακαλ. ύμας και παραμυθ.] 'exhorting you and encouraging you;' more exact specification of the behaviour previously described. The participles are certainly not directly (Copt.), nor even indirectly (by an assumed omission of  $\eta \mu \epsilon \nu$ , Beza, al.) equivalent to finite verbs, but are either (a) dependent on  $\epsilon \gamma \epsilon \nu \eta \theta \eta \mu \epsilon \nu$ supplied from the preceding clause (Lünem., Alf.), or (b) are used avako- $\lambda o \dot{\theta} \omega s$ , as modal clauses to a finite verb  $(=\dot{\epsilon}\gamma\epsilon\nu\dot{\eta}\theta$ .  $\dot{\nu}\mu\hat{\nu})$  that has been omitted, but is readily suggested by the context; 'ye know how we did so, exhorting you, &c.;' so appy. Theod., ταῦτα δὲ ἐποίουν [ἐγὼ] προτρέπων  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda.$ , and probably Goth., which simply retains the participles. Between (a) and (b) the difference is practically not great; in the former case the participles form part of the primary, in the latter of the modal and secondary predication: (b) however seems preferable, both from the special consideration that thus the secondary predications of manner in ver. 10 find a parallelism in ver. 11, and from the general consideration that these participial anacolutha are common in St Paul's Epp.: comp. 2 Cor. vii. 5, and μαρτυρόμενοι είς τὸ περιπατεῖν ὑμᾶς ἀξίως τοῦ Θεοῦ τοῦ καλοῦντος ὑμᾶς εἰς τὴν ἑαυτοῦ βασιλείαν καὶ δόξαν.

Winer, Gr. § 45. 6, p. 313. The verb  $\pi a \rho a \mu u \theta$ . seems here to imply not so much direct 'consolation' (John xi. 19, 31), Vulg., comp. Syr. (2000) [loquentes in corde vestro], Copt., Æth., as 'encouragement,' see ch. v. 14, yet not specially to meet dangers bravely (Œcum.), but, as the context suggests,—to perform generally their duties as Christians.

12. μαρτυρόμενοι] ' charging,' 'conjuring,' 'quasi testibus adhibitis' (comp. Eph. iv. 17),-not however  $=\delta_{ia\mu a \rho \tau \nu \rho \delta \mu}$  (De Wette, Lünem.), which is obviously a stronger form; see notes on I Tim. v. 12. This sense of  $\mu a \rho \tau v \rho$ . is abundantly confirmed by the use of the verb not only in later (Polyb. Hist. XIII. 8. 6), but even in earlier writers, e.g. Thucyd. VI. 80, δεόμεθα δέ και μαρτυρόμεθα, and VIII. 53. μαρτυρομένων και έπιθειαζόντων (Goëll.),-and is similar to though, as the context shows, not perfectly identical with (Koch) its use in Gal. v. 3, Eph. iv. 17, where it approaches more nearly to μαρτυρούμαι; see notes in locc. The reading is slightly doubtful: Rec., Lachm., read µaptuρούμ. with D1FG; most mss.; Theod., Theoph., al., but as the external evidence in favour of μαρτυρόμ. [BD<sup>2</sup> (appy.) D<sup>3</sup>E (appy.) KLN; 30 mss.; Chrys., Œc.: A omits kal µapr., and C is deficient] is of superior weight, and as maptupeîobai is always used passively in the New Test., we adopt μαρτυρόμ. with Tisch. and the majority of modern critics; see Rinck, Lucubr. εls τό κ.τ.λ.] ' that Crit. p. 91. ye should walk worthy,' Col. i. 10; dependent on the preceding participles, and indicating not merely the subject (Lünem.) or direction (Alf.), but, as els  $\tau \delta$  with the infin. nearly always indicates, the purpose of the foregoing exhortation and appeal; comp. Chrys., who paraphrases by Iva with the subj., and contrast Theod. who paraphrases with a simple infin. The form  $\epsilon ls \tau \delta$ with the infin. is commonly used by St Paul simply to denote the purpose (comp. Winer, Gr. § 44. 6, p. 295, Meyer, on Rom. i. 20, note), and probably in no instance is simply indicative of result (ecbatic); still, as perhaps in the present case, there appear to be several passages in which the purpose is so far blended with the subject of the prayer, entreaty, dc. or the issues of the action, that it may not be improper to recognise a secondary and weakened force in ref. to purpose, analogous to that in the parallel use of iva; comp. notes on Eph. i. 17.

The present  $\pi\epsilon\rho\imath\pi a\tau\epsilon\hat{\nu}$  is rightly adopted instead of the aor.  $\pi\epsilon\rho\imath\pi a\tau\hat{\eta}$ - $\sigma a\iota$  (Rec.) by most modern editors on preponderant uncial authority [ABD<sup>1</sup> FGN; many mss.: C is deficient].

τοῦ καλοῦντος] 'who is calling;' not καλέσαντος, as in Gal. i. 6, and here in AN and 8 mss.: the calling was still continuing as relating to something which in its fullest realization was future. It has been before observed that in the Epistles the gracious work of calling is always ascribed to the Father; comp. notes on Gal. l. c., Reuss, Théol. Chrét. IV. 15, p. 144 sq., Usteri, Lehrb. II. 2. 3, p. 269 sq. On the 'vocatio externa' and 'interna,' see the good distinctions of Jackson, Creed, XII. 7. 1, 2.

βασιλείαν και δόξαν] 'kingdom and glory;' not a εν δια δυοΐν for βασιλείαν

We thank God that ye received our preaching as the word of God. Ye suffered from your own people as we did from the Jews.

13.  $\Delta\iota\dot{a} \tau o\hat{v}\tau o]$  So Rec. with DEFGKL; appy. all mss.; Syr., Vulg., Clarom., Goth., Æth. (both); Chrys., Theod., Theoph., Œcum. (De W., Lünem., Wordsw.). Tisch. and Lachm. prefix kal with ABN; Copt., Syr.-Phil.; Theod. (ms. B), Ambrosiaster (Alf.). The reading is thus very doubtful, as the addition of  $\aleph$  (C is here deficient) must justly be considered of great weight. I do not however at present reverse the reading of ed. 1, 2, till the peculiarities of  $\aleph$  (which is of very unequal weight in different portions of the N. T.) are more fully known to us; especially as it is by no means unreasonable to suppose that the kal was prefixed to help out the difficulty of connexion.

ένδοξον (Olsh.), but, as all the Vv. rightly maintain (Syr., Copt., Æth., even repeat the pronoun), two separate substantives, the common article being accounted for by the inserted genitive ; see Winer, Gr. § 19. 4. d, p. 116. The Basilela Tov Ocov is the kingdom of His Son, the Basilela Tŵr ouparŵr (Chrys.), of which even while here on earth the true Christian is a subject, but the full privileges and blessedness of which are to be enjoyed hereafter; comp. 13. Aid  $\tau \circ \tilde{\upsilon} \tau \circ ]$  'For this cause;' as we have displayed this zeal and earnestness, we thank God that ye received our message in an accordant spirit: see note on ver. I. The exact reference of these words is somewhat doubtful. Schott and others refer the words to the 'effectum admonitionis' implied in  $\epsilon ls \ \tau \partial \ \pi \epsilon \rho \iota \pi$ .  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . (comp. Jowett); De W., al., to the purpose and object of the preaching which the same words seem to imply, but thus introduce a greater or less amount of tautology which it seems impossible to explain away. It would seem then. as Lünem. correctly observes, that we can only logically refer them (a) to the specific declaration involved in the clause immediately preceding, scil. öre καλεί ύμας ό Θεός είς κ.τ.λ. Olsh., Lünem., Alf.; or (b) to the general subject of the preceding verses,-the earnestness and zeal of the Apostle and his associates. Of these (a) deserves consideration, but is open to the grave objection that thus did rouro is made to refer to a mere appended clause rather than, as usual, to the tenor of the whole preceding sentence. We therefore, it would seem with the Greek expositors, adopt (b); our Egrup είπειν ότι ήμεις μέν πάντα αμέμπτως πράττομεν ύμεις δε ανάξια της ημετέρας άναστροφής έποιήσατε, Chrys.

καl ήμεῖς] 'we also,' not, as Alf. and Lünem., 'we as well as πάντες of πιστεύοντες' (ch. i. 7),—a reference far too remote,—but 'we as well as you who have so much to be thankful for:' the κal involving some degree of contrast (see notes on Phil. iv. 12), and delicately marking the reciprocity of the feeling between of περί τόν Παῦλον and the twice repeated ὑμεῖs in the preceding verse; see esp. notes on Eph. i. 15. De W. and Koch (so also Auth.) τῷ Θεῷ ἀδιαλείπτως, ὅτι παραλαβόντες λόγον ἀκοῆς παρ' ἡμῶν τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐδέξασθε οὐ λόγον ἀνθρώπων refer kal to  $\delta i \delta \tau o \delta \tau o, -a$  connexion decidedly at variance with the usage of the particle in demonstrative clauses, but involving a less error than the counter-assertion of Lünem., that we should then expect  $\delta i \delta \kappa a (\tau o \delta \tau \sigma)$ : such collocations are very rare; see notes on Phil. iv. 3, and comp. Hartung, Partik. kal, 4. 3, Vol. I. p. 143.

εὐχαριστοῦμεν τῷ Θεφ] 'we give thanks to God.' On the meaning and usages of εἰχαρ. see notes on Phil. i. 3, and esp. on Col. i. 12.

öτι παραλαβόντες] ' that when ye received ;' objective sentence (Donalds. Gr. § 584 sq.) defining the matter and grounds of the eixapioria. The participle is here temporal, and specifies the more external act that was either contemporaneous with, or rather immediately prior to the more internal  $\epsilon \delta \epsilon \epsilon a \sigma \theta \epsilon$ ; comp. notes on Eph. iv. 8. The distinction between  $\pi a \rho a \lambda a \mu \beta d \nu \epsilon \nu$ and  $\delta \epsilon \chi \epsilon \sigma \theta \alpha \iota$  stated by Lünem. and Koch, viz. that  $\pi a \rho a \lambda a \mu \beta a \nu \epsilon \nu$  points rather to an objective (Gal. i. 12, see notes), δέχεσθαι to a subjective reception (2 Cor. viii. 17), seems substantially correct, but must be applied with caution; see notes on Col. ii. 6. λόγον dκons] 'the word of hearing;' i. e. 'the word which was heard,' or 'the word of preaching,' anon being used in its passive sense which prevails in the N.T. (see notes on Gal. iii. 2; comp. Heb. iv. 2, and the Heb. קוֹל שׁמוּעָה, Jer. x. 22, φωνή ἀκοής, LXX.), and the gen. being that of apposition or identity; Winer, Gr. § 59. 8, p. 470, Scheuerl. Synt. § 12. 1, p. 82, 83. The gen. akons is probably here subjoined to  $\lambda \delta \gamma \sigma s$  to introduce a slight contrast between the λόγοs in its first state as heard by the ear and the same  $\lambda \delta \gamma \sigma \sigma$  in its subsequent state as ἐνεργούμενοs in the hearts of believers; comp. Rom. x. 17.

παρ' ήμών thus naturally belongs to παραλαβόντες (ch. iv. I, 2 Thess. iii. 6, comp. Gal. i. 12), from which it is only separated by the somewhat emphatic object-accusative; so Vulg., Syr., Copt., Goth. (Æth. omits παρ'  $\dot{\eta}\mu\hat{\omega}\nu$ ), (Ecum., and a few modern commentators. The construction adopted by the majority of expositors, and perhaps Clarom., Syr.-Phil., akons παρ' ήμῶν is defensible,-but harsh and unnatural, and probably only suggested by the unusual but significant position of the following TOU Ocou. On the force of  $\pi a \rho \dot{a}$  as denoting the more immediate source, see notes on Gal. i. 12. and esp. Schulz, Abendm. p. 218 sq.

τοῦ Θεοῦ] ' of God,' sc. 'which cometh from God;' Θεοῦ not being a gen. objecti ('de Deo,' Grot.), nor the possessive gen. ('belonging to,' Alf. I), but a gen. of the author (De Wette, 'coming from,' Alf. 2), or even more simply of the source from which the λόγοs ἀκοήs really and primarily came ; see notes on ch. i. 6. The unusually placed Tov Ocov seems added correctively, the words being appended almost 'extra structuram,' to mark that though the  $\dot{\eta}\mu\epsilon\hat{i}s$  were the immediate human source of the akon its real and proper source was divine. I hand où loyov avop.] 'not the word of men,' i.e. which cometh from them, and of which they are the true source; see above. 15. τῶν καὶ τὸν Κύρ. κ.τ.λ.] 'who slew both the Lord Jesus and, &c..' warning notice of the true character of the unbelieving Jews, suggested probably by recent experiences; comp. Acts xvii. 5, 13, xviii. 6. The particle kal is not ascensive, 'qui ipsum Dominum occiderunt,' Clarom., nor connected with  $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu$  (Lünem.),—a most questionable connexion, as  $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu$  properly considered has no relatival force. -but simply correlative to the following kal, 'et Dominum...et prophetas' (Vulg.; Copt. omits first kal), and introductory of the first of two similar and co-ordinate members; see Winer, Gr. § 53. 4, p. 389, and notes on I Tim. The position of the Kúplov iv. 10. is obviously emphatic, and serves more forcibly to evince the heinous nature και τούς προφήτας] of their sin. 'and the prophets;' clearly governed by the preceding anortew. (Chrys., Theoph., (Ecum.), not by the succeeding ἐκδιωξάντων (De W., Koch). The counter-argument that all the prophets were not killed is of little weight, as 'mutatis mutandis' it can be nearly as strongly urged against the connexion with exdiwEdurwv. The addition of this second member serves indirectly to weaken the force of the plea of ignorance (comp. Acts iii. 17): άλλ' ήγνόησαν αὐτὸν ἴσως. Μάλιστα μέν οῦν ήδεσαν. Τί δαί; ούχι και τούς ίδίους προφήτας απέκτειναν; Chrys.

There is here a variety of reading:  $l\delta lows$  is inserted before  $\pi\rho o\phi$ . by Rec. with D<sup>2</sup>D<sup>3</sup>E<sup>2</sup>KL; appy. Syr., Goth., al.; Chrys., Theod., al., but is not found in ABD<sup>1</sup>E<sup>1</sup>FGN; 7 mss.; Vulg., Clarom., Copt., Orig. (2), Tertull. (who ascribes the insertion to Marcion); C is deficient. It was perhaps suggested by the preceding  $l\delta l\omega\nu$  in ver. 14. It is thus rightly omitted by nearly all modern editors.

but the Apostles generally. The force of the compound exδιώκειν is somewhat doubtful: ex does not seem otiose (De W.), nor even simply intensive (Lünem.), but has appy. a semilocal reference, 'qui persequendo ejecerunt,' Beng., Alf.; comp. Luke xi. 40, and consider Acts xviii. 6. This meaning of ekolukeuv does not seem to have been clearly recognised either by Chrys., al., or any of the best Vv., but is somewhat strongly supported by the prevailing use of the verb in the LXX.; see Deut. vi. 10, 1 Chron. viii. 13, xii. 15, Joel ii. 20, al. For muas Steph. 1550 (not Rec.) reads ύμαs probably by an error.

Θεώ μη apeor.] 'do not please God;' not 'placere non quærentium,' Beng. nor aoristic 'non placuerunt,' Clarom., but, with the proper force of the tense, 'are not pleasing,' are pursuing a course displeasing to,-the present marking the result of a regular and continuing course of behaviour; comp. Winer, Gr. § 45. I, p. 304. The µh here does not seem to imply so much as 'Deo placere non curantium,' Alf., but is simply used to mark the aspects under which their conduct caused them to be presented to the reader; comp. Winer, Gr. § 55. 5, p. 429, and esp. Gayler, de Part. Neg. cap. IX. p. 275 sq. In estimating the force of  $\mu\dot{\eta}$  with a participle in the N.T. two things should always be borne in mind, (1) that  $\mu\eta$  with the participle is so decidedly the prevailing combination, that while the force of ov with the part. will commonly admit of being pressed, that of  $\mu\eta$  will not; see Green, Gr. p. 122; (2) that it is not correct always to find in the  $\mu\eta$  (as Alf. here) a reference to the feelings or views of the subject connected with the participle (comp. notes on Gal. iv. 8), but that it sometimes refers to the aspect in which the facts are presented by the writer, and regarded by the reader; see esp. Winer, Gr. l. c., and Herm. Viger, No. 267. πάσιν άνθρ. evavrlwy ' contrary to all men ;' scil. 'quia saluti generis humani per invidiam et malitiam obsistebant,' Est. 2, and in effect Chrys. and the Greek commentators. The usual reference of the  $\tau \partial$  évavtlov to the 'adversus omnes alios hostile odium' entertained by Jews, Tacit. Hist. v. 5 (Olsh., De W., Jowett), has been recently called in question by Lünem., and satisfactorily refuted, (1) on the ground that this exclusiveness, which had originally a monotheistic reference, would hardly have received from the Apostle such unqualified censure; (2) on the grammatical principle that the causal participle κωλυόντων does not add any new fact, but explains the meaning of what is appy. 'generaliter dictum' in the preceding words; so also Schott and Alford.

16. κωλυόντων] 'seeing they hinder ;' not ( [qui prohibent] Syr., comp. De W., but ( ( ) ) )[dum prohibent] Syr.-Phil., 'prohibentes,' Vulg., the participle being anarthrous, and supplying the causal explanation of the foregoing assertion; comp. Donalds. Gr. § 492 sq. There is no idea of 'conatus' (De W.) involved in κωλυώντων; the present simply states what they were actually doing, as far as circumstances permitted them; comp. Lünem.

fiant,' Menoch. ap. Pol. Syn., but simply, 'gentibus loqui ut serventur,' Beza,  $-\lambda a \lambda \hat{\eta} \sigma a \iota$  preserving its ordinary meaning, and appy. coalescing with ίνα  $\sigma \omega \theta \hat{\omega} \sigma w$  to form an emphatic periphrasis of evaryexi(ceobar (Olsh.). "Iva will perhaps thus have a somewhat weakened force (see notes on Eph. i. . 17), and the final sentence will to some extent merge into the objective. On the nature of these forms of sentence, see Donalds. Gr. § 584 sq. and είς το άναπληρ. 605 sq.  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ ] ' in order to fill up (the measure of) their sins;' final clause appended, not merely to  $\kappa \omega \lambda \upsilon \delta \nu \tau \omega \nu$ , but to the whole preceding verse, and marking with the full force of  $\epsilon is \tau \delta$  (see notes on ver. 12) the purpose contemplated in their course of action. This purpose, viewed grammatically, must be ascribed to the Jews, -whether as conscious and wilful  $(\sigma \kappa \sigma \pi \hat{\varphi} \tau o \hat{v} \dot{a} \mu a \rho$ τάνειν ἐποίουν, Œcum.), or as blinded and unconscious agents (De W.): considered however theologically, it mainly refers to the eternal purpose of God which unfolded itself in this wilful and at last judicial blindness on the part of His chosen people; comp. Olsh. and Lünem. in loc. The compound  $d\nu a\pi\lambda$ . is not synonymous with  $\pi\lambda\eta\rho o\hat{\nu}\nu$ , but marks the existence of a partial rather than an entire vacuum; the Jews were always blind and stubborn, but when they slew their Lord and drove forth His Apostles they filled up (supplebant) the measure of their iniquities; see notes on Phil. ii. 30, and Winer, de Verb. Comp. III. p. 11 sq.

[omni tempore] Syr., not only in the times before Christ  $(\dot{\epsilon}\pi i \ \tau \hat{\omega}\nu \ \pi\rho o\phi \eta$ - $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu$ ), but when He came, and after He left them (έπι των αποστόλων). There is no exceptical necessity for assuming that  $\pi d\nu \tau \sigma \tau \epsilon = \pi a \nu \tau \epsilon \lambda \hat{\omega} s$ (Bretschn., Olsh.): the Jews were always in all periods of their history acting in a manner that tended to fill up the continually diminishing vacuum. έφθασεν δè èπ' aŭτoús] ' But there is come upon them;' contrast between their course of evil and its sequel of punishment. It is scarcely necessary to say that  $\delta \hat{\epsilon}$  is not equivalent to  $\gamma d\rho$ ('enim,' Vulg.), but with its usual and proper force (\_\_\_, Syr., 'autem,' Clarom.) marks the antithesis between the procedure and its issue; 'alii rei aliam adjicit, ut tamen ubivis quædam oppositio declaretur,' Klotz, Devar. Vol. II. p. 362. On the meaning of the verb  $\phi \theta \dot{a} \nu \epsilon \nu$  in later Greek (not 'prævenit,' Clarom., Vulg. [Amiat.], but \_\_\_\_\_ [advenit] Syr., and with els 'pervenit,' Vulg.), see notes on Phil. iii. 16, and Fritz. Rom. ix. 31, Vol. II. pp. 356, 357. The aorist  $\xi \phi \theta a \sigma \epsilon \nu$  'came' (but see notes to Transl.) is certainly not equivalent either to a present (Grot.) or to a future (Schott), but marks the event as an historical fact that belongs to the past, without however further specifying 'quam late pateat id quod actum est;' see esp. Fritz. de Aor. Vi, p. 17. The perfect Eplaker [Lachm. (non marg.) with BD1] was appy. an interpr. suggested by a supposed inappropriateness in the use of the aorist. The perf. contemplates an endurance in the present, the aorist leaves this fact unnoticed but does not exclude it.

ή όργή] 'the anger,' scil.  $\tau$ οῦ Θεοῦ, which is actually added in DEFG; I endeavoured to see  $H\mu\epsilon\hat{i}s\delta\hat{\epsilon}, \hat{a}\delta\epsilon\lambda\phio\hat{i}, \hat{a}\pi\rho\rho\phi a\nu i\sigma\theta\hat{\epsilon}\nu\tau\epsilon s$  17 you, but was hindered by Satan. Ye truly are our crown and glory.

Vulg., Clarom., Goth.; comp. Rom. v. o. The article either marks the όργη as προωρισμένη και προφητευο- $\mu \epsilon \nu \eta$  (Chrys. 2, 3), or perhaps rather as operloutern (Chrys. 1, Ecum.), or even simply έρχομένη; comp. ch. i. 10. els rélos] 'to the end,' 'to the uttermost;' 'usque ad finem,' Clarom.; in close connexion with  $\xi \phi \theta a \sigma \epsilon \nu$ , not with dorn. - a construction that would certainly require the insertion of the article. Els rélos is not used adverbially (Jowett, -comp. Job xx. 7), whether in the sense of 'postremo' (Wahl, comp. Beng. 'tandem') or ' penitus' (Homb.), but, in accordance with the ordinary construct. of  $\phi \theta d\nu \epsilon \nu$  $\epsilon$  is  $\tau$  i, marks the issue to which the  $\delta \rho \gamma \eta$  had arrived : it had reached its extreme bound, and would at once pass into inflictive judgments. As the cup of the aµapría had been gradually filling, so had the measures of the divine doyn. It can scarcely be doubted that in these words the Apostle is pointing prophetically to the misery and destruction which in less than fifteen years came upon the whole Jewish nation. To regard the present clause as specifying what had already taken place (Baur, Paulus, p. 483) is wholly inconsistent with the context: see Lünem. in loc., who has well refuted the arguments urged by Baur, l. c. against the genuineness of the Ep., derived from this and the preceding verses.

17. "Husîs  $\delta \epsilon$ ] 'But we;' return after the digression to the subjects and leading thought of ver. 13, the  $\delta \epsilon$  not being simply resumptive, but reintroducing the Apostle and his associates with contrasted reference to the Jewish persecutors just alluded to: comp. the remarks on this particle in notes on

Gal. iii. 8. άπορφανισθέντες άφ' ύμων] 'bereaved in our separation from you,' 'desolati a vobis,' Vulg., [oppavol a vobis] Syr., temporal not concessive (Theod.) use of the participle, marking an action prior to that of the finite verb; comp. Winer, Gr. § 45. 6. b, p. 315. In this expressive compound the  $d\pi d$ (reiterated before the pronoun) serves to mark the idea of separation (Winer, Gr. § 47, p. 331), and the term oppavós,  $\delta \rho \phi \alpha \nu i \zeta \omega$ , the feeling of desolation and bereavement which the separation involved. The further idea  $\pi a l \delta \omega v$ πατέρας ζητούντων, Chrys. (Æsch. Choëph. 249), or conversely, 'orbati ut parentes liberis absentibus,' Beng., is not necessarily involved in the term, as oppavos [cognate with 'orbus,' and perhaps derived from Sanscr. rabh, the radical idea of which is 'seizing,' &c. ; see Pott, Etym. Forsch. Vol. I. p. 250] is not unfrequently used with some latitude of reference; comp. Pind. Isthm. VII. 16, δρφανόν έτάρων, Plato, Republ. VI. p. 495 C, δρφανήν ξυγγενών, and the good collection of exx, in Rost u. Palm, Lex. s. v. Vol. II, p. 542. The idea of separation from those we love seems however to be always involved in the term, when used in reference to persons; comp. Plato.

μάτων ὀρφανόν. πρὸς καιρὸν ¨ωρας] 'for the season of an hour;' more emphatic expression than the usual πρὸς ὥραν (2 Cor. vii. 8, Gal. ii. 5, Philem. 15), or the less defined πρὸς καιρόν (Luke viii. 13, 1 Cor. vii. 5), serving to mark the shortness of the time that elapsed between the bereavement and the longing expectation of return; comp. the Latin 'hora περισσοτ. έσπουδ.] ' were the more abundantly zealous,' 'eo amplius [magis] studuimus,' Beza,-viz. because our heart was with you, and our longing consequently greater. The exact reference of the comparative is somewhat doubtful. It is certainly not merely an intensified positive (Olsh., Just. 2, comp. Goth.); for though frequently used by St Paul (2 Cor. i. 12, ii. 4, vii. 13, 15, xi. 23, xii. 15, Gal. i. 14, Phil. i. 14; comp. Heb. ii. 1, xiii. 19), it has appy. in every case its proper comparative force; see Winer, Gr. § 35. 4, p. 217. The most plausible ref. is not to the mere fact of the  $a\pi o \rho \phi a \nu i \sigma \mu \delta s$  (Winer, l.c.), nor to the briefness of the time as suggestive of a less obliterated remembrance (Lünem., comp. Alf., Jowett), still less to the comparative length of it  $(\pi\epsilon\rho\iota\sigma\sigma\sigma\tau.$ ή ώς είκος ήν τους πρός ώραν άπολει $\phi \theta \epsilon \nu \tau as$ , Theoph., comp. Chrys.), but to the fact that the separation was προσώπω ου καρδία; 'quo magis corde præsens vobiscum fui, hoc abundantius faciem vestram videre studui,' Musc. The form  $\pi \epsilon \rho \iota \sigma \sigma \sigma \tau \epsilon \rho \omega s$  ( $\pi \epsilon \rho \iota \sigma$ σότερον, Mark vii. 36, I Cor. xv. 10, Heb. vi. 17, vii. 15 only) is appy. rare in classical Greek, comp. however Isocr. p. 35 E. τό πρόσωπον υμών ibeiv] 'to see your face;' not 'exquisite positum' for vuâs ideîv, with reference to the preceding  $\pi \rho o \sigma \dot{\omega}$ - $\pi \varphi$  (Schott, Jowett), but appy. an expressive Hebraistic periphrasis (ראוֹת) את־פני), marking the personal faceto-face nature of the meeting; comp. ch. iii. 10, Col. ii. 1.

ἐν πολλ $\hat{\mathbf{\eta}}$  ἐπιθ.] 'with great desire;' appended clause specifying the ethical sphere in which the σπουδ $\hat{\boldsymbol{\eta}}$  was evinced ('in multo desiderio,' Clarom., Copt., Goth.), or perhaps more simply the concomitant feeling ('cum multo desiderio,' Vulg., comp. Arm.) with which it was associated; see notes on Col. iv. 2, and comp. above on ver. 3. 'Eπιθ. is seldom in the N. T. used as here in a good sense: see Trench, Synon. Part II. § 37.

18. διότι] 'On which account,' seil. of our longing to come and see you. The particle διότι is here used in a sense little different from διό (comp. Lat. 'quare'), and stands at the beginning of the period,—a usage in which Jowett and Lachm. appear to have felt a difficulty, as they place only a comma after iπιθυμla. Lachm. and Tisch. ternal authority for διό (Rec., De W., Tisch. ed. 2)-viz. (D2?)D3EKL; great majority of mss.; Chrys., Theod., Dam., al. (C is deficient) is not strong, and, owing to the unusual position of  $\delta_{i\delta\tau_{i}}$ , the temptation to correct was very great. ήθελήσαμεν] 'we wished,' 'would fain;' not ήβουλήθηµev, which would have expressed 'ipsam animi propensionem' (Tittm.) with a greater force than would be consistent with the context; comp. Philem. 13, 14. On the distinction between  $\theta \notin \lambda \omega$  and  $\beta o \vartheta \lambda \rho \mu a \iota$ , see notes on I Tim. v. 14, and Donalds. Cratyl. § 463, but in applying it in St Paul's Epp. observe that  $\theta \in \lambda \omega$  is used 7 times to βούλομαι once. This perhaps suggests that we may commonly with safety press the latter, but must be cautious with regard to the former.

έγώ μέν Παῦλος] 'even I Paul,' 'ipse ego Paulus,' Æth. The µèv 'solitarium' serves to enhance the distinctive use of the personal pronoun (Hartung, Partik. µév, 3. 3, Vol. II. p. 413) by faintly hinting at the others from whom for the sake of emphasis-not of contrast in conduct (Kakeîvor uev yas ήθελον μόνον, έγώ δε και επεχείρησα, Chrys.)-he is here detaching himself; comp. Devar. de Partic. Vol. I. p. 122 (ed. Klotz). On the proper force of  $\mu \epsilon \nu$  (incorrectly derived by Klotz and Hartung from  $\mu \eta \nu$ ), and its connexion with the first numeral, see Donalds. Cratyl. § 154, and comp. Pott, Etym. Forsch. Vol. II. p. 324.

kal äπaξ kal δ(s] 'both once and twice,' i. e. 'not once only, but twice;' see Phil. iv. 16, and notes in loc. The first kal is not otiose (Raphel, Annot. Vol. II. p. 522), but adds an emphasis to the enumeration; contrast Nehem. xiii. 20, I Macc. iii. 30, where the omission of the kal leaves the formula scarcely stronger in meaning than 'aliquoties.' κal ένέκοψεν κ.T. λ.] ' and Satan hindered us.' The kal has not here an adversative force ('sed,' Vulg., De W.), but simply places in juxtaposition with the intention the actual issue (' et impedivit,' Clarom., and all the other Vv.), the opposition lying really in the context. On this practically contrasting use of kal, see notes on Phil. iv. 12, and Winer. Gr. § 53. 3, p. 388. On the primary meaning of the verb ένκόπτειν (Hesych. ένεκοπτόμην ένεποδιζόμην) 'to hinder by breaking up a road,' see notes on Gal. v. 7. ό Σατανάς] 'Satan,' Heb. 102, the personal evil Spirit, the 'adversary' κατ' έξοχήν (δ έχθρός, Luke x. 19); comp. notes on Eph. vi. 27. To refer this term to human adversaries (De W.), or to some inward impediment (Jowett, who most inaptly compares Acts xvi. 7), is in a high degree doubtful and precarious : St Paul here plainly says that the Devil was the hindrance; what peculiar agencies he used are not revealed. Without here entering into controversy, it seems not out of place to remark that the language of the N. T., if words mean anything, does ascribe a personality to the Tempter so distinct and unmistakeable, that a denial of it can be only compatible with a practical denial of Scripture inspiration. To the so-called charge of Manicheism, it is enough to answer that if an inspired Apostle scruples not to call this fearful Being  $\delta \theta \epsilon \delta s$ τοῦ alŵros τούτου (2 Cor. iv. 4), no sober thinker can feel any difficulty in ascribing to him permissive powers and agencies of a frightful extent and multiplicity; see Hofmann, Schriftb.

19. τίς γὰρ ἡμῶν] Interrogative confirmation of the Apostle's earnest desire to see his converts; 'who is so if ye are not so?' Olsh., 'quid mirum si tanto tenear vestri desiderio? nam quid aliud est in hoc mundo quo mihi placeam, quo me jactem, quo fretus mihi promittam felicitatem?' Calv.

ήμ. έλπις ή χαρά] 'our hope or joy;' not exactly 'causa spei et materies lætandi,' Schott, but the subject and substratum of both one and the other, —the subject in whom both reside; comp. Phil. iv, I, and I Tim. i. I (see also notes) where this form of expression is used with the highest emphasis. Examples of similar uses in pagan writers are collected by Wetst. in loc.; the most pertinent is Livy, XXVIII. 39, 'Scipionem...spem omnem salutemque nostram.'

στέφανος καυχήσεως] 'crown of boasting;' comp. Prov. xvi. 31, Ezek. xvi. 12, גמארת הפארת הפארת גניען [στέφ. καυχήσεως, LXX], and Isaiah lxii. 3 [στέφ. κάλλous, LXX]: the Thessalonians were to the Apostle as it were a chaplet of victory, of which he might justly make his boast in the day of the Lord. It is scarcely necessary to add that kavχήσεωs not merely = δόξης λαμπρα̂ς (Theoph.), but implies  $\epsilon \phi^* \psi^* d\gamma d\lambda \lambda o$ μαι [καυχώμαι], Chrys., the genitive being not the gen. 'appositionis' (Koch), nor even of the metaphorical substance (comp. Rev. xii. 1), but, as the termination in -ois seems to require, that of the 'remoter object;' see exx. in Winer, Gr. § 30. 2. B, ή ούχι και p. 170.

uneis] 'or is it not also you ?' not 'nonne,' Vulg., but 'aut [an] non,' Clarom., a of Syr.-Phil., the particle # retaining its proper disjunc. tive force (see Devar. de Part. Vol. I. p. 101, ed. Klotz), and introducing a second and negative interrogation, explanatory and confirmatory of what is implied in the first; comp. Winer, Gr. § 57. 1, p. 451, and esp. compare the good remarks of Hand, Tursell. Vol. I. p. 340. The ascensive kal serves to place the Thessalonians in gentle contrast with other converts, 'you as well as my other converts;' où  $\gamma \dot{a} \rho \epsilon l \pi \epsilon \nu$ ύμεῖς ἀπλῶς, ἀλλὰ καὶ ὑμεῖς μετὰ  $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu$   $\tilde{\alpha} \lambda \lambda \omega \nu$ , Chrys. [How accurate is this great commentator's observation of the details of language.]

έμπροσθεν τοῦ Κυρίου κ.τ.λ.] 'in the presence of our Lord Jesus at His coming?' There is some little difficulty in the connexion of this member with what precedes. We clearly must not assume a transposition, and connect it with  $\tau$  is  $\gamma \dot{a} \rho - \kappa a \upsilon \chi \dot{\eta} \sigma \epsilon \omega s$ (Grot.), nor again closely and exclusively unite it with h ouxl kal bucis (Olsh.), but, as the context seems to require, append it to the whole foregoing double question, to which it imparts its specifically Christian aspect. The Apostle might have paused at Kal ύμεîs, and proceeded with ver. 20, but feeling that the  $\epsilon \lambda \pi is$ ,  $\chi a \rho a$ ,  $\kappa. \tau. \lambda$ . needed characterizing, he subjoins the circumstances of place and time. 'Ev  $\tau \hat{\eta} \pi a \rho o \nu \sigma i a$  obviously refers to the Lord's second coming, -not merely and exclusively 'to establish his Messianic kingdom' (Lünem., compare the objectionable remarks of Usteri, Lehrb.

p. 352), but—to judgment; comp. ch. iii. 13, iv. 15, v. 23. The addition  $X\rho\iota\sigma\tau\sigma\vartheta$  [Rec. with FGL; Vulg. (not Amiat.), Goth., Copt.] is rightly rejected by Lachm., Tisch., and most modern editors.

20. Uµeîs yáp K.T. A.] 'Yea verily ye are our glory and our joy.' The ydo does not appear here to be argumentative,-i.e. it does not subjoin a reason of greater universality (Alf., citing Soph. Philoct. 756, but see Buttm. in loc.), but seems rather confirmatory and explanatory (' confirmat superiorem versum seria asseveratione." Calv.), the  $\gamma \dot{\epsilon}$  element having here the predominance; see notes on Gal. ii. 6. and Winer, Gr. § 53. 8. b, p. 396. For a complete investigation of the primary meaning and principal uses of this particle, the student is especially referred to Klotz, Devar. Vol. II. p. 231 sq.

μηκέτι στέγοντες] 'no longer able to forbear;' 'no longer able to control my longing to see or at least hear about you;' 'cum desiderio vestri impares essemus,' Just. Lünemann (approved by Winer, Gr. § 55. 5, p. 429) rightly objects to the assertion of Rückert that μηκέτι is here incorrectly used for οὐκέτι, as μηκέτι can be properly and accurately explained as involving the subjective feelings of the writer ('being in a state that I could not,' 'as one that could not'); still, as has been before said (notes on ch. ii. 15), the tendency of later Greek to adopt the subjective form of negation with participles is very noticeable, and must always be borne in mind; comp. Madvig, Synt. § 207, and see also notes and reff. on ch. ii. 15. The verb στέγειν (βαστάζειν, υπομένειν, Hesych.; φέρειν, υπομένειν, καρτερείν, Chrys. on I Cor. ix. 12) is only used in the N.T. by St Paul, twice with an accus. objecti (I Cor. ix. 12, xiii. 7, in both cases  $\pi d\nu \tau a$ ), and twice without (here and ver. 5): see however the list of exx. in Wetst. on I Cor. ix. 12, and those in Kypke, Annot. Vol. II. p. 213, the most pertinent of which in ref. to this place is Philo, in Flacc. § 9, Vol. II. p. 527 (ed. Mang.), μηκέτι στέγειν δυνάμενοι τὰς ἐνδείας.

[2, as the idea of a 'libera' (είλόμεθα, προεκρίναμεν. Theoph.) rather than a 'propensa voluntas' seems here more suitable to the context; see notes and reff. given on ch. ii. 8. The plural here seems clearly to refer, not to St Paul and Silas (Beng.), but to St Paul alone, the subject of the verse being in close connexion with the concluding verses of ch. ii., where (ver. 18) the Apostle expressly limits the reference to himself. On the form  $\epsilon \dot{\upsilon} \delta$ . not  $\eta \dot{\upsilon} \delta$ . see notes on ch. ii. 8. καταλειφθ. έν 'Aβήν. μόνοι] 'to be left behind at Athens alone,'-alone, not without some emphasis, as its position seems to indicate; alone, and that at Athens, έπέμψαμεν Τιμόθεον τον άδελφον ήμων και συνεργον τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐν τῷ εὐαγγελίῳ τοῦ Χριστοῦ εἰς τὸ στηρί-3 ξαι ὑμῶς και παρακαλέσαι ὑπέρ τῆς πίστεως ὑμῶν τὸ

'in urbe videlicet a Deo alienissimâ,' Beng. There is some little difficulty in reconciling this passage with Acts xvii. 14 sq. From the latter passage compared with xvii. 5, it would seem that Timothy and Silas first rejoined St Paul at Corinth, and so that the former was not with the Apostle at Athens; from the present words (karaλειφθήναι, έπέμψαμεν, ver. 2; έπεμψα, ver. 5) however it seems almost certain that Timothy was despatched from Athens. Omitting all untenable assumptions-such as that a second visit was paid to Athens (Schrader), or that St Luke was ignorant of the circumstances, or ' that only Silas was left behind' (Jowett),-we must either suppose (a) that St Paul despatched Timothy before his own arrival at Athens (Wieseler, Chronol. p. 246 sq.), or perhaps more naturally (b) that Timothy, having been able to obey the Apostle's order (Acts xvii. 15) more quickly than Silas, did actually come to Athens, and was at once despatched to Thessalonica. The Apostle then continued waiting for both where he was (Acts xvii. 16), but ultimately left the city, and was rejoined by them both after his arrival at Corinth; see Neander, Planting, Vol. I. p. 195, note (Bohn).

2.  $\sigma \nu \nu \epsilon \rho \gamma \delta \nu \tau o \hat{\upsilon} \Theta \epsilon o \hat{\upsilon}$ ] 'fellowworker with God,' 'adjutorem Dei,' Clarom.; comp. 1 Cor. iii. 9. The  $\sigma \delta \nu$ does not refer to others not named, but, in accordance with the regular construction of the word in the N. T. (Rom. xvi. 3, 9, 21, Phil. ii. 25, iv. 3, comp. 2 Cor. i. 24), to the expressed and associated genitive  $\Theta \epsilon o \hat{\upsilon}$ ; comp. Bernhardy, Synt. HI. 49, p. 171, Jelf, Gr. § 507. The reading is somewhat doubtful, and the variations very numerous, but all may probably be referred to the supposed difficulty of the expression. Rec. reads Kal διάκονον του Θεού και συνεργόν ήμων with D3E (confusedly) KL; most mss.; Syr. (omitting kal 1), Syr.-Phil. (but with asterisk to ral our. mu.), al.; Chrys., Theod. The text as it stands [Griesb., Lachm. (text), Tisch ... and most modern editors] is only found in D1; Clarom., Sangerm., Ambrosiast., but is supported indirectly, (I) by AX; some mss.; and several Vv. (Vulg., Copt., Goth., Æth.), which have διάκονον instead of συνερyor (so Lachm. in marg.), (2) by FG; Aug., Boern., which have διάκ. καί  $\sigma v v$ .  $\tau o \hat{v} \theta \epsilon o \hat{v}$ , and also (3) to some extent by B, which gives kal ourepy. omitting του Θεού.

Acts xiv. 22, xv. 32, 2 Thess. ii. 17. These expressions do not seem in accordance with the timid character which Alf. (in notes in loc. and on I Tim. v. 23, 2 Tim. i. 7, 8) ascribes to the Apostle's faithful fellowworker.

ύπèρ τῆς πίστεως] Not identical in meaning with περί τῆς πίστεως (De W.), which Rec. here adopts on weak external authority [D<sup>3</sup>E<sup>2</sup>L; mss.], but appy. more distinctly expressive of the benefit to, and furtherance of the faith, which was contemplated in the παράκλησις; see Winer, Gr. § 47. 1, p. 343, and comp. notes on Phil. ii. 13.

3. TO undéva K.T. ) ' that no one.' &c.; objective sentence (Donalds. Gr. § 584) dependent on  $\pi a \rho a \kappa a \lambda \epsilon \sigma a \iota$ , explaining and specifying the subjectmatter of the exhortation; comp. Winer, Gr. § 44. 5, p. 294 (ed. 6), but more fully p. 375 (ed. 5). Of the different explanations of this infinitival clause, this seems far the most simple and grammatically tenable. That of Schott, according to which  $\tau \partial \mu \eta \delta \epsilon \nu a$  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$  is an accus, of 'reference to,' is defensible (see Krüger, Sprachl. § 50. 6. 8, comp. notes on Phil. iv. 10), but in the case of transitive verbs like παρακαλείν of precarious application : that of Lünem. and Alf., according to which  $\tau \partial \mu \eta \delta$ . is in apposition to the whole preceding sentence and dependent on the preceding els, more than doubtful; the regimen is remote. and the assumption that Tourfort might have been written for  $\tau \partial$  (Lünem.) or that it is nearly equivalent to it (Alf.) extremely questionable, if not inconsistent with the assumed dependence on els. The only objection to the construction here advocated—that  $\pi a \rho a$ . ralégai would thus be associated with a simple accus. rei-is of no real weight: for (I) such a construction is possible (comp. I Tim. vi. 2), and (2) the dependence of such explanatory or accusatival infinitives on the governing verb is appy, not so definite and immediate as that of simple substantives; comp. Matth. Gr. § 543, obs. 2, 3, Scheuerl. Synt. § 45. 4, p. 478. The only real difficulty in these and similar constructions is correctly to define the difference between the infin. with and without the article: perhaps it amounts to no more than this that in the former case the infinitival clause is more emphatic, aggregated, and substantival, in the latter more merged in the general structure of the sentence; see Winer, Gr. § 44. 2, p. 286, Krüger, Sprachl. § 50. 6. 3, Matth. Gr. l. c. obs. 2. The reading of Rec.  $\tau\hat{\omega}$  $\mu\eta\delta\epsilon\nu\alpha \kappa.\tau.\lambda.$  is not either exceptically or grammatically admissible (opp. to Green, Gr. p. 277; see Winer, l. c. p. 204), and is wholly unsupported by uncial authority. The text has the support of all MSS. except FG which give  $i\nu \alpha$  (in the place of  $\tau \delta$ ) with the infin.

σαίνεσθαι] 'be disturbed,' 'be disquieted.' This verb (a απ. λεγόμ. in the N. T.) properly signifies 'to be fawned on' (σαίνειν, ἐπὶ ζώων ἀλόγων, ὅ ἐστι σείειν τὴν οὐράν, Eustath. p. 393, 9), and metaphorically 'soothed' (Æsch. Choëph. 194), but is occasionally found in later writers in the stronger sense

5. Sud roîro] 'For this cause;' scil. because the foretold tribulation had now actually come upon you. In the following  $\kappa d\gamma \dot{\omega}$  the  $\kappa al$  does not belong to the sentence (the argument of Lünem. however that it would then be  $\delta \iota d \kappa al \tau o \hat{\upsilon} \tau o$  is of no weight, see notes on Phil. iv. 3) but to the pronoun, which it puts in gentle contrast with the  $\dot{\upsilon} \mu \epsilon \hat{\iota} \hat{\iota}$  twice expressed in the preceding verse: as they had felt for the Apostle (more fully alluded to in ver. 6), so he on his part felt for them; comp. notes on ch. ii. 13.

μηκέτι στέγων] 'no longer forbearing, able to contain;' see notes on ver. I.

είς τὸ γνῶναι] 'with a view of knowing;' design of the ἕπεμψα, comp. ver. 2. It does not seem right to supply mentally αὐτόν (Olsh.; 'ut cognosceret,' Æth.-Platt, sim. Pol.); the subject of the principal verb is naturally the subject of the infinitive.

So rightly Syr. (1) [ut cognoscerem]: the other Vv. adopt the inf., or an equivalent ('ad cognoscendam fidem vestram,' Vulg., Clarom.), and are thus equally indeterminate with the original.  $\mu\eta\pi\omegas\,i\pi\epsilon(pa\sigma\epsilon\nu$  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda.$ ] 'lest haply the tempter have tempted you;' aor. indic. specifying a fact regarded as having actually taken place already: the temptation was a fact, its results however were uncertain (comp. Chrys.); see Winer, Gr. § 56. 2, p. 448, and comp. notes on the very similar passage Gal. ii. 2. It may be observed that Green (Gr. p. 81). Fritzsche (Fritz. Opusc. p. 176 note), and Scholef. (Hints, p. 114) regard  $\mu\eta\pi\omega$ s as dubitative in the first clause, and expressive of apprehension in the second, 'an forte Satanas tentasset ... ne forte labores irriti essent,'-but with little plausibility. The argument of Fritz. that the  $\mu \eta \pi \omega s$ (metuentis) in the first clause would have required yevhoeral in the second ('atque ita labores irriti essent futuri') is certainly not valid: the future would have represented something to occur at some indefinite future time, the aor. subj. is properly used of a transient state occurring in particular cases; see Matth. Gr. § 519. 7, and comp. Madvig, Synt. § 124. 1, who correctly observes that  $\mu\dot{\eta}$  with fut. after verbs of fearing, dc. always gives a prominence to the notion of futurity. On the substantival form  $\delta \pi \epsilon_{i\rho} \delta \zeta \omega \nu$ , see exx. in Winer, Gr. § 45. 7, p. 316, comp. Bernhardy, Synt. VI. 22, p. 316.

είs κενόν γένηται] 'prove to be in vain;' comp. Gal. ii. 2, and the exx. collected by Kypke, Obs. Vol. 11. p. 275. The primary force of the prep. is somewhat similarly obscured in the adverbial formulæ, εἰs κοινόν, εἰs καιρόν, κ.τ.λ.; see Bernhardy, Synt. V. 11, p. 221. On the meaning of κόποs, see notes on ch. ii. 9.

Bernhardy, Synt. v. 24. b, p. 248 sq., and notes on Phil. i. 3. In the former use the idea of ethical superposition seems mainly predominant, in this latter that of ethical contact; comp. Krüger, Sprachl. § 68. 41. 5. It is somewhat doubtful to what the  $d\nu d\gamma \kappa \eta$  kal  $\theta \lambda i \psi$  is should be referred. On the whole, the force of άνάγκη [connected with ATX-, Pott, Etym. Forsch. Vol. I. p. 184; 'vim omnem notat quæ evitari non potest,' Herm. Soph. Trach, 823] and the tenor of the context seem to imply not any inward distress (De W.), but rather some outward trial and trouble (Alf. compares Acts xviii. 5-10) under which the Apostle was then suffering; see Lünem. in loc.

The order of the words is inverted in Rec.  $(\theta\lambda i\psi, \kappa, \dot{a}\nu d\gamma\kappa y)$ , but only on the authority of KL; mss.; several Ff.

The contrast shows that the Apostle regards the avayky kal  $\theta \lambda i \psi_{is}$  as a kind of death, from which he is raised to the full powers of life (comp. Rom. viii. 6) by the knowledge of the firm posture of the Thess.;  $\tau \dot{\eta} \nu$ γαρ ύμετέραν βεβαίωσιν ζωήν ήμετέραν  $\dot{\upsilon}πολαμβάνομεν$ , Theod.; compare Pearson, Creed, Vol. II. p. 319 (ed. Burt.). The conditional member, ¿au  $\dot{\nu}\mu\epsilon\hat{\imath}s \kappa.\tau.\lambda.$ , shows that  $\nu\hat{\upsilon}\nu$  (like the Lat. 'nunc') is not here used in a purely temporal (comp. Jowett), but in a logical and argumentative sense, approaching in meaning to 'in hoc rerum statu,' 'rebus sic se habentibus :' see Hartung, Partik. vûv, 2. 2, Vol. II. p. 25, Jelf, Gr. § 719. 2. The true principle of the usage is well explained by Hand; 'sæpe in his duæ rerum conditiones collocantur, quarum altera aut præcessit, aut cogitatur esse posse, eique ex adverso opponitur ea quæ vera ac præsens adest et valet,' Tursell. Vol. IV. p. 340.

έἀν ὑμεῦς στήκητε] 'if ye stand (fast);' hypothetically stated, as the faith of the Thessalonians was not yet complete (comp. ver. 10); experience was yet to show whether the assumption was correct. On the force of ἐἀν with the subj. Winer, Gr. § 41. 2, p. 260, and Herm. Viger, No. 312. On the meaning of this late form  $\sigma\tau\eta\kappa\epsilon\nu$ , not per se 'to stand fast' (comp. Rom. xiv. 4), see notes on Phil. i. 27. In the N.T. it occurs only in St Paul's Epp. and Mark iii. 31 (Tisch.), xi. 25; and in the LXX in Exod. xiv. 13 (Alex.).

εὐχαριστία is regarded as a kind of return for the mercies and blessings of God: Grot. aptly compares Psalm cxvi. 12, קידעיב לידוֹה. The binary compound ἀνταποδιδόναι is used by the Apostle both 'in bonam' and 'in malam partem' (2 Thess. i. 6, comp. Rom. xii. 19) in the sense of rendering back a due; the ἀrrὶ marking the idea of return, the ἀπὸ hinting at that of the debt previously incurred, 'ubi dando te exsolvis debito,' Winer, de Verb. Comp. Hist. XVIII. 26. 4, see notes on Phil. i. 5, and Krüger, Sprachl. § 68. 41. 6. The present use of  $\epsilon \pi i$  is nearly allied to the common use of the prep. with verbs denoting affections of the mind, θαυμάζειν, άγαλλιαν, κ.τ.λ., but perhaps recedes a shade farther from the idea of 'ethical basis,' to which both this and all similar uses of the prep. are to be ultimately referred; see notes on ver. 7, and Winer, Gr. § 48. c, p. 351. It is scarcely necessary to say that  $\pi \hat{a} \sigma a \dot{\eta} \chi a \rho \dot{a}$  is not, except by inference, 'summa lætitia' (Schott, -who however fails to observe the article), but 'all the joy,' Copt.,-'the joy taken in its whole extent;' see Winer, Gr. § 18. 4, p. 101: the Apostle's joy wanted nothing to make it full and complete.

The clause obviously belongs not to  $\chi a\rho\hat{a}$  (Pelt), still less to ver. 10 (Syr., but not Syr.-Phil.), but to the verb  $\chi al\rhoo\mu\epsilon\nu$ .

and the probable connexion of  $\dot{\eta}\mu\hat{\omega}\nu$ with the latter subst. only (so also Lünem.), see notes on Gal. i. 4. It may be remarked that the copula is omitted in Syr., Copt., Æth. The language of some of the German expositors is here neither clear nor satisfactory: we do not say with Lünem., that Christ as sitting at the right hand of God has a part in the government of the world 'nach paulinischer Anschauung' (compare Usteri, Lehrb. II. 2. 4, p. 315), still less with Koch, that the Apostle regards Christ 'als die Weisheit und Macht Gottes,'-but assert simply and plainly that the Eternal Son is here distinguished from the Father in respect of His Personality, but mystically united with Him (observe the significant singular  $\kappa a \tau$ - $\epsilon v \theta \dot{v} \alpha \iota$ ) in respect of his Godhead, and as God rightly and duly addressed in the language of direct prayer; see esp. Athan. contr. Arian. III. II, Waterl. Defence, Qu. XVII. Vol. 1. p. 423, Qu. XXII. p. 467.

The addition after  $I\eta\sigma$ . of  $X\rho\iota\sigma\tau\delta s$ (Rec.), though supported by D<sup>3</sup>EFGK L; mss.; Vv.; Ath., and many Ff., is rightly rejected by most modern editors with ABD<sup>2</sup>N (D<sup>1</sup> omits  $I\eta\sigma$ . as well); 5 mss.; Clarom., Sangerm., Vulg. The singular is certainly very noticeable both here and in 2 Thess. ii. 17: no reasons except those founded on the true relations of the Father and Son seem in any way to account for the enallage of number. The verb  $\kappa \alpha \tau c v \theta \dot{\nu} c w$  (Luke i. 79, 2 Thess. iii. 5) properly signifies 'to make straight,' thence (as here) 'to πλεονάσαι και περισσεύσαι] 'make to increase and abound,' 'multiplicet et abundare faciat,' Vulg., Clarom.; both verbs transitive, and nearly synonymous; the former referring not to mere numerical increase ( $\tau \hat{\omega} \, d\rho_i \theta_\mu \hat{\omega}$  $\pi\lambda\epsilon_{ova\sigma \alpha_{i}}$ , Theod.) but to spiritual enlargement, the second to spiritual abundance, and having more of a superlative meaning; comp. Fritz. Rom. Vol. I. p. 351. Πλεονάζειν is not transitive elsewhere in the N.T., see however Psalm lxxi. 21, έπλεόνασας την δικαιοσύνην σου, I Macc. iv. 35, πλεονάσας τον γενηθέντα στρατόν; the verb  $\pi \epsilon \rho \iota \sigma \sigma$ . is also commonly intrans., but see 2 Cor. iv. 15, ix. 8, and notes on Eph. i. 8.

This love was to be shown both in the form of brotherly love ( $\phi i \lambda a \delta \epsilon \lambda \phi i a$ , ch. iv. 9) and in its more extended form to all mankind whether  $\dot{\delta} \mu \delta \pi i \sigma \tau oi$  (Theod.) or not;  $\tau o \ddot{\tau} \sigma \gamma \dot{a} \rho$  τῆs κατὰ Θεὸν ἀγάπηs ἴδιον τὸ πάνταs περιπλέκεσθαι, Theoph.

τερον ἀξιοῦμεν γενέσθαι, Chrys. This mode of supplying the ellipsis, though open to the objection of causing two different meanings to be assigned to πλεον and περισσ. in the same verse, seems less arbitrary than that of Syr. In meaning it differs but little from ayiorns (2 Cor. i. 12 [not Rec.], Heb. xii. 10), except perhaps that it represents more the condition than the abstract quality, while ayraouss, as its termination shows, points primarily to the process (2 Thess. ii. 13, 1 Pet. i. 2), and thence, with that gradual approach of the termination in -  $\mu os$  to that in -  $\sigma v \nu \eta$  which is so characteristic of the N.T., the state (ch. iv. 4, I Tim. ii. 15), frame of mind, or holy disposition (Waterland, on Justif. Gr. § 280.

καl ἀρέσκειν Θεῷ] 'and (by so doing) to please Gcd.' The κal does not seem to be either explanatory (Schott 2) or Hebraistic ('vim consilii aut effectus describens,' Storr, cited by Schott), but with its not uncommon consecutive force marks the ἀρέσκειν as the result of the περιπατεῖν; comp. notes on Phil. iv. 12. The words καθώs καl περιπατεῖrε are omitted by Rees, Tisch. ed. 2, but only on the authority of D<sup>3</sup>E<sup>2</sup>KL; most mss.; Syr., Chrys., Theod., Dam.: they are rightly inserted by Lachm., Tisch. ed. 7, on greatly preponderant authority. We can hardly say that the words are inserted 'vitiose et parum ad rem' (Just.); the terms of the concluding exhortation seem to render an allusion to their present state, if not necessary, yet certainly natural and appropriate. For a sound sermon on this text, see Beveridge, Serm. CXXIII. Vol. v. p. 347 sq. περισσεύητε μάλλον] 'ye may abound still more,' scil. in your walking and pleasing God: the expression occurs again in ver. 10 and Phil. i. o. The omission of a ov $\tau \omega s$  corresponding to the first  $\kappa \alpha \theta \omega s$ , and the conclusion of the sentence in terms not wholly symmetrical with what had preceded, involve no real difficulty, and are characteristic of the Apostle's style.

The addition does not then seem designed so much to vindicate the authority of the Apostle (Olsh.) as to enhance the importance of the commands; comp. 1 Cor. vii. 10.

3. TOUTO YAP K.T. A.] 'For this is the will of God,'-' this that follows, this that I am about to declare to you;' further explanation of the  $\tau l \nu a s$  $\pi a \rho a \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda las, \gamma a \rho$  having here more of its explanatory ('quippe hæc,' Schott) than its argumentative force; see notes on Gal. ii. 6. Touro is obviously not the predicate (De W.), but the subject, placed somewhat emphatically forward to echo the preceding  $\tau lras$ and direct the reader's attention to the noun in apposition that follows. Lünem, and Alf. compare Rom. ix. 8, Gal. iii. 7; but the passages are not perfectly analogous, as there the demonstrative pronoun is retrospective, here mainly prospective; comp. notes on Gal. l.c. θέλημα τοῦ Θεοῦ] 'the will of God;' 'id quod Deus vult,' Fritz. Rom. Vol. III. p. 33. The omission of  $\tau \delta$  before  $\theta \epsilon \lambda$ . [inserted by AFG, and by Lachm. in brackets ] is not to be accounted for by the 'nondistribution of the predicate  $\theta \in \lambda$ .  $\tau \circ \hat{\nu}$  $\Theta \epsilon o \hat{v}$  (Alf.; but with ?), nor because what follows does not exhaust the conception (Lünem.), but simply on the principle noticed by the Greek grammarians (Apollon. de Synt. 1. 31, p. 64, ed. Bekk.) that 'after verbs substantive or nuncupative' the article is frequently omitted: see Middleton, Gr. Art. III. 3. 2, p. 43 (ed. Rose), but observe that the rule is by no means so universal as Middl. seems to think ; see Winer, Gr. § 18. 7, p. 104. When the subject is a demonstrative pronoun and the verb is omitted (Rom. ix. 8), the exceptions are naturally fewer, as the insertion of the article might often leave it uncertain whether the demonstr. pronoun was intended to be predicative or no; see Stallb. on Plato, Apol. p. 18A, and Engelhart on Plato, It may be noticed Lach. § I. that the useful and common form  $\theta \in \lambda \eta \mu a$  is appy. confined to the LXX, N.T., and late writers; comp. Lobeck, Phryn. p. 7.

ό άγιασμός ύμων] 'your sanctification;' appositional member to the preceding  $\theta \epsilon \lambda \eta \mu a \tau o \hat{\nu} \Theta \epsilon o \hat{\nu}$ , further defined both negatively and positively in the following clauses, and more specially exemplified in the subsequent appositional member τὸ μὴ ὑπερβαίvew, ver. 6. The late substantive άγιασμόs, - which, as the defining clauses seem to show, has here somewhat of a special meaning (Beng.),is not equivalent to ayiwo uny (comp. Olsh., Usteri, Lehrb. p. 226, note), but in accordance with its termination ('action of verb proceeding from subject,' Donalds. Cratyl. § 253) still retains its active force, budy being a simple gen. objecti, 'sanctificatio vestri,' i.e. 'ut sanctitati studeatis.' Menoch. ap. Pol. Syn.; comp. Krüger, Sprachl. § 47. 7. I sq., and see note on ch. iii. 13.

άπέχετθαι ὑμᾶς κ.τ.λ.] 'to wit that ye abstain from fornication;' explanatory infinitive, defining on the negative side the preceding term ὁ ἀγασμός, which otherwise must have been regarded as simply general in its signification; see Krüger, Sprachl. § 57. 10. 6 sq., Winer, Gr. § 44. 1, p. 284, and comp. Madvig, Sunt. \$ 153, who however has not sufficiently illustrated this not uncommon use of the infinitive. Even Winer (Gr. § 44. 2) seems to regard the inf. here as a subject-inf. in apposition to  $\theta \epsilon \lambda \eta \mu a \tau o \hat{v} \Theta \epsilon o \hat{v}$  (comp. too Syr., Æth.), but appy. with but little plausibility. The insertion (ch. v. 22) or omission (1 Tim. iv. 3) of  $\dot{a}\pi\dot{a}$  after the compound  $\dot{a}\pi\dot{\epsilon}\chi\epsilon\sigma\theta a\iota$ involves no real change of meaning (compare Acts xv. 20, 20), but differs at most only thus much, - 'ut in priori formula [with  $d\pi 6$ ] sejunctionis cogitatio ad rem, in posteriore autem ad nos ipsos referatur,' Tittmann, Synon. I. D. 225. This moprelas] 'Fornication;' abstract, and perhaps here with a somewhat comprehensive meaning [F reads mage t fis, and 31  $\pi d\sigma \eta s \tau \eta s$ :  $\aleph^4$ ; a few mss.; Syr., Chrys., Theod., al. substitute  $\pi d\sigma \eta s$ for the art.], 'quicquid est rerum venerearum,' Calv., or more suitably to the present context 'omnem illicitum concubitum' (comp. Est.). It must be always remembered that the deadly sin of  $\pi o \rho \nu \epsilon l a$  in its usual and general sense ever formed the subject of special prohibition, as being one of those things which the Gentile world regarded as adiadopa; see Meyer on Acts xv. 20.

4. elsévai ëkaorov  $\vartheta \mu \hat{\omega} v$ ] 'that each one of you know how &c.;' explanatory infinitive, parallel to  $d\pi \epsilon$ - $\chi \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota$ , defining on the positive side the preceding  $d\gamma \iota a \sigma \mu \delta s$ : so (as far as can be inferred from the collocation of words and form of expression), Copt., Goth., Arm., and Vulg. in spite of modern punctuation. Alford and others (comp. Clarom. 'abstinere ...ut sciat...ut nequis') regard the whole  $\epsilon l\delta \epsilon \nu a \iota - \delta \epsilon \epsilon \mu a \rho \tau v \rho \dot{a} \mu \epsilon \theta a$  as a further specification of what immediately precedes; this however tends to obscure the distinction between the infinitival clauses with and without the article (see below on ver. 6), and exegetically considered has nothing particularly to recommend it. For a similar comprehensive force of  $\epsilon l\delta \epsilon \nu a \iota$ , see Phil. iv. 12;  $\delta \epsilon (\kappa \nu \sigma \iota \delta \tau i \sigma \omega \kappa \eta \sigma \epsilon \omega s$  $\kappa \epsilon l \mu a \theta \eta \sigma \epsilon \omega s \dot{\delta} \sigma \tau \iota \tau \delta \sigma \omega \phi \rho o \nu \epsilon \tilde{\nu}$ , Theoph. Setting aside all arbitrary and untenable interpretations, we have two explanations of  $\tau \delta$ έαυτοῦ σκεῦος; (a) ' his body;' σκεῦος τὸ σῶμά φησιν, Theoph., Œcum.; so Chrys., Theod. (who notices and rejects the other expl.), Tertull. Est. i. II, 'vas meum quo ego utor,' cited by Schoettg. Hor. Hebr. Vol. I. p. 727, and most commentators) and the generally appropriate nature of the trope (see Sohar Levit. xxxviii. 152, cited by Schoettg.): so Aquin., Est., more recently Schott, De W., and appy. the majority of modern expositors. Of these two interpretations (a) is plausible, but open, as Lünem. clearly states, to four objections, -(a) the inaccurate meaning 'possidere' (Vulg.) thus assigned to  $\kappa \tau \hat{a} \sigma \theta \alpha \iota$ ; (β) the absence of any adj. (2 Cor. iv. 7) or defining gen. (Barnab. Epist. § 7, 11) which might warrant such a meaning being assigned to orevos,-unsuccessfully evaded (Olsh.) by the assumption that  $\dot{\epsilon}av\tau o\hat{v}$  practically =  $\psi v \chi \hat{\eta}s$ ;  $(\gamma)$  the emphatic position of  $\dot{\epsilon}av\tau o\hat{v}$ (comp. 1 Cor. vii. 2), which is hardly to be explained away as a mere equivalent of a possess. pronoun;  $(\delta)$  the context, which seems naturally to suggest, not a mere periphrasis of what had preceded, but a statement on the positive and permitted side antithetical to the prohibition on the negative. These objections are so strong that we can scarcely hesitate in adopting (b), towards which both lexical usage (κτασθαι γυναϊκα, Ecclus. xxxvi. 29 [24], Xen. Symp. II. 10) and exegetical arguments very distinctly converge. While  $\pi o \rho \nu \epsilon i a$  is prohibited on the negative side, chastity and holiness in re-pect of the primal ordinance are equally clearly inculcated on the positive. For further details see the elaborate notes of De W., Koch, and Lünem. in loc. έν άγιασμώ κal τιμη] 'in sanctification and honour;' ethical element in which To  $\kappa \tau \hat{a} \sigma \theta \alpha \iota$  was to take place: the union of man and woman was to be in sanctification and honour, not, as in the case of  $\pi o \rho \nu \epsilon l a$ , in sin and shame. Here, as the associated abstr. subst. suggests, ἀγιασμῷ passes from its act. into its neutral meaning; comp. notes on ch. iii. 13.

On the meaning of πáθos, see Trench, Synon. Alford cites Xen. Anab. II. 1. 22, ότι και ήμιν ταύτα δοκεί απερ καl βασιλέι, but not with complete pertinence, as there the kal appears in both clauses, here only in the relative clause; see Klotz, Devar. Vol. II. p. 635. The remark of Fritz. (Rom. Vol. I. p. 114) on the presence or absence of the article with  $\xi \theta \nu \eta$ , 'ubi de paganis in universum loquitur articulum addit, ubi de gentilium parte agit eundem omittit,' is substantially correct, but must not be over-pressed : comp. 1 Cor. i. 23 (not Rec.).

The article is here appropriately added to Θεόν, but this is one of the many words in the N. T. for which no precise rules can be Krüger, Sprachl. § 55. 2. 6) supplied from the following avrov, and suggested by the general character of the probibition. The clause is thus not merely parallel to the anarthrous  $\epsilon l$ δέναι (Alf.), but reverts to the preceding aylaomos, of which it presents a specific exemplification (comp. Krüger, Sprachl. § 50. 6. 3) more immediately suggested by the second part of ver. 4. First  $\pi o \rho \nu \epsilon l a$  is prohibited; then a holy use of its natural remedy affirmatively inculcated; and lastly the heinous sin of µorxela, especially as regarded in its social aspects, formally denounced. So rightly Chrys. (evταῦθα περί μοιχείας φησίν άνωτέρω δὲ καl περl πορνείας πάσης), and after him Theod., Theoph., Œcum., and the majority of modern commentators. To regard the verse with Calv., Grot., and recently De W., Lünem., Koch, as referring to fraud and covetousness in the general affairs of life, is (a) to infringe on the plain meaning of  $\tau \hat{\omega}$  $\pi \rho \dot{\alpha} \gamma \mu a \tau \iota$ , see below; ( $\beta$ ) to obscure the ref. to the key-word of the paragraph  $\dot{a}\kappa a \theta a \rho \sigma i a$ , ver. 7; ( $\gamma$ ) to mar the contextual symmetry of the verses; and  $(\delta)$  to introduce an exegesis so frigid and unnatural, as to make us wonder that such good names should be associated with an interpretation seemingly so improbable.

ύπερβαίνειν καl πλεονεκτεῖν] 'go begond and over-reach,' 'supergrediatur neque circumveniat,' Vulg., both words associated with the following accus.,—and both of them significantly and appositely chosen. 'Tπερβαίνειν (a  $a\pi$ .  $\lambda \epsilon \gamma \delta \mu$ . in the N.T.) with an accus. personæ properly signifies a 'passing beyond,' thence derivatively a 'leaving unnoticed,' whether simply (Isæus, p. 38. 6, and 43. 34) or contemptuously (Plutarch, de Amore Prol. § 3; comp. Kypke, Obs. Vol. II. 337), as appy. Æth. taahaja [extulit se],with which perhaps in the present case there may be associated a reference to a  $i\pi\epsilon_{\rho\beta}a\sigma_{is}$  of another in respect of the Spoi appointed by God and by nature; see Chrys. and the Greek commentators, who however seem to have taken  $i\pi\epsilon\rho\beta a i\nu\epsilon\nu$  absolutely; comp. Raphel, Annot. Vol. II. 542.  $\Pi\lambda\epsilon_{ov}\epsilon_{\kappa}\tau\epsilon_{iv}$  with an accus. personce properly signifies 'lucri causâ fraudem facere alicui' (2 Cor. vii. 2, xii. 17, 18), thence with a slightly more general reference ' circumvenire aliquem ' (comp. 2 Cor. ii. 11), 'bifaih(o),' Goth., the idea of selfish and self-seeking fraud rather than mere wrong or injury (comp. Syr., Copt., Arm.) being always involved in the word; see Suicer, Thesaur. s. v. Vol. II. p. 746, and comp. Meyer on 2 Cor. vii. 2.

The only difficulty is the reading: kal is omitted by Lachm. with ABD<sup>3</sup>E; 10 mss.; Clarom., Sangerm., Syr., Goth., al.; Athan., Did., Chrys., Theod. (ms.), Theoph., al.,but, as the insertion is well supported [D1FGKLN; most mss.; Augiens., Boern., Vulg., Syr.-Phil., al.; Clem., Theod., Dam., Œcum.], and far less easy to be accounted for than the omission, we retain kal with Rec., Tisch., Alf., and the bulk of recent editors. It is much more difficult to decide between δόντα [Rec., Lachm. in marg., Tisch., with AKLN4; most mss.;

The latter deserves great consideration as having such very strong uncial authority, still as the Vv. appear all to favour the aorist, and as it also certainly does seem probable that the correction might have arisen from a desire to represent that the gift of the Spirit was still going on (comp. Luke xi. 13), we retain  $\delta \delta \sigma \tau a$ .

τὸ Πν. αὐτοῦ τὸ ἄγιον] Not without great emphasis and solemnity (comp. Eph. iv. 30),—' His Holy Spirit,' the blessed Spirit which proceeds from Him (see notes on Phil. i. 19), whose attribute is holiness, and whose office especially 'consists in the sanctifying of the servants of God,' Pearson, Creed, Vol. I. p. 387 (ed. Burt.). To dilute this distinct personal expression into 'the gift of spiritual insight, &c.' (Olsh.), is by no means satisfactory; see notes on Gal. iv. 6.

The reading of Rec.  $\dot{\eta}\mu\hat{a}s$  has but weak external support [A; some mss.; Augiens., Vulg., Syr.-Phil., Æth. (Pol., but not Platt); Chrys., al.], and on internal grounds is not free from some suspicion.

The chief moment of thought, as Lünem. well observes, rests on the second and not on the first half of the compound verbal θεοδίδακτοι. The form itself is a  $a\pi a\xi \lambda \epsilon \gamma \delta \mu$ . in the N. T.; comp. however John vi. 45. διδακτοί Θεού, and add Barnab. Thus neither the  $\kappa al$  nor the  $\gamma d\rho$  (Syr., Æth.-Pol., —but not Syr.-Phil. and Æth.-Platt) is otiose: both fully retain their proper force (Copt., Goth., Arm.), their association being due to the early position which  $\gamma d\rho$  regularly assumes in the sentence; see notes and reff. on Phil. ii. 27, and comp. (opp. to Baur, Paulus, p. 484) that there is no reason for assuming any longer period between the conversion of the Thessalonians and the time of writing the Epistle (12 or 2 years) than is assumed in the ordinary chronology. The arguments of Baur, according to which this beautiful and most genuine Ep. is to be considered as a 'matte Nachbild' of I Cor., have been recently reiterated in Zeller. Theol. The close union of these appy. different subjects of exhortation has been variously explained. On the whole it seems most natural to suppose that their liberality involved some elements of a restless, meddling, and practically idle spirit, that exposed them to the comments of oi  $\xi \in \omega$ . It is perhaps not wholly improbable that mistaken expectations in respect of the day of the Lord had led them into a neglect of their regular duties and occupations, and was marring a liberality of which the true essence was έργαζόμενοι έτέpois παρέχειν, Chrys.

φιλοτιμέισθαι ήσυχάζειν] 'to make it your aim to be quiet,' 'et operam detis ut quieti sitis,' Vulg. (sim. Clarom.), 'biarbaidjan anaqal,' Goth. It is somewhat doubtful whether (a) the primary meaning of piloriu. with infin., 'gloriæ cupiditate accensus aliquid facere' (compare Copt., Æth.-Pol.), or (b) the secondary meaning, 'magno studio anniti,' 'operam dare' (Vulg., Clarom., Syr., Goth., Arm.), is here to be adopt-As both meanings rest on good ed. lexical authority (comp. Xen. Mem. II. 9. 3, with Econ. IV. 24, in which latter passage φιλοτιμείσθαί τι is associated with  $\mu\epsilon\lambda\epsilon\tau\hat{a}\nu$ ), the context will be our safest guide. Of the three passages in which it is used in the N. T., Rom. xv. 20, 2 Cor. v. 9, and here, the first alone seems to require (a): comp. Fritz. Rom. l. c. Vol. III. p. 277, and even Meyer, on 2 Cor. l.c., who, while affecting to retain (a), translates in accordance with (b) 'beeifern wir uns u.s. w.' In all perhaps some idea of  $\tau \iota \mu \dot{\eta}$  may be recognised, but in 2 Cor. l.c. and here that meaning recedes into the background; see the numerous exx. in Wetst. Vol. II. p. 94, 95, and Kypke, Obs. Vol. II. p. 189. To consider  $\phi i \lambda o \tau$ . an independent inf. (Copt., Theoph. 1; comp. Most modern expositors seem rightly to coincide in the opinion that in the infant Church of Thessalonica there had prevailed, appy. from the very first, a feverish anxiety about the state of those who had departed, and about the time and circumstances of the Lord's coming. They seem especially to have feared that those of their brethren who had fallen on sleep before the expected advent of the Lord would not participate in its blessings and glories (ver. 15). Thus their apprehensions did not so much relate to the resurrection generally (Chrys., Theod., Theoph.), as to the share which the departed were to have in the  $\pi a \rho o v \sigma l a \tau o \hat{v} K v$ plov; see Hofmann, Schriftb. It must remain to the last an open question whether  $\delta_{i\dot{\alpha}} \tau_{0\hat{\nu}}$  'In $\sigma$ . is to be connected (a) with the finite verb  $d\xi \epsilon \iota$ , or (b) with the participle. Chrysostom and the Greek commentators (silet Theod.) admit both, but prefer the latter; modern writers mainly adopt the former. There is confessedly a difficulty in (b) which the exx. adduced by Alf. scarcely tend to diminish; for the meaning  $\tau \hat{y}$ πίστει τοῦ Ἰησοῦ κοιμηθ. (Chrys.), or the more exact meaning advocated above, is but in lax parallelism with εἰρήνην ἔχειν δι' αὐτοῦ (Rom. v. I), καυγασθαι δι' αὐτοῦ (Rom. v. II), al. Still the arguments against (a)-viz. (1) that thus afer would have two participial members, (2) that the natural emphasis would then suggest the order δια τοῦ Ίησ. τοὺς κοιμηθ., (3) that the sentence would thus be harsh (De W.) and awkward in the extreme-seem so unanswerable, that with the earlier interpreters, Æth., and appy. (as the rigid preservation of the order seems to hint) the remaining Vv., we adopt the more simple and logical connexion κοιμηθέντας δια τοῦ 'Iησ. The two contrasted subjects 'Ιησούς and κοιμηθέντας δια του 'Ιησού thus stand in clear and illustrative antithesis, and the fundamental declaration of the sentence  $\tilde{a}\xi\epsilon\iota \ \sigma \vartheta\nu \ a\vartheta\tau\hat{\omega}$ remains distinct and prominent, undiluted by any addititious clause.

άξει σὺν αὐτῷ] 'bring with Him.' The more natural word would have been ἐγερεῖ (comp. 2 Cor. iv. 14), but the Apostle probably uses the more significant ἄξει to mark that blessed association of departed Christians with their Lord at His παρουσία, in which the Thessalonians feared their sleeping brethren would have no part; see above on ver. 13.

15. τοῦτο κ.τ.λ.] 'For this we say to you;' confirmation, not (by an 'ætiologia duplex') of the foregoing ίνα μή  $\lambda v \pi \hat{\eta} \sigma \theta \epsilon$  (Koch), but of the words immediately preceding. The relation of the faithful living to the faithful dead is explained, first negatively in this verse, then positively in έν λόγω Κυρίου] ver. 16, 17. 'in the word of the Lord,' in coincidence with a declaration received directly from Him, 'quasi Eo ipso loquente,' Beza. The prep. is here neither equivalent to karà (Zanch.) nor to διά (Auth., comp. De W.), but has appy. its usual and prevalent meaning 'in the sphere of :' the declaration was couched in the language of the Lord Himself, and gained all its force from coincidence with His words; see Winer, Gr. § 48. a, p. 345, who however by comparing I Cor. ii. 7, λαλούμεν ... έν μυστηρίω, I Cor. xiv. 6, λαλήσω... έν ἀποκαλύψει, gives έν more of a reference to the form or nature of the revelation than seems fully in accordance with the context. The meaning is simply 'edico Domini mandatu,' Fritz. Rom. Vol. III. p. 34; so LXX for בְּרָבֵר יְהוָה I Kings xx. 35. This revelation is certainly not to be referred to Matth. xxiv. 31 (Schott I, comp. Usteri, Lehrb. II. 2. B, p. 325) nor to any traditional 'effatum Christi' (Schott 2, and appy. Jowett), but was directly received by the Apostle from the Lord himself; oùk ảφ' ἐαυτῶν άλλὰ παρὰ τοῦ Χριστοῦ μαθόντες λέγοµev, Chrys.; see Gal. i. 12 and notes, ii. 2, Eph. iii. 3, and comp. 2 Cor. xii. I. With these passages before us can we say with Jowett that 'St Paul nowhere speaks of any special truths or doctrines as imparted to himself'? The language of Usteri, I.c. is equally unsatisfactory; not so that of De W. in loc. ήμεις κ. τ. λ.] 'we the living who are remaining.' The deduction from these words that St Paul 'himself expected to be alive.' Alf., with Jowett, Lünem., Koch, and the majority of German commentators, must fairly be pronounced more than doubtful. Without giving any undue latitude to ημείs (ού περί ξαυτοῦ φησίν ...άλλα τούς πιστούς λέγει, Chrvs.), to ζώντες (ζώντας τάς ψυχάς κοιμηθέντας δέ τὰ σώματα λέγει. Method. de Resurr. ap. (Ecum.), or to περιλειπόμενοι ('tempus præsens loco futuri more Hebraico usurpat,' Calv., 'superstites,' Bretsch.), it seems just and correct to say that  $\pi \epsilon \rho i \lambda \epsilon i \pi \delta \mu \epsilon \nu o i$  is simply and purely present, and that St Paul is to be understood as classing himself with 'those who are being left on earth' (comp. Acts ii. 47), without being conceived to imply that he had any precise or definite expectations as to his own case. At the time of writing these words he was one of the  $\hat{\omega}\nu\tau\epsilon s$ and  $\pi\epsilon_{\rho_i\lambda\epsilon_i\pi\delta_{\mu\epsilon\nu\rho_i}}$ , and as such he distinguishes himself and them from the KOLMNOEVTES, and naturally identifies himself with the class to which he then belonged. It does not seem improper to admit that in their ignorance of the day of the Lord (Mark xiii. 32) the Apostles might have imagined that He who was coming would come speedily, but it does seem overhasty to ascribe to inspired men definite expectations proved since to be unfounded, when the context calmly weighed and accurately interpreted supplies no certain elements for such extreme deductions; see notes on I Tim. vi. 14, and comp. the long note of Wordsw. on ver. 17. On the verb  $\pi \epsilon_{\rho l} \lambda \epsilon (\pi \epsilon_{\sigma} \theta_{al}, see note on ver. 17)$ (Transl.). ού μη φθάσωμεν] 'shall not prevent,' Auth. i.e. shall not arrive into the presence of the Lord, and share the blessings and glories of His advent, before others. The verb φθάνειν (Hesych. προήκειν, προλαμβά- $\nu \epsilon \iota \nu$ ) has here its regular meaning of 'prævenire,' involving the idea of a priority in respect of time, and thence derivatively of privilege; outw. onolv, όξέως και ταχέως και έν άκαρει οι τετελευτηκότες απαντες αναστήσονται, ώς τούς έτι κατ' έκείνον τόν καιρόν περιόντας προλαβείν, και προαπαντήσαι τώ σωτήρι τών δλων, Theod. On the strengthened negation of  $\mu\eta$  with the aor. subj., see Winer, Gr. § 56. 3, p. 450; and observe that the usually recognised distinction between these particles with the fut. and with the aor. (Hermann on Soph. Ed. Col. 853) must not be pressed in the N.T. (opp. to Koch), the prevalence of  $o\dot{\nu} \mu \dot{\eta}$  with the subj. being much too decided to justity a rigorous application of the rule; see notes on Gal. iv. 30.

16.  $\delta \tau i$  'because,' ?  $\Delta \delta c$  [propterea quod] Syr., 'quia,' Clarom., 'quoniam,' Vulg., 'unte,' Goth., sim. Æth. (Platt,—Pol. omits), Arm.; reason for the declaration immediately preceding, derived from the circumstances of detail. To regard  $\delta \tau i$  as 'that' (Koch), and as dependent on the preceding  $\tau o \delta \tau o \dot{\epsilon} u \delta r i$  as 'that' (Koch), and as dependent on the preceding  $\tau o \delta \tau o \dot{\epsilon} u \delta r i$  as 'that' (Koch), and as dependent on the preceding  $\tau o \delta \tau o \dot{\epsilon} u \delta r i$  (ver. 15), mars the logical evolution of the passage, and is opposed to the opinion of the Greek expositors ( $\gamma d \rho$ , Theod., Theoph.) and, as is shown above, of the best ancient Versions.

nor yet 'Himself' with ref. to His glorified body (Olsh.), but simply with ref. to His own august personal presence, αύτός γάρ πρώτος των όλων ό Κύριος έκ των ούρανων έπιφανήσεται κατιών, Theod. έν κελεύσματι] ' with a shout of command,' 'in jussu,' Vulg., Clarom., Goth., sim. Copt. [ouah-sahni], Syr., Arm. The word κέλευσμα (sometimes, though questionably, κέλευμα, Lobeck on Soph. Ajax, 704, p. 323), a άπ. λεγόμ. in the N. T., occurs frequently in classical Greek as denoting the command or signal given by a general (admiral, or captain of rowers, Thucyd. II. 92), the encouraging shout of the charioteer (Plato, Phædr. p. 253 D) or the huntsman (Xen. Cyneget. VI. 20), or more technically the cry of the  $\kappa\epsilon\lambda\epsilon\dot{\upsilon}\sigma\tau\eta$ s to the rowers (Eurip. Iph. T. 1405), but in most cases has some ref. more or less distinct to the prevailing meaning of the verb : comp. Prov. xxx. 27 [xxiv. 62], στρατεύει άφ' ένδς κελεύσματος εύ-TáxTws, and Philo, de Præm. § 19. Vol. Π. p. 427 (ed. Mang.), ἀνθρώπους ... άπωκισμένους βαδίως αν ένι κελεύσματι συναγάγοι Θεός. To whom the  $\kappa \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \nu \sigma \mu a$  is to be referred is somewhat doubtful. The Greek expositors (Chrys.?) seem to refer it directly to Christ; it appears however more plausible to refer it immediately to the άρχάγγελos as Christ's minister, and to regard it as a general expression of what is afterwards more distinctly specified by the substantives which follow. The purport of the κέλευσμα it is idle to guess at: it may perhaps be  $\dot{\epsilon}\gamma\epsilon i\rho\epsilon\sigma\theta\epsilon$ ,  $\eta\lambda\theta\epsilon\nu\delta\nu\mu\phi$ ios (Chrys. 1), or more naturally, avast wsiv of verpol (Chrys. 2, Theod.), or perhaps, still more probably, with a strict preservation of the current use of the word, the shout of command of the Archangel to the attendant angelical hosts,  $\epsilon \tau o l \mu ovs \pi o i \epsilon i \tau \pi a \pi \tau as, \pi a \rho \epsilon \sigma \tau i \gamma a \rho \delta$   $\kappa \rho i \tau \eta s$ , Chrys. 3; comp. Matth. xiii. 41. On the use of  $\epsilon \nu$  to denote the concomitant circumstances (Arm. uses its 'instrumental' case), see notes on Col. ii. 7, and comp. Eph. v. 26, dc. Though, with the Aramaic  $\Omega$  before us, it is not always desirable to overpress  $\epsilon \nu$ , yet in the present case it may be used as serving to hint at the  $\kappa a \tau d \beta a \sigma is$  taking place during the  $\kappa \epsilon \lambda \epsilon v \sigma \mu a$ , in the sphere of its occurrence; comp. notes on ch. ii. 3.

To refer doxayy. to Christ (Olsh.) or the Holy Spirit (see in Wolf) is obviously wrong: the term is a  $\delta ls \lambda \epsilon \gamma \delta \mu$ . (here and Jude q) in the N.T., and designates a leader of the angelical hosts by whom the Lord shall be attended on His second coming; compare Matth. xxiv. 31, xxv. 31, 2 Thess. i. 7. With regard to the oblique references of some of the German commentators to the 'jüdischer nachexilischer Vorstellung' (Lün. comp. Winer, RWB. Vol. II. p. 329, ed. 3), it seems enough to say that the Apostle elsewhere distinctly alludes to separate orders of angels (see notes and reff. on Eph. i. 21, Col. i. 16), and that he here as distinctly speaks of a leader of such heavenly Beings: to inquire further is idle and presumptuous. σάλπιγγι Θεοῦ] 'the trumpet of God;' not 'tuba Dei, adeoque magna,' Beng.,-such a form of Hebraistic superl. not occurring in the N.T., but simply 'the trumpet pertaining to God' (gen. possess.), the trumpet used in His service; comp. With the Jewish use of the trumpet to call assemblies (Numbers x. 2, xxxi. 6, Joel ii. 1) we have here nothing to do, still less with the speculations of later Judaism as to God's use of a trumpet to awaken the dead (Eisenmenger, Entd. Jud. Vol. II. p. 929; adduced by Lünem.): the Apostle twice in one verse definitely states that the trumpet will sound at Christ's advent (I Cor. xv. 52), and it infallibly will be so.

(Lün.), and introduce a specification out of harmony with the context : the subject of the passage is not the means by which (2 Cor. iv. 14) or element in which the resurrection is to take place, but the respective shares of the holy dead and holy living in the  $\pi a \rho o v \sigma i a$  of the Lord, considered in relation to time.

The reading πρῶτοι is found in D<sup>1</sup>FG; Vulg., Clarom.; Cyr., Theod. (1), al., and was perhaps suggested by the supposed dogmatical ref. to the first resurrection.

On the nature of the resurrection body, compare Burnet, State of Dep. ch. VII. VIII., and the curious and learned investigations of Cudworth, Intellect. Syst. ch. v. 3, Vol. III. p. 310 sq. (ed. Harrison).

The forms  $\eta \rho \pi \alpha \gamma \eta \nu$  and  $\delta \rho \pi \alpha \gamma \eta \sigma \rho \mu \alpha \iota$ appear to be later forms (Thom.-Mag. p. 412); but the 'librariorum arbitrium' often leaves it uncertain whether the first or second aor. was the original reading; comp. Chrvs. The expression els άπάντησιν (Matth. xxv. 1 [BCN ὑπάντ.], 6, Acts xxviii. 15) seems to have been derived from the LXX, where it commonly answers to the Hebrew לקראת; as I Sam. ix. 14. al. It may be associated either as here with a defining gen., or with a dative (Acts xxviii. 15), the verbal subst. preserving in the latter case the government of the verb from which it is derived; see Bernhardy, Synt. Els  $\dot{a}\epsilon\rho a$  is certainly not 'in cœlum' (Flatt), but, as the regular meaning of the word requires, 'into the air,'-though perhaps not necessarily (comp. Wordsw.) with any precise limitation to the terrene atmosphere. The  $\dot{a}\eta\rho$ , as De W. well observes, marks the way to heaven, and includes the interspace between earth and heaven, with greater or less latitude according to the context; see notes on Eph. ii. 2. To question whether the air is here represented as the final realm of the faithful (Usteri, Lehrb. II. 2. B. p. 338, 441) is surely monstrous: the Apostle makes here a pause, simply because his design of clearing up the anxieties which his converts entertain is accomplished when he declares that the holy quick and holy dead shall be caught up into the air simultaneously to meet the Lord. The ἐν is here used in that species of instrumental sense in which the action, &c., of the verb is conceived as existing in the means; 'solent Græci pro Latinorum ablativo instrumenti sæpe  $e^{i\nu}$  præpositionem ponere, significaturi in eå re cujus nomini præpositio adjuncta est vim aut facultatem alicujus rei agendæ sitam esse,' Wunder, Soph. Philoct. 60, see exx. in Raphel, Annot. Vol. 11. p. 549. The terms xporos and kaipos are not synonymous: the former denotes time indefinitely, the latter a definite period of time (μέρος χρόνου, ή μεμετρημένων ήμερών σύστημα, Thom.-M. p. 489, ed. Bern.), and thence derivatively the right or fitting time; comp. Ammon. de Diff. Voc. p. 80, ό μέν καιρός δηλοί ποιότητα ... χρόνος δέ ποσότητα, and see Tittmann, Synon. I. p. 41, where the meaning of kaupo's is carefully investigated, and Trench, Synon. Part II. The force of the plural has 8 7. been somewhat differently estimated. On the whole, it seems most natural to refer it, not to the length of the periods (Dorner, de Orat. Christ. Eschat. p. 73), but simply to the plurality either of the acts or of the moments of the time (Lünem.). There appears no reason to take kal here as explanatory (Koch): the two words are simply connected by the copula; comp. Acts i. 7, xpovous n καιρούς,

To refer it to the destruction of Jerusalem (Hamm.), or to include in it την ίδίαν έκάστου ημέραν (Theoph., comp. notes on Phil. i. 6), is here distinctly at variance with the context, which treats solely and entirely of the Lord's mapovoia. The reading is hardly doubtful. Rec. gives  $\dot{\eta} \dot{\eta}\mu$ . with AKL; most mss.; many Ff.; but though the  $\dot{\eta}$  might have been absorbed in the  $\dot{\eta}$  of the following  $\dot{\eta}\mu\epsilon\rho a$ , the probability of insertion (as more definitive) and the preponderance of uncial authority [BDEFGN] are in favour of the omission; so Lachm., Tisch. ώς κλέπτης έν νυκτί] 'as a thief cometh in the night,' scil. έρχεται; έν νυκτί not being added as a quasi-epithet to  $\kappa \lambda \epsilon \pi \tau \eta s$ , but belonging to an unexpressed Epyeral; see Winer, Gr. § 20. 4, p. 126, note. This solemn and regular Scripture simile (comp. Matth. xxiv. 43, Luke xii. 39, 2 Pet. iii. 10, Rev. iii. 3, xvi. 15) does not contain any reference to the dread felt with regard to the coming (Schott, compare Alf.), but simply to the  $\tau \delta$ alpridior (Theod.): see esp. The addition έν νυκτl (comp. however Matth. xxiv. 43,  $\pi o(a \phi v \lambda a \kappa \hat{\eta})$  is peculiar to this place, and (combined with Matth. l. c. and xxv. 6) may have given rise to the ancient tradition of the early Church (noticed by Lünem.) that Christ was to come at night on Easter Eve; compare Lact. Inst. VII. 19 ('intempestâ et tenebrosâ nocte'), and Jerome on Matth. xxv. 6. ούτως έρχεται] 'so it comes;' the ούτωs being added to give force and emphasis to the comparison. Elphyn Kal aspaleia] 'Peace and safety,' scil.  $\epsilon \sigma \tau l \nu$ ,—is everywhere present; comp. Ezek. xiii. 10, léyovres Είρήνη, και ούκ έστιν είρήνη. The distinction between these words is obvious: the first [ elpw, necto, or more probably EP-, elpu, dico; comp. Benfey, Wurzellex. Vol. II. p. 7] betokens an inward repose and security; the latter [a,  $\sigma$ - $\phi a \lambda \lambda \omega$ ; comp. Sanscr. root phal, Heb. כפל, Pott, Etym. Forsch. Vol. I. p. 238, Donalds. Crat. § 209] a sureness and safety that is not interfered with or compromised by outward obstacles. τότε αιφνίδιos κ.τ.λ.] 'then with suddenness does destruction come upon them ;' alpridios not being a mere epithet (adjectivum attributum), 'sudden destr.,' Auth.,

'plötzliches Verderben,' De W., but a secondary predication of manner (adjectivum appositum), scil. 'repentinus eis superveniet,' Vulg., Syr., Copt. [chen ou-exapina], al., and fully emphatic; see esp. Donalds. Cratyl. § 303, and Müller, Kleine Schriften, Vol. I. p. 310; comp. Winer, Gr. § 54. 2, p. 412, and notes on Col. ii. 3. The verb ¿øloraraı may be either simply 'imminet,' Beza, or more derivatively 'superveniet,' Vulg. (but not fut.), being a 'verbum solemne de rebus hominibusve citius quam quis existimaverit adstantibus,' Schott; see esp. Luke xxi. 34, μήποτε... ἐπιστη ἐφ' ύμας alφνίδιος ή ήμέρα (alφ. does not occur elsewhere in the N.T.). On όλεθρος, comp. notes on I Tim. vi. 9. ώσπερ ή ώδίν] 'as the birth-pang.' The true point of the appropriate comparison (' $\pi \epsilon \rho$  vim eam comparativam quam habet ús usitato more auget atque effert,' Klotz, Devar. Vol. II. p. 768) is neither the knowledge that the event is to come (Theod.), nor its nearness (De W.), but, as the context seems clearly to suggest, its suddenness and uncertainty; 'mulier doloris materiam ...... gestat absque sensu, donec inter epulas et risus vel in medio somnio corripitur,' Calv. The form  $\delta\delta l\nu$ , like the form  $\delta\epsilon\lambda\phi l\nu$ , belongs to later Greek ; comp. Winer, Gr. § 9. 2, p. 61.

τῦ ἐν γαστρὶ ἐχούστῃ] The regular formula in the N. T., Matth. i. 18, 23, xxiv. 19, Mark xiii. 17, Luke xxi. 23, Rev. xii. 2. The more usual expression in earlier Greek appears to have been ἐν γαστρὶ φέρεων (Plato, Legg. VII. p. 792 Ε, comp. Hom. Il. VI. 58), or ἐγκύμων εἶναι or γίγνεσθαι, as in Plato, Epin. p. 979 Δ, al.

4.  $\dot{\nu}\mu\hat{as}\ \dot{\eta}\ \dot{\eta}\mu\ell\rho a$ ] So Lachm. with ADEFG; Vulg., Clarom., appy. Æth. (both); many Lat. Ff. (Tisch. ed. 1, Schott, Lünem., Koch). C is here deficient. The simpler order of Rec.  $\dot{\eta}\ \dot{\eta}\mu\ell\rho a\ \dot{\nu}\mu\hat{as}$  is retained by Tisch. ed. 2, 7, with BKLN; appy. all mss.; Goth., al.; Chrys., Theod., Dam., al. (Griesb., Alf.); but appy. with less probability, as the uncial authority is not decisive, and the change is just as likely to have been owing to a conformation to the more natural order, as a transposition for the sake of throwing emphasis on the  $\dot{\nu}\mu\hat{as}$ .

où  $\mu\eta$  èk $\phi$ i $\gamma$ wor $\nu$ ] 'they shall in no wise escape,' not  $\tau \circ \nu \tau \epsilon \pi \circ \nu \sigma \kappa al \delta \lambda \epsilon$ - $\theta \rho \circ \nu$ , (Ecum., but simply and absolutely; comp. Heb. ii. 3, xii. 25, Ecclus. xvi. 13. On the strengthened negation où  $\mu\eta$  with the subjunctive, see notes and reff. on ch. iv. 15.

In the following words it is scarcely necessary to say that  $\dot{\epsilon}\sigma\tau\dot{\epsilon}$  cannot possibly be imperatival (Flatt): both the negative and the non-occurrence of the imper.  $\dot{\epsilon}\sigma\tau\epsilon$  in the N.T. utterly preclude such a translation.

έν σκότει] 'in darkness,' in the element or region of it. The  $\sigma \kappa \delta \tau \sigma s$  here mentioned seems to have been suggested by the preceding ev vuktl (ver. 2): it does not mark exclusively either τόν σκοτεινόν και ακάθαρτον βίον (Chrys., Theoph., Œcum.), as might seem suggested by the succeeding verse, or  $\tau \dot{\eta} \nu \dot{a} \gamma \nu o (a \nu (Theod.))$ , as is partially suggested by the preceding verse, but, as the general context requires, both, - statum ignorantize et vitii,' Turretin. It was a darkness not only of the mind and understanding (Eph. iv. 18) but of the heart and will (1 John ii. 9); see Andrewes, Serm. XIV. Vol. III. p. 371.

Eva upas K. T. A.] 'in order that the day should surprise you;' not merely a statement of result, but of the purpose contemplated by God in His merciful dispensation implied in our égré έν σκότει. See Winer, Gr. § 53. 6, p. 408. It may be doubted however whether we have not here some trace of a secondary force of lva (see notes on Eph. i. 17), the eventual conclusion being in some degree mixed up with and obscuring the idea of finality; comp. Gal. v. 17. Considering the numerous instances of a secondary final use of "va which the writings of the N.T. (esp. those of St John, Winer, Gr. § 44. 8, p. 303) distinctly supply, and a remembrance of the ultimate decline of the particle into the và of modern Greek (Corpe, Gr. p. 129), it is prudent to beware of overpressing the final force in all cases; comp. Winer, Gr. l.c. p. 299 sq.

The 'day' here specified is not specifically the day of judgment  $[\dot{\eta} \ \dot{\eta}\mu\epsilon\rhoa$  $\epsilon\kappa\epsilon\ell\eta$  FG; Vulg., Clarom., Syr.], but, as the context seems to require, the period of light (De W.), which indeed becomes practically synonymous with the day of the Lord, as bearing salvation (comp. Rom. xiii. 12), and bringing to light the hidden things of darkness (1 Cor. iv. 5). κατα-

λάβη] 'overtake,' 'surprise,' Υ

hai,' Goth.; the  $\kappa \alpha \tau \dot{\alpha}$  here not introducing any definite sense of hostility (comp. Koch), but, as usual, being simply intensive, and deriving its further shades of meaning from the context: see the good collection of examples in Rost u. Palm, Lex. s.v. Vol. I. p. 1623. The reading  $\kappa \lambda \dot{\epsilon} \pi \tau \alpha s$ [Lachm. with AB; Copt.] has certainly not sufficient critical support.

5.  $\pi \dot{\alpha} \nu \tau \epsilon_S \gamma \dot{\alpha} \rho \dot{\nu} \mu \epsilon \hat{\nu}_S$ ] 'for ye all;' confirmation of the preceding negative statement by a more specific positive declaration. The particle  $\gamma d\rho$ , which we can hardly say with Schott is 'haud necessaria ad sententiam,' is omitted by Rec., but on authority [K (e sil.); majority of mss.; Vulg. (Amiat.)] decidedly insufficient.

viol dwrós] 'sons of light;' a Hebraistic formula (comp. Ewald, Gr. § 287) expressing with considerable emphasis and significance, not merely that they 'belonged to the light' (Alf.), but that they belonged to it in the intimate way that children belong to a parent, -almost ol τὰ τοῦ φωτός πράττοντες, Chrys., Theoph.: see Winer, Gr. § 34. 3. b. note 2, p. 213, Steiger on I Pet. i. 14, p. 153, and notes on Eph. ii. 2. Somewhat analogous expressions are found in classical Greek, #aîdes ooφων, παίδες ιερέων κ.τ.λ., but appy. never (as here) in connexion with abstract substantives; comp. Blomf. on Æsch. Pers. 408.

ούκ έσμèν νυκτός] 'We belong not to night.' the genitive idiomatically specifying the domain to which the subjects belong; comp. Acts ix. 2, and see Winer, Gr. § 30. 5, p. 176. On the various meanings in which this possessive gen. is connected with  $\epsilon lrat$  and  $\gamma i \gamma \nu \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota$ , see Krüger, Sprachl. § 47. 6. 1 sq., Bernhardy, Synt. 111. 46, p. 165, and on the very intelligible  $\chi i a \sigma \mu \delta s$ ,  $\dot{\eta} \mu \epsilon \rho a \ldots \nu \delta \xi$ ,  $\sigma \kappa \delta \tau \sigma s$ ], see Jelf, Gr. § 904. 3, Madvig, Lat. Gr. § 473. a. The reading  $\dot{\epsilon} \sigma \tau \dot{\epsilon}$  [D<sup>1</sup>FG; Syr. (not Phil.), Clarom., Goth., al.] is obviously a conformation to the preceding  $\dot{\epsilon} \sigma \tau \dot{\epsilon}$ .

6. "Apa ov 'Accordingly then;" exhortation following on the preceding declaration, the illative doa being supported and enhanced by the collective and retrospective ov; see notes on Gal. vi. 10. In Attic Greek this combination is only found in the case of the interrogative dpa, comp. Klotz, Devar. Vol. 11. p. 181, Herm. Viger, No. 202, and Stallb. on Plato, Republ. V. D. 462 A. μή καθεύδωμεν] 'let us not sleep,' i.e. be careless and indifferent, μή ἀμελῶμεν τῶν καλῶν  $\xi \rho \gamma \omega \nu$ , Theoph.; comp. Eph. v. 14, and the very pertinent remarks of Beck, Christ. Lehrwiss. Vol. I. p. 299 (cited by Koch), on the deepening sleep of the soul under the influence of sin; see also Beck, Seelenl. I. 8, p. 18.

oi lourol 'the rest;' here obviously unbelievers, whether careless Jews or ignorant heathens; comp. notes on ch. iv. 13. Lachm. omits the kal before of Nounol with ABN ; 2 mss. ; Augiens., Vulg. (Amiat.), Syr.; al., but appy. in opposition to St Paul's prevailing usage; comp. 1 Cor. ix. 5, Eph. ii. 3, and above, ch. iv. 13. νήφωμεν] 'be sober ;' comp. I Pet. v. 8. The νήφωμεν enhances the preceding γρηγο- $\rho \hat{\omega} \mu \epsilon \nu$ ; Christians were not only to be wakeful, but have all their senses and capacities in full exercise: ev nuepa av γρηγορή τις μή νήφη δέ μυρίοις περιπεγαρ καθεύδοντες νυκτός καθεύδουσιν, και οι μεθυσκόμενοι νυκτός μεθύουσιν· ήμεις δε ήμέρας όντες νήφωμεν, έν- 8 δυσάμενοι θώρακα πίστεως και αγάπης και περικεφα-σείται δεινοῖς, Chrys. On the regular meaning of this verb, which appears to be always that of 'sobriety,' not of 'watchfulness' or 'wakefulness' (as perhaps Œcum., ἐπίτασις ἐγρηγόρσεως), see notes on 2 Tim. iv. 5, and 1 Tim. iii. 2.

7. oi vao kaleúdovtes] ' For they that sleep,' 'sleepers,' Winer, Gr. § 45. 7, p. 316; confirmatory explanation of the preceding exhortation by a reference to the prevailing habits of non-Christian life. At first sight it might seem plausible to give all the words in this verse a spiritual reference (Chrys., Theoph., Koch): as however vuktds seems only to mark the period when the actions referred to usually took place, the literal and proper meaning is distinctly to be preferred : 'quemadmodum in hoc versu dormire ita etiam ebrium esse dicitur proprie, tanquam exemplum ejusmodi sentiendi agendique rationis quæ nonnisi hominum sit in caligine nocturnâ lubenter versantium,' Schott; so Lünem. and οί μεθυσκόμενοι] ' they Alf. that are drunken.' The distinction advocated by Beng., 'μεθύσκομαι notat actum, μεθύω statum' (comp. Clarom. 'inebriantur...ebrii sunt'), seems here more than doubtful. The transition from 'being made drunk' to 'being actually drunk' is so slight (in Rost u. Palm, Lex. s. vv. both are translated 'berauscht seyn'), that with the preceding καθεύδοντες ... καθεύδουσιν before us it seems best to regard them here as simply synonymous.

 ήμεῖς δέ κ.τ.λ.] 'but let us, as we are of the day.' not exactly 'qui diei sumus,' Vulg., Clarom., but 'quum simus,' Æth. (Platt), Arm., comp. Goth. 'visandans;' the participle not being here used predicatively, but with a slightly causal, or combined 'temporal-causal' force; see Schmalfeld, Synt. des Gr. Verb. § 207, comp. Donalds. Gr. § 615. On the connexion of the gen. with  $\epsilon l \mu l$ , see notes on ver. 5. ένδυσάμενοι] 'having put on ;' temporal participle defining the action contemporaneous with or perhaps, more probably, immediately preceding, the  $\nu \eta \phi \epsilon \omega$ . The Apostle now passes into his favourite metaphor of the Christian soldier; comp. Rom. xiii. 12, 2 Cor. x. 4, and esp. Eph. vi. 11, where not only (as here) the defensive, but the offensive portions of the equipment are described. The 'armatura' here consists of the three great Christian virtues, Faith, Love, and Hope, the first and second forming the breastplate (aliter Eph. vi. 14, 16), the third (similarly Eph. vi. 17, see notes) the helmet; comp. Reuss, Théol. Chrét. IV. 22, Vol. II. p. 259, 260.

θώρακα πίστεως] 'a shield of faith,' or more probably 'the shield, &c.,' the second and third substantives, as well known terms, here dispensing with the article (Winer, Gr. § 10. 1, p. 109), and causing the governing noun to be also anarthrous on the principle of correlation (Middl. Gr. Art. III. 3.6). The gen. is that of 'apposition;' see notes and reff. on Eph. vi. 14. και περικεφ. κ.τ.λ.] 'and as a helmet the hope of salvation ;' a defence that can never fail. With hope fixed on the  $i \pi \eta \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda \mu \epsilon \nu \eta \sigma \omega \tau \eta \rho i a$ (Theod.) all the dangers and trials of the present seem light and endurable; καθάπερ γὰρ ἡ περικεφαλαία τὸ καίριον σώζει των έν ήμιν, την κεφαλήν περι9 λαίαν ἐλπίδα σωτηρίας, ὅτι οὐκ ἔθετο ήμῶς ὁ Θεὸς eἰς ὀργὴν ἀλλὰ εἰς περιποίησιν σωτηρίας διὰ τοῦ

The form τιθέναι (Acts xiii. 47) or θέσθαι  $\epsilon ls \tau l$  (1 Tim. i. 12) appears to have a partially Hebraistic tinge and to answer to נתן , or שית followed by ; comp. for example Psalm lxvi. 9, Jerem. ix. 11, xiii. 16. On δργή, see notes on ch. i. 10. είς περιποίησιν σωτηρίαs] 'unto obtaining of salvation,' Lin? 4.105 ad 70 F 00 acquisitionem vitæ], sim. Vulg., Clarom., Copt. [tancho,-here needlessly rendered 'vivificatio;' comp. Mal. iii. 17], 'du gafreideinai ganistais,' Goth.; comp. 2 Thess. ii. 14, els περιποίησιν δόξηs. Neither here, Heb. x. 39, nor 2 Thess. l. c., is there any reason for departing from this simple and primary meaning of  $\pi \epsilon \rho \iota \pi o l \eta \sigma \iota s$ ; Hesych. πλεονασμός κτήσις, Suid. κτήσις. Both in Eph. i. 14 (see notes) and 1 Pet. ii. g, as the context shows, the use is wholly different, and appy. a reflection of the קנלה of the O. T. (comp. Acts xx. 28): in 2 Chron. xiv. 13 (Heb. גx. 28): in 2 Chron. xiv. 13 (Heb. (בַּתְּלָה), Pseud.-Plato, Def. p. 415 c (see Rost u. Palm, Lex. s.v.), the meaning seems to be rather 'conservatio;' but neither the one (appy. favoured by (Ecum., comp. Theod., iva olkelovs  $d\pi o\phi \eta v \eta$ ) nor the other is here either natural or suitable.

διὰ τοῦ Κυρίου κ.τ.λ.] Dependent, not on ἔθετο, but on the preceding περιποίησιν σωτηρίαs, and specifying the medium by which the σωτηρία was to be obtained. This medium is certainly not 'doctrinam eam quam Christus nobis attulit' (Grot.), nor, in this passage, 'faith in Him' (Lünem.), but, as the next verse seems to show, His atoning death; comp. Eph. i. 7, and notes in loc.

10.  $\tau o \hat{v} \, d\pi o \theta$ .  $\dot{v} \pi \hat{\epsilon} p \, \dot{\eta} \mu \hat{\omega} v ]$  'who died for us;' specification of the blessed act of redeeming love by which the  $\pi \epsilon \rho i \pi o (\eta \sigma i s \ \sigma \omega \tau \eta \rho | a s$  has become assured to us; comp. ch. iv. 14. The clause, as Lünem. properly observes, is not causal ( $\dot{a}\pi o \theta$ . would then be anarthrous, comp. Schmalfeld, Synt. § 222, 225 note, and Donalds. Gr. § 492), but relative and assertory; 'ne quid de salutis certitudine dubitemus aut de satisfactione soliciti essemus, dicit Christum pro nobis mortuum esse, et pro peccatis nostris satisfecisse, ut salutem consequeremur,' Calv.

On the meaning of  $i\pi \epsilon \rho$  in dogmatical passages,—not exclusively 'in our stead' (Waterl. Serm. XXXI. Vol. v. p. 740), see notes and reff. on Gal. iii. 13. For  $i\pi \epsilon \rho$ , BN<sup>1</sup>; 17, here read  $\pi \epsilon \rho l$ . iva  $\epsilon ir \epsilon \kappa. \tau. \lambda$ .] 'in order that whether we wake or sleep;' holy purpose of the Lord's redeeming death. There is some little doubt as to the exact meaning of the terms καθεύδειν and ypyyopeiv. It seems clear that they cannot be understood in a simple physical sense (comp. Fell), still less in an ethical sense, as  $\tau \partial \kappa \alpha \theta \epsilon \upsilon \delta \epsilon \iota \nu$  was described (ver. 6) as a state incompatible with Christianity. There remains then only the supposition that they are used in a metaphorical sense (comp. Psalm lxxxviii. 6, Dan. xii. 2, al.), to which also the following thousev seems very distinctly to guide us. The meaning then is substantially the same as Rom. xiv. 8, έάν τε οῦν ζωμεν ἐάν τε άποθνήσκωμεν τοῦ Κυρίου ἐσμέν.

It is not exact to say that the subjunctive with  $\epsilon \tilde{\iota} \tau \epsilon \dots \epsilon \tilde{\iota} \tau \epsilon$  as here is not classical (Alf.), for see Plato, Legg. XII. p. 958 D (v. l.). As a general rule  $\epsilon t \tau \epsilon$ is associated with the same moods as el (Klotz, Devar. Vol. II. p. 533); as however there are cases in which it is now admitted that  $\epsilon l$  can be associated with the subj. ('el cum conjunct. respectum comprehendit experientiæ, expectandumque esse indicat ut fiat aut non fiat,' Herm. de Part. av, II. 7, see Klotz, Devar. Vol. II. p. 500 sq.), a similar latitude may rightly be assigned to  $\epsilon \ell \tau \epsilon$ . It seems probable here that the subj. is used in the dependent clause by way of conformity with the subj. in the principal clause; comp. Winer, Gr. § 41. 2. c, p. 263 (note).

äµa σèν aὐτῷ [τϳσ.] 'we should together live with Him,' not 'together with him,' Auth.; the ເຈົ້າν σὐν Χριστῷ forming the principal idea, while the äµa (Heb. '[תֹרָוֹ,') subjoins the further notion of aggregation; comp. Rom. iii. 12, and see notes on ch. iv. 17, where the previous specifications of time make the temporal meaning the more plausible. The  $\zeta \dot{\gamma} \sigma \omega \mu \epsilon \nu$  is both more emphatic than  $\dot{\epsilon} \sigma \delta \mu \epsilon \theta a$  (ch. iv. 17), and also serves slightly to elucidate the metaphorical use of the preceding words.

11.  $\delta_1 \delta_1$  'Wherefore,' 'On which account;' not exactly 'quæ cum ita sint' (Alf.), but 'quamobrem' (see Klotz, Devar. Vol. II. p. 173, who correctly assigns the former meaning to  $ov_$ ), thereby serving' to place in closer logical connexion the foregoing declaration and the present exhortation. On the uses of this particle by St Paul, see notes on Gal. iv. 31.

παρακαλεῖτε] 'comfort,' 'console,' not 'exhortamini,' Clarom .: the analogy of this verse to ch. iv. 17 (where the contextual argument for the present sense is very strong) appears to require a similarity of translation, more especially as the hortatory tone (ver. 6) seems now to have merged into the consolatory. The exact meaning of this word is frequently somewhat doubtful: it is used more than fifty times in St Paul's Epp., with several varieties of meaning which can only be decided on by a careful consideration of the context; comp. notes on Els tor Eva] 'one the Col. ii. 2. other ;' equivalent in meaning to  $d\lambda\lambda\eta$ λous; see exx. in Kypke, Annot. Vol. II. p. 339, all of which however, except Theocr. Idyll. XXII. 65, are from late authors. Compare of Kat' Eva, Eph. v. 33, and the somewhat analogous els  $\pi p$ ds éva, Plato, Legg. I. p. 626 c, al.; see Winer, Gr. § 26. 2, p. 156. To regard as a prep., and to refer  $\tau \partial \nu$   $\xi \nu a$  to Christ, is in the highest degree forced and improbable; see

12. 'Epwτώμεν δέ] 'Now we beseech you;' transition, by means of the St μεταβατικόν (see notes on Gal. iii. 8), to their duties towards the rulers of the church, -a subject not improbably suggested by the words immediately preceding. In no case could the precept olkodoucite els tor Era be carried out with greater practical benefit to themselves and to the church at large than by showing respect to their appointed spiritual teachers. On the meaning of  $\epsilon \rho \omega \tau \hat{a} \nu$ , see notes on ch. iv. I.

elSéval] 'to know,' 'to regard,' 'ut rationem ac respectum habeatis,' Est.; not 'to show (by deeds) that you know' (Koch), but simply 'to know,' i.e. 'not to be ignorant of,' 'to recognise fully;' this somewhat unusual meaning of  $\epsilon l\delta$ . being analogous to that of the Heb. "I" (see Gesen. Lex. s.v. 8), and here approximating in meaning to έπιγινώσκειν, I Cor. xvi. 18. No instance of a similar or even analogous usage has as vet been adduced from classical Greek.

On the meaning and derivation of κόπος, κοπιάω, see notes on I Tim. iv. 10. This general designation, as the following explanatory terms seem to suggest, is to be referred to the Presbyters of the Church of Thessalonica (Thorndike, Prim. Gov. ch. III. Vol. I. p. 8, A.-C. Libr.), ev vult obviously having no ethical reference,  $\dot{\epsilon}\nu$   $\tau a\hat{i}s$ καρδ. ὑμῶν (Flatt), still less 'in vobis docendis' (Zanch.), but simply implying 'in vestro cœtu' (Schott), 'inter vos,' Vulg.,-with mere local reference to the sphere of the  $\kappa \delta \pi \sigma s$ .

και προϊσταμένους κ.τ.λ.] 'and are presiding over you in the Lord;' further explanation and specification of the generic  $\kappa o \pi i \hat{\omega} \nu \tau a s$ . The omission of the article plainly precludes any reference of the three participles to three different ministerial classes: the κοπιώντες are simply regarded under two forms of their spiritual labour, as rulers and practical teachers, and as 'morum magistri,' Grot. Whether these duties were executed by the same or different persons cannot be determined; at this early period of the existence of the Church of Thess. the first supposition seems much the most probable; contrast Eph. iv. 11, 1 Tim. v. 17. 13. Kal nyelobal K.T. A.] 'and to esteem them in love very highly.' These words appear to admit of two translations according as  $\epsilon \nu \, d\gamma d\pi \eta$  is connected (a) loosely with all the foregoing words, marking the element (certainly not the cause, Schott 2, 1) in which the ήγεισθαι αύτούς ύπερεκ- $\pi \epsilon \rho \iota \sigma \sigma \hat{\omega} s$  is to be put in force, — or (b) closely with the preceding  $\dot{\eta}\gamma\epsilon\hat{\imath}\sigma\theta a\iota$ as specifying and enhancing the general duty implied in the preceding eldévai, ver. 12. Both involve some lexical difficulties, as in (a)  $\eta \gamma \epsilon i \sigma \theta a \iota$ must be regarded as equivalent to  $\pi\lambda\epsilon$ lovos džiouv (Theod.), and in (b)  $η_{\gamma}$ είσθαι έν άγάπη must be taken as ήγεισθαι αύτούς άξίους του άγαπασθαι (Chrys., Theoph., Œcum.),-solutions neither of them very strictly defensible. On the whole, the context, the appy. similar ηγείσθαι τι έν κρίσει, Job xxxv. 2 (Schott), and perhaps the analogous ev opyn Exew Twa. Thucvd. II. 18 (Lünem.), seem to preponderate in favour of (b): in ver. 12 the Thess. are exhorted to respect their spiritual rulers, in the present verse also to love them. So Schott, Olsh., and Lünem. The Vv. by preserving carefully the order deprive us of all clue to the exact construction they adopted. On the cumulative word  $\dot{v}\pi\epsilon\rho\epsilon\kappa\pi\epsilon\rho\iota\sigma\sigma\omega$ s, comp. ch. iii. 10, and notes on Eph. iii. 20. The form  $\dot{v}\pi\epsilon\rho-\epsilon\kappa\pi\epsilon\rho\iota\sigma\sigma\omega$  is here given by Rec. with AD<sup>3</sup>EKLN; appy. all mss.; many Ff.  $\delta\iota\dot{a}\tau\dot{a}$   $\epsilon\rho\gamma\sigma\nu$   $\dot{a}\dot{v}\pi\dot{v}$ ] 'for their work's sake;' on account both of the importance of the work (Heb. xiii. 17) and the earnest and laborious manner in which it was performed; comp. Phil. i. 22, ii. 30.

elphvevere ev éaurois] 'Be at peace among yourselves ;' comp. Mark ix. 50. Rom. xii. 18, 2 Cor. xiii. 11. On this not uncommon use of the reflexive for the reciprocal pronoun  $(\dot{a}\lambda\lambda\dot{\eta}\lambda o_{1S})$ , see Jelf, Gr. § 654. 2, Apollon. de Synt. II. 27, and for the general principle and limits of the permutation, Kühner on Xen. Mem. II. 6, 20. Of the converse use (recipr. for refl.) there is no distinct trace found; see Bernhardy, Synt. vi. 2, p. 273. The reading avτοîs [D¹FGN; many mss.; Augiens., Vulg., Syr. (both), al.; Chrys., Theod.], though distinguished by Griesbach's highest commendatory mark ('indicat lectionem supparem aut æqualem, immo forsitan præferendam receptæ lectioni'), certainly does not seem to deserve it, as it arose in all probability from the feeling that the short admonition was out of place between the longer  $\epsilon \rho \omega \tau \hat{\omega} \mu \epsilon \nu \, \delta \epsilon \, \kappa. \tau. \lambda.$  (ver. 12) and παρακαλ. δέ κ.τ.λ. (ver. 14). Under any circumstances it can scarcely bear the meaning 'pacem habete cum eis,' Vulg., Syr. (comp. Chrys., Theod.), as this would so much more naturally have been expressed by elpyvevere met αὐτῶν, as in Rom. xii. 18.

κτους, παραμυθεῖσθε τοὺς ὀλιγοψύχους, ἀντέχεσθε 15 τῶν ἀσθενῶν, μακροθυμεῖτε πρὸς πάντας. ὁρᾶτε μή

14. Παρακαλοῦμεν δὲ ὑμ.] 'Now we beseech you;' address, neither πρόs τοὐς ἄρχοντας (Chrys.), nor πρός τοὺς διδασκάλους (Theoph., Œcum.), but, as the ἀδελφοί suggests, to all (Pseud.-Ambr., Justin.). The Christian brethren at Thessalonica were not only to be at peace with one another, but also to do their best to cause peace to be maintained by others.

νουθετεῖτε τοὺς ἀτάκτους] 'admonish the unruly;' those who do not preserve their  $\tau d\xi u$ , 'inordinatos,' Beza, 'ungatassans,' Goth. The term ἅτακτος, somewhat laxly rendered by Syr.

In Coffendentes], is primarily and properly, as Chrys. suggests, a 'vox militaris' (Xen. Mem. III. I. 7, where it is opp. to  $\tau \epsilon \tau \alpha \gamma \mu \epsilon \nu os)$ , and thence derivatively a general epithet to denote a dissolute (Plato, Legg. VII. p. 806 c), ill ordered ( $\pi \epsilon \rho l \epsilon \rho \gamma o l \kappa a l$ παρά το προσήκον ποιούντες, Bekker, Anecd. p. 216), and unruly way of living: τίνες δέ είσιν οι άτακτοι; πάντως οί παρά τὸ τῷ Θεῷ δοκοῦν πράττοντες· τάξεως γάρ έστι της στρατιωτικής άρμοδιωτέρα αυτη ή τάξις της έκκλησίας, Chrys. Here the precise reference is probably to the neglect of duties and callings into which the Thessalonians had lapsed owing to their mistaken views of the time of the Lord's coming; comp. ch. iv. 10, 11, and 2 Thess. iii. 6, 11, where alone ἀτάκτωs occurs. "Ατακτος is a απαξ λεγόμ., cf. ατακτείν, 2 Thess. iii. 7. On the meaning of  $\nu o \upsilon \theta \epsilon \tau \epsilon \hat{\iota} \nu$ , see notes and reff. on ver. 12. παραμυθ.] See note on ch. ii. 11.

τοὺς ὀλιγοψύχους] 'the feeble-minded ;' perhaps mainly (as the παραμυθ. seems to suggest) in reference to those who were unduly anxious and sorrowful about the state of the κοιμώμενοι, ch. iv. 13;  $\delta\lambda\iota\gamma o\psi t\chi ous тоду <math>\epsilon \pi l$  тоїз  $\tau \epsilon$ -  $\theta \nu \epsilon \omega \sigma \iota \nu$   $d\mu \epsilon \tau \rho \omega s$   $d\theta \nu \mu o \hat{\nu} \nu \tau a s$   $\dot{\omega} \nu \delta \mu a \sigma \epsilon \nu$ , Theod., — who however not injudiciously also includes  $\tau o ds$   $\mu \eta$   $d\nu \delta \rho \epsilon l \omega s$   $\phi \epsilon \rho \rho \nu \tau a s$   $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu$   $\epsilon \nu a \nu \tau t \omega \nu$   $\tau ds$   $\pi \rho o \sigma \beta o \lambda ds$ , comp. The word  $\delta\lambda \iota \gamma \delta \psi$ . is a  $\ddot{a} \pi$ .  $\lambda \epsilon \gamma \delta \mu$ . in the N. T., and appy. of rare occurrence elsewhere except in the LXX (Isaiah lvii. 15, Prov. xviii. 14, al.; comp. Artemid. Oneirocr. III. 5); the more correct and usual term being  $\mu \iota \kappa \rho \delta \psi \nu \chi o s$ , Aristot. Ethic. Nicom. IV. 7, Isocr. Panegyr. p. 76 D.

αντέχεσθε των ασθενών] 'support the weak;' clearly not the weak in body (Luke x. 9, Acts iv. 9, v. 15, 1 Cor. xi. 30), but the weak in faith,  $\tau o \vartheta s \mu \eta$ έδραίαν κεκτημένους πίστιν, Theod.; comp. I Cor. viii. 7, 10, so Chrys., Theoph., Œcum., and nearly all modern commentators. In Rom. v. 6. and appy. 1 Cor. ix. 22, the reference seems to be more inclusive, as marking those who were not Christians, who had not yet received the strength imparted by the Holy Spirit. The verb άντέχεσθαι (comp. Matth. vi. 24, Luke xvi. 13, and more generically Tit. i. o) does not so much seem to imply 'observare,' Beng., as in epeldeuv, Theod ... ύποστηρίζειν, Theoph., ἀντιλαμβάνεσθαι (Bekker, Anecd. p. 408), or perhaps more exactly 'sustinere,' Clarom. (comp. Goth., Æth.), with a more direct allusion to the primary and physical meaning of the word; comp. notes on Tit. l. c., and see Suicer, Thesaur. s.v. Vol. I. p. 371.

μακροθυμ. πρός πάντας] 'be long-suffering to all;' not merely to the three classes just mentioned (Theoph.), but to all, καl του's οἰκείους καl του'ς ἀλλοτρίους, Theod.; comp. ver. 15. On the term μακροθυμεῖν opp. to ἀξυθυμεῖν

(Eurip. Androm. 689), which here serves to mark that gentle and forbearing patience which is so essentially a characteristic of ἀγάπη (I Cor. xiii. 4), seeesp. Basil, Serm. [Sym. metaphr.] XIII. Vol. III. p. 784 (ed. Bened. 1839), the good notice in Suicer, Thesaur. s.v. Vol. II. p. 293 sq., Röthe, Theol. Ethik, § 1056 sq., Vol. II. p. 518 sq., and comp. 2 Tim. iii. 10, and notes and reff. on Eph. iv. 2. Lastly,  $\pi \rho \delta s$  is not merely 'in regard to,' 'ad omnes,' Vulg., Clarom., 'cum omnibus,' Copt., but more precisely and definitely, erga: comp. the Goth. 'vibra,' and see notes on Gal. vi. 10.

15. δράτε μή τις κ.τ.λ.] 'See that no man render evil, &c.;' warning against revenge,-yet surely not in the sense that the better among them were to check its outbreaks in others (De W.), but simply that all were to abstain from it; see Lünem. in loc. The usual and correct statement that Christianity was the first system definitely to forbid the returning evil for evil (see Fritz. Rom. xii. 17, Vol. III. p. 91) is called in question by Jowett on the ground that 'Plato knew that it was not the true definition of justice to do harm to one's enemies.' Not to multiply quotations, can we sustain this opinion against de Legg. IX. p. 868 B. p. 882, al., where vengeance rather than punishment seems certainly contemplated by the legislator? Individual instances of the recognition of this precept may be found in heathenism (see Pfanner, Theol. Gentil. ch. XI. § 23, comp. Basil, de Legend. Gent. Libr. § 5, Vol. II. p. 251, ed. Bened.), but as a general statement the remark of Hermann seems to be perfectly correct; 'nec laudant Græci si quis iniquis æquus est, sed virtutem esse censent æquis æquum, iniquum autem iniquis esse,' on Soph. Philoct. 679. The formula δράν μή (Matth. xviii. 10, Mark i. 44) is of less frequent occurrence than  $\beta \lambda \epsilon \pi \epsilon \nu \mu \eta$  (Mark xiii. 5, Acts xiii. 40, 1 Cor. x. 12, al.), but is more classical and correct: for exx. of it in combination with the pres. and aor. subj., see, if necessary, the collection in Gayler, Partik. Neg. p. 316 sq. aπoδω] 'render,' 'usgildai,' Goth. The primary idea conveyed by amodidovai, scil. 'ubi quid de aliquâ copiâ das' and thence 'ubi dando te exsolvis debito' (Winer) here naturally passes into that of 'retribuere,' the Kakdv being represented as something stored up, out of which and with which payment would be made; see Winer, de Verb. Comp. IV. p. 12, 13, where this verb is well discussed. The opt.  $\dot{a}\pi o\delta o\hat{i}$  is found in D<sup>2</sup> (appy.) FGN<sup>1</sup>, and ἀποδοίη in D<sup>1</sup>. το άγαθον διώκετε] 'follow after that which is good;' not here what is 'morally good' (Lünem.), but, as the antithesis seems rather to require, what is 'beneficial,' what proves good to him who receives it: our doreî to μη άποδούναι κακά άντι κακών. άλλά χρή, φησί, και άγαθοῖς ἀμείβεσθαι τὸν κακοποιήσαντα, Theoph., comp. Chrys. Some shade of the same meaning is perhaps apparent in Gal. vi. 10, Eph. iv. 28 (see notes): here however it seems to be more decidedly brought out by the preceding κακόν. On the use of διώκειν (έπιτεταμένως σπουδάζειν  $\tau\iota$ , Theoph.) with abstract substantives or their equivalents, see notes and reff. on 2 Tim. ii. 22, and for exx. of the same use in classical Greek, see Ast, Lex. Platon. s.v. Vol. I. p. 548 sq. The correlative term is καταλαμ-Báveiv, Phil. iii. 12, and the antithesis debyew, Plato, Gorg. p. 507 B.

16. πάντοτε xalpere] 'Rejoice alway;' Phil. iii. 1, iv. 4, comp. 2 Cor. vi. 10; not merely κάν πειρασμοίs  $\pi\epsilon\rho\iota\pi\epsilon\sigma\eta\tau\epsilon$  (Theoph.), -a limitation not inappropriate in reference to the recent troubles at Thessalonica, but at all times-under all circumstances and in all dispensations. To the enquiry 'Why should this be a duty?' (comp. Jowett) it seems sufficient to say with Barrow, in his good sermon on this text, -'if we scan all the doctrines, all the institutions, all the precepts, all the promises of Christianity, will not each appear pregnant with matter of joy, will not each yield great reason and strong obligation to this duty of rejoicing evermore?' Serm. XLIII. Vol. II. p. 557; see also sound and comprehensive sermons by Beveridge, Serm. cv. Vol. v. p. 62 sq. (A.-C. Libr.), and Donne, Serm. CXXXI. Vol. v. p. 344 sq. (ed. Alf.). The true originating cause (ch. i. 6) and true sphere (Rom. xiv. 17) of this joy is the Holy Spirit, and its more immediate source is Faith ; see notes on Phil.i. 25.

17. άδιαλείπτως προσεύχ.] ' pray without ceasing;' a precept naturally following on and suggested by the foregoing words : The obder Eberte Tou άει χαίρειν, την άδιάλειπτον προσευχην καί εύχαριστίαν ό γάρ έθισθείς όμιλείν τῷ Θεῷ καὶ εὐχαριστεῖν αὐτῷ ἐπὶ πᾶσιν ώς συμφερόντως συμβαίνουσι, πρόδηλον ότι χαράν έξει διηνεκή, Theoph. This exhortation to unceasing prayer is distinctly urged by the Apostle in other passages (comp. Eph. vi. 18, Col. iv. 2), and is certainly neither to be explained away as 'a precept capable of fulfilment in idea rather than in fact' (Jowett), nor yet, with Bp. Andrewes, to be referred to appointed hours of prayer (Serm. VI. Vol. V. p. 354, A.-C. Libr.), but is to be accepted in the simple and plain meaning of the words, and obeyed, as Barrow has well shown, by cherishing a spirit of prayer, and by making devotion the real and true business of life: see Wordsw. in loc., who appositely cites Barrow, Serm. Vol. I. p. 107 sq. Surely the to out- $\lambda \epsilon \hat{\boldsymbol{\omega}} \tau \hat{\boldsymbol{\omega}} \Theta \epsilon \hat{\boldsymbol{\omega}}$  (Theoph.) is one of those things which is real and actual; οὐδέ τοῦτο τῶν ἀδυνάτων, ῥάδιον γὰρ και τῷ έσθίοντι τόν Θεόν άνυμνειν, και τώ βαδίζοντι την τοῦ Θεοῦ συμμαχίαν αἰτεῖν, Theod.; compare Hofmann, Schriftb. Vol. 11. 2, p. 335. On the duty of constant prayer, see the sound remarks of Hammond, Pract. Catech. III. 2, p. 224 (not quite decided on this text), and on the power of it, compare the noble epilogue of Tertullian, de Orat. cap. 29.

'in omnibus,' Vulg., Copt.; comp. 2 Cor. ix. 8,  $\epsilon^{\nu} \pi a \nu \tau l \pi d \nu \tau \sigma \tau \epsilon$ , which seems to fix the interpretation, and contrast  $\epsilon^{\nu} \mu \eta \delta \epsilon \nu l$ , Phil. i. 28. On the duty of  $\epsilon^{\nu} \chi a \rho \iota \sigma \tau l a$ , so often dwelt on by St Paul (comp. notes on Col. iii. 15), see Beveridge, Serm. CVII. Vol. V. p. 76 sq., and on this and on the preceding verses Basil's homily de Grat. Act. Vol. II. p. 34 (ed. Bened. 1839).

τοῦτο váp] 'for this,' seil. τὸ ἐν παντί edxap. (Theoph., Œcum.); not with reference to it and ver. 17 (Grot.), nor to it and the two preceding verses (Alf.), for though the three precepts χαίρετε, προσεύχεσθε, εύχαριστειτεespecially the two latter-are sufficiently homogeneous in character to be included in the singular  $\tau o \hat{\nu} \tau o$ , yet the peculiar stress which the Apostle always seems to lay on  $\epsilon \dot{v} \chi a \rho$ . (see above) renders the single reference to  $\epsilon \dot{\upsilon} \chi \alpha \rho \iota \sigma \tau \iota \alpha$  apparently more probable: 'gratiæ sunt in omni re agendæ, quia scimus omnia nobis cooperare ad bonum, Rom. viii. 28,' Cocceius; see Hofmann, Schriftb. Vol. II. 2, p. 335. So also Olsh., Bisping, and Lünem., and appy. the majority of recent expositors. After yap Lachm. adds  $\dot{\epsilon}\sigma\tau\iota\nu$  with D<sup>1</sup>E<sup>1</sup>FG; several Vv.; and Lat. Ff., but on insufficient external, and appy. opposing internal evidence. The possible doubt caused by the juxtaposition of  $\tau o \hat{\upsilon} \tau o$  and  $\theta \epsilon \lambda \eta \mu a$ would naturally suggest the interpolation of the verb subst.

έν Χρ. 'Ιησ. els ὑμâs] 'in Christ Jesus toward you:' Christ is here represented not exactly as the medium by which (Theoph., Œcum.) but as the sphere in which the θέλημα is evinced and has its manifestation; ἐν ῷ καl τὰ δόξαντα ποιεῖ κal ἀναγεννῷ, Athan. contr. Arian.

III. 61, Vol. I. p. 610 (ed. Bened. 1608). The objects towards whom 'ad vos' (Clarom.)-not 'in vobis' (Vulg., Copt.), nor 'in reference to whom' (De W.)-it was so evinced, and to whom it was designed to apply, were the converts of Thessalonica. The reference of  $\theta \in \lambda \eta \mu a$  to the 'decretum divinum de salute generis humani per Christum reparandâ' (see Schott) is grammatically doubtful on account of the omission of the article, and by no means exegetically plausible. The  $\theta \in \lambda \eta \mu a$  seems here suitably anarthrous, as marking  $\epsilon \dot{v} \chi a \rho$ , as one part and portion out of many contemplated in the collective  $\theta \in \lambda \eta \mu a \ \Theta \in o \hat{v}$ ; see Lünem. in loc.

19. To IIveunal 'the (Holy) Spirit;' not merely 'vim divinam Christianis propriam' (Noesselt; comp. Beck, Seelenl. p. 37), nor even the gifts of the Spirit as evinced in prophecy (Theod.), nor, more generally, την έν αύτοις άναφθείσαν του Πνεύματος χάριν (Athan. ad Serap. I. 4; see Chrys.), but simply the Holy Spirit, which dwells within in association with our spirit, and evinces His presence by varied spiritual gifts and manifestations; comp. 1 Cor. xii. 8sq., and see Waterl. Serm. XXI. Vol. v. p. 641. The subject of prayer leads naturally to the mention of the Holy Inspirer of it (comp. Rom. viii. 26, Gal. iv. 6), and thence to the specification of other gifts ( $\pi \rho o \phi \eta \tau \epsilon las$ , ver. 20) which emanate from the same blessed Source.

μη σβέννυτε] 'quench'not,' whether in yourselves or in others; contrast 2 Tim. i. 6. The Eternal Spirit is represented as a fire (comp. Andrewes, Serm. Vol. III. p. 124, A.-C. Libr.) which it was regarded as possible to extinguish,— not however in the present case by a Blos akábaptos (Chrys.), but, in accordance with the context,-by a studied repression and disregard of its manifestation, arising from erroneous perceptions and a mistaken dread of enthusiasm; comp. Neander, Planting, Vol. I. p. 202 (Bohn). This is more distinctly specified in what follows. For several illustrations of the expression, see exx. in Wetst., the most pertinent of which is Galen, de Theriac. I7, τὸ φάρμακον...τὸ ἔμφυτον πνεῦμα ραδίως σβέννυσιν. Plutarch, de Defect. Orac. § 17, p. 419 B, ἀποσβήναι τὸ πνεύμα. Tisch. ed. 7 gives (Bév- $\nu\nu\tau\epsilon$  on the authority of B<sup>1</sup>D<sup>1</sup>FG.

21 έξουθενείτε πάντα δε δοκιμάζετε, το καλόν κατέχετε

20. προφητείαs] 'prophecies;' not merely announcements of what was to come to pass, but, in accordance with the more extended meaning of  $\pi\rho \phi \phi$ This in the N.T. (see notes on Eph. iv. II), varied declarations of the divine counsels and expositions of God's oracles, immediately inspired by and emanating from the Holy Spirit; see Meyer on 1 Cor. xii. 10, and Fritz. Rom. xii. 6, Vol. 111. p. 55-59. The difference then between ordinary  $\delta_{i}$ - $\delta a \chi \dot{\eta}$  and  $\pi \rho o \phi \eta \tau \epsilon i a$  consisted in this, that the latter was due to the immediate influence of the Spirit, the former to an éž olkelas διαλέγεσθαι, Chrys.; see Neander, Planting, Vol. I. p. 133 (Bohn), and for a comparison between prophecy and speaking with tongues, Thorndike, Relig. Assemblies, ch. v. Vol. I. p. 182 sq. (A.-C. Libr.).

ἐξουθενεῖτε] 'despise,' 'set at naught;' a word used in the N. T. both by St Paul (Rom. xiv. 3, 10, 1 Cor. i. 28, al.) and St Luke (xviii. 9, xxiii. 11, Acts iv. 11), and found also in the LXX and later writers. On this word, and also the more orthographically correct but apparently less usual ¿ξουevelv (Mark ix. 12, Lachm.) and egov-Evolv (Mark ix. 12; LXX; al.: Hesych. anodokiµájew), compare Lobeck, Phrynichus, p. 182. The habit of despising prophecies, here expressly forbidden, most probably arose from instances of πλανώντες and πλανώμενοι in the Church of Thessalonica, who had brought discredit on this spiritual The deduction of Olsh., that gift. up to the present time St Paul had no apprehensions of any of the fanaticism which afterwards showed itself among the Thessalonians (see 2 Thess.), seems in every way questionable; contrast Neander, Planting, Vol. I. p. 203 sq. (Bohn). They were even now in a state of unrest and disquietude (ch. iv. II sq.); nay, the very exhortation before us gains all its point from the fact that the more sober thinkers had been probably led by the present state of things to undervalue and unduly reject all the less usual manifestations of the Spirit.

21. πάντα δέ δοκιμ.] 'but prove all things;' antithetical exhortation to the foregoing: 'instead of despising and seeking to repress spiritual gifts, let them be manifested, but be careful to prove them.'  $\Pi \dot{a} \nu \tau a$  must thus have a restricted sense, and be limited to the xaplo ματα previously alluded to; πάντα, φησί, δοκιμάζετε τουτέστι τὰς όντως προφητείας, Chrys. A more precise exhortation is given to the Corinthians (1 Cor. xiv. 29), from which, observing the similar and peculiar subject ( $\pi \rho o \phi \eta \tau \epsilon l a$ ) here in question. we must conclude that the present precept to exercise spiritual discernment applied not so much to the Church at large (Neander, Planting, Vol. I. p. 138, Bohn) as more restrictedly to those who had the special gift of διακρίσεις πνευμάτων, 1 Cor. xii. 10.

άπο παντός είδους πονηρού ἀπέχεσθε. Αὐτός δέ ό

In I John iv. I (see Waterl. Serm. XXVII.) the exhortation is appy. more general, but the points to be tried are more elementary, and more easy to be decided on. On the one hand there is only the internal argument that be was interpolated to help out the connexion; on the other hand there is the strong external support, the 'paradiplomatic' argument (comp. Pref. to Gal. p. xvii, Scrivener, Introd. to Criticism of N.T. p. 376) of the  $\Delta E$  having fallen out before the  $\Delta 0$ , and lastly the plausible internal argument that  $\delta \dot{\epsilon}$  was omitted to make this sentence equally unconnected with what precedes and follows. τό καλόν κατέχ.] 'hold fast that which is good;' precept naturally and immediately following on the foregoing : 'exercise the gift of Sidkpisis, and having found what is really good hold to it ;' τὰ ψευδή και τὰ ἀληθή μετὰ δοκιμασίας κρίνετε, και τότε το δόξαν ύμιν καλόν τουτέστι τὰς ἀληθεῖς προφητείας κατέχετε, τουτέστι τιματε, δια φροντίδος ποιείσθε, Theoph. Cratyl. § 334; but observe that in the N.T. it seems equally co-extensive in meaning with  $\dot{a}\gamma a\theta \delta s$ , and frequently, as here, denotes what is simply and morally good ; see notes on ayados on Gal. vi. 10, and comp. 22. από παντός κ.τ.λ.] 'abstain from every form of evil;' general exhortation appended to and suggested by, but not closely connected (De W.) with what precedes; comp. Neand. Planting, Vol. I. p. 204, note (Bohn). In this verse there is some little difficulty, depending first on the meaning of eldous, and secondly on the construction of  $\pi o \nu \eta \rho o \hat{\nu}$ . We will notice these separately. ElSos cannot here be 'appearance,' Auth., Calv. (both probably misled by Vulg. 'specie'), as this meaning is more than lexically doubtful (comp. Luke iii. 22, ix. 29, John v. 37, 2 Cor. v. 7), and, even if it could be substantiated, would here be inappropriate, since the antithesis seems plainly to lie not between τό καλόν and any semblance of evil, 'quod malum etiamsi non sit apparet' (Calv., comp. Wordsw. in loc.), but what is actually and distinctly such. We therefore adopt the more technical meaning 'species,' 'sort' (Plato, Epin. p. 990 E, eldos kal yévos, Parmen. p. 129 C,  $\tau \dot{\alpha} \gamma \epsilon \nu \eta \tau \epsilon \kappa a \epsilon \delta \eta$ , which is supported by abundant lexical authority (see Rost u. Palm, Lex. s. v., and the numerous exx. in Wetstein in loc.), and is exceptically clear and forcible; they were to hold fast  $\tau \partial \kappa \alpha \lambda \partial \nu$  and avoid every sort and species (µh τούτου ή ἐκείνου, ἀλλ' ἁπλῶς παντός, Theoph.) of the contrary. So probably Vulg., Clarom., 'specie,' and more plainly Syr. and [negotio], Copt. hob [re], Æth. megbar [agendi ratione], Goth., al., appy. the Greek Ff., and nearly all modern commentators. It is more difficult to decide whether  $\pi o \nu \eta$ - Θεός της εἰρήνης άγιάσαι ὑμῶς ὅλοτελεῖς, καὶ ὅλόκληρον ὑμῶν τὸ πνεῦμα καὶ ή ψυχὴ καὶ τὸ σῶμα poù is an adjective or substantive. Most of the ancient Vv. (Syr., Vulg., Copt., Æth.) adopt the former, and so possibly the Greek commentators ; the latter however preserves more correctly the antithesis, and infringes less (comp. Svr., Copt., al.) on the technical meaning of eldos. So De Wette, Lünem., Koch, Alf., and the majority of modern commentators. The absence of the article (Bengel, Middl. Gr. Art. p. 378) does not contribute to the decision; as abstract adjectives can certainly have this construction, when it is not necessary to mark the wholeness or entirety of what is specified; comp. Heb. v. 14, Plato, Republ. II. p. 357 C, Tpitov ... eldos aya-000, and see Jelf, Gr. § 451. 1.

The artificial interpretation of Hänsel (Stud. u. Krit. 1836, p. 180 sq.), eld.  $\pi o \nu = \kappa (\beta \delta \eta \lambda o \nu \nu \delta \mu i \sigma \mu a, founded on$ the association of this text in several patristic citations with our Lord's traditional saying ylverde Tpanefiral δόκιμοι (see Suicer, Thesaur. Vol. II. p. 1281 sq.), is here adopted by Baumg.-Crus., but rightly rejected by most subsequent expositors. Even if we admit the very doubtful assumption that the simple eldos might gain from the context the more definite meaning eloos voulomatos, the use of  $d\pi \epsilon \chi \epsilon \sigma \theta \epsilon$ in such a form of expression would still be, as De W. observes, appy. unprecedented.

23. Adros  $\delta \epsilon$  but may  $He_i$ ? Heon whom all depends,—in contrast to them and the efforts they might be enabled to make; comp. ch. iii. 12, where however the emphasis is somewhat different, and the contrast less definitely marked.  $\delta \Theta \epsilon \delta s$  $\tau \eta s \epsilon l p \eta v \eta s$  'the God of peace;' the God of whom peace is a characterizing attribute; the gen. falling under the general category of the gen. of content (Scheuerl. Synt. § 16. 3, p. 115, comp. notes on Phil. iv. 9), and the subst.  $\epsilon l \rho \eta \nu \eta$  marking the deep inward peace and tranquillity which is God's especial gift, and which stands in closest alliance with that holiness which the preceding clauses inculcate. On this meaning of  $\epsilon l \rho \eta \nu \eta$ , see notes on Phil. iv. 7, and on the various meanings which it may assume in this and similar collocations, see Reuss, Théol. Chrét. IV. 18, Vol. II. p. 201.

όλοτελεῖς] 'wholly;' 'per omnia,' Vulg.,—in your collective powers and parts;  $\delta \lambda \sigma \tau$ . marking more emphatically than  $\delta \lambda \sigma v s$  that thoroughness and pervasive nature of holiness ( $\delta \lambda \sigma v s \delta t'$  $\delta \lambda \omega v$ , Œcumen., 'secundum omnes partes,' Cocceius) which the following words specify with further exactness: so distinctly Theoph.,  $\delta \lambda \sigma \tau$ .  $\delta t \tau t \dot{e} \sigma \tau t;$  $\tau \sigma \delta \tau \tau$   $\delta \sigma \tau u s \sigma \omega \mu a \tau t \kappa a t \psi v \chi \hat{y} \cdot \kappa a t \dot{e} \phi \epsilon \dot{f} \hat{s} s$  $\delta t \mu a \theta \eta \sigma y$ . This seems preferable to the qualitative interpretation 'ad perfectum,' Clarom., Æth. (Syr. unites both according to which  $\partial \partial \sigma \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \hat{s}$  would be used proleptically (Syr.-Phil.; comp. reff. on  $d\mu \epsilon \mu \pi \tau \sigma vs$ , ch. iii. 13), but in which the connexion between the substance of the first and second portions of the prayer is less close and self-explanatory. The form  $\partial \lambda \sigma \epsilon \lambda \eta s$  is a  $d\pi$ .  $\lambda \epsilon \gamma \delta \mu$ . in the N. T., but occurs occasionally in later Greek; comp. όλόκληρον κ.τ.λ.] 'may your spirit

... be preserved entire ;' not 'your whole spirit ... be preserved,' Auth., Wordsw., comp. Syr.; δλόκλ., as its position shows, not being an epithet but a secondary predicate; see Donalds. Cratyl. § 302, and comp. notes on Col. ii. 3. This distinction seems to be clearly maintained by all the ancient Vv. (except appy. Syr.); some, as Vulg., al., preserving the order of the Greek, others, as Æth., rendering  $\delta\lambda\delta\kappa\lambda$ . by an adverb placed at the end of the clause. The adj. δλόκληροs is a  $\delta ls \lambda \epsilon \gamma \delta \mu$ , in the N. T. (here and James i. 4), and serves to mark that which is 'entire in all its parts' ( $\ell \nu \mu \eta$ δενί λειπόμενοι, James l. c.), differing from  $\tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \omega$ s as defining rather what is complete, while the latter marks what has reached its proper end and maturity. In a word, the aspect of the former word is (here especially) mainly quantitative, of the latter mainly qualitative; comp. Trench, Synon. § 22, and for exx. see the large collection of Wetst, in loc., one of the most pertinent of which is Lucian, Macrob. § 2, els γήρας άφίκεσθαι έν ύγιαινούση τή ψυχή και όλοκλήρω τώ σώματι. See also Elsner, Obs. Vol. II. p. 278.

The predicate clearly belongs to all three substantives, though structurally connected with the first. ύμῶν το πνεῦμα κ.τ.λ.] 'your spirit and soul and body;' distinct enunciation of the three component parts of the nature of man: the  $\pi\nu\epsilon\hat{\nu}\mu\alpha$ , the higher of the two united immaterial parts, being the 'vis superior, agens, imperans in homine' (Olsh.); the  $\psi v \chi \eta$ , 'vis inferior quæ agitur, movetur, in imperio tenetur' (ib.), the sphere of the will and the affections, and the true centre of the personality; see Olshausen, Opusc. p. 154, Beek, Seelenl. II. 12, 13, p. 30 sq., Schubert, Gesch.

der Seele, § 48, Vol. 11. 495 sq., comp. Vitringa, Obs. Sacr. p. 549 sq.; and more especially Destiny of the Creature, Serm. v., where this text is considered at length, and the scriptural distinction between the  $\pi \nu \epsilon \hat{\upsilon} \mu a$  and  $\psi v \chi \dot{\eta}$  discussed and substantiated. It may be remarked that we frequently find instances of an apparent dichotomy, 'body and soul' (Matth. vi. 25, x. 28, Luke xii. 22, 23), or 'body and spirit' (I Cor. v. 3, vii. 34, cf. Rom. viii. 10), but such passages will be found to be only accommodations to the popular division into a material and immaterial part; the  $\psi v \chi \dot{\eta}$  in the former of the exceptional cases including also the  $\pi\nu\epsilon\hat{\nu}\mu\alpha$ , just as in the latter case the  $\pi\nu\epsilon\hat{\nu}\mu\alpha$  also comprehends the  $\psi v \chi \dot{\eta}$ ; see Olsh. l. c., p. 153 note, and contrast the ineffectual denial of Loesner, Obs. p. 381. To assert that enumerations like the present are rhetorical (De W.), or worse, that the Apostle probably attached 'no distinct thought to each of these words' (Jowett), is plainly to set aside all sound rules of scriptural exegesis. Again to admit the distinctions but refer them to Platonism (Lünem.) is equally unsatisfactory, and equally calculated to throw doubt on the truth of the teaching. If St Paul's words do here imply the trichotomy above described (comp. Usteri, Lehrb. p. 384 sq.), then such a trichotomy is infallibly real and true. And if Plato or Philo have maintained (as appears demonstrable) substantially the same views, then God has permitted a heathen and a Jewish philosopher to advance conjectural opinions which have been since confirmed by the independent teaching of an inspired Apostle. άμέμπτωs] 'blamelessly;' the adver-

On the more exact way in which this  $\delta \lambda \kappa \lambda \eta \rho la$  may be ascribed to body, soul, and spirit, see Destiny of the Creature, p. 107.

24. πιστός κ.τ.λ.] 'Faithful is He who calleth you,' 'qui vocat,' Clarom., scil. God the Father; comp. I Cor. i. g. and see notes on Gal. i. 6. The tense is neither to be pressed as implying an enduring act (Baumg.-Crus., Bisp.), nor to be regarded as identical with the aor. 'qui vocavit,' Vulg., Goth., but simply to be considered as timeless, and as equivalent to a substantive, 'your Caller;' see notes on Gal. v. 8, and Winer, Gr. § 45. 7. p. 316. III ords here in ref. to God implies a faithfulness and trueness to His nature and promises (I Cor. i. 0, πιστός ό Θ. δι' ου έκλήθητε, x. 13, 2 Cor. i. 18, 2 Tim. ii. 13), and hence becomes practically synonymous with άληθήs, Chrys., Theod.; έν γαρ τώ ποιείν & έπαγγέλλεται πιστός έστι λαλων. Athanas. contr. Arian. II. 10, Vol. I. p. 478 (ed. Bened.), see Reuss, Théol. Chrét. IV. 13, Vol. 11. p. 124.

In such cases there is really no ellipse of any pronoun;  $\pi o \iota \hat{e} \nu$  is merely 'nude positum,' receiving its more exact explanation from the context; comp. Koch in loc., and Schömann on Isæus, de Apoll. Hær. § 35, p. 372.

25. προσεύχεσθε περί ήμων] 'pray for us;' comp. Eph. vi. 19, Col. iv. 3, 2 Thess. iii. I, Heb. xiii. 18. De Wette and Alf. remark that  $\pi \epsilon \rho l$  is here less definite than  $i \pi \epsilon \rho$ ; but it is very doubtful whether in this and similar formulæ in the N. T. the difference is really appreciable; see notes on Eph. vi. 19, Fritz. Rom. i. 8, Vol. I. p. 26, and for the general distinction between the prepositions, notes on Gal. i. 4, and on Phil. i. 7. The prayer was doubtless intended to include reference both to his own personal state and to the general success of his Apostolic work; comp. Cocceius in loc. Whether Silvanus and Timothy are included in  $\dot{\eta}\mu\hat{\omega}\nu$  is perhaps doubtful: Lachm, inserts in brackets kal before  $\pi \epsilon \rho l \dot{\eta} \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$ , but on authority [BD<sup>1</sup>; a few mss.; Clarom., Sangerm., Syr.-Phil., Goth.] scarcely sufficient.

26. domáoaobe  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ .] 'Salute all the brethren;' concluding exhortation, apparently addressed to the Elders of the Church (consider ver. 27). In the parallel passages, Rom. xvi. 16, 1 Cor. xvi. 20, and 2 Cor. xiii. 12 ( $\ell \nu$   $\dot{a}\gamma \ell \omega$  $\phi \iota \lambda$ , see Fritz. Rom. l. c.), comp. I Pet. v. 14, the exhortation is  $d\sigma \pi d$ .

27.  $[\dot{a}\gamma loss] \dot{a}\delta \epsilon \lambda \phi o \hat{s}$ ] The reading is very doubtful. Rec., Scholz, and Tisch. ed. 7, insert  $\dot{a}\gamma loss$  with AKL; most mss.; Syr. (both), Vulg., Copt., Goth., Æth. (Platt), Arm.; Chrys., Theod. (De Wette, Koch). It is omitted by Lachm. and Tisch. ed. 1, 2, with BDEFGN; 6 mss.; Clarom., Æth. (Pol.); Ambrst. (Lünem., Alf.). Though the uncial authorities strongly preponderate for the omission, still the almost unanimous testimony of the Vv., and the probability that a word, here used somewhat uniquely by St Paul in adjectival connexion with  $\dot{a}\delta \epsilon \lambda \phi o \hat{s}$ , should be omitted as superfluous, prevent our excluding it altogether from the text: comp. Heb. iii. I. The epithet is certainly not without pertinence in reference to the adjuration and strength of language which marks the verses: all the brethren, viewed generally as Christians, were holy (comp. Numb. xvi. 3), and would especially profit by having this letter read to them.

σασθε άλλήλους: έπειδή φιλήματι αύτούς άσπάσασθαί οὐκ ἠδύνατο, ἀπών δι' έτέρων αύτούς άσπάζεται, Chrys. The Oriental custom of kissing in their greetings (Winer, RWB. s. v. 'Kuss,' Vol. I. p. 688) is here enhanced with Christian characteristics: it is to be a φίλημα άγιον, a φίλημα άγάπης, I Pet. v. 14, an 'osculum pacis,' Tertull. de Oral. cap. 14, a φίλημα μυστικόν, Clem.-Alex. Pædag. III. 11, Vol. I. p. 301 (ed. Potter),-whether as given after prayer (Just. M. Apol. 1. 65; comp. Const. Apost. II. 57, To ev Kuple  $\phi(\lambda \eta \mu a)$ , or more probably as a token of brotherly love and holy affection,no idle, meaningless, and merely pagan custom of salutation. On this custom, see more in Bingham, Antiq. III. 3. 3. Augusti, Archäol. Vol. II. p. 718 sq., Coteler on Const. Apost. I. c., and Fritz. Rom. xvi. 16, Vol. III. p. 310. The prep. èv may here possibly mark the accompaniment (see notes on Col. iv. 2), but is more naturally taken as simply instrumental; the  $\phi i \lambda \eta \mu a$  being that in which, so to say, the  $\dot{a}\sigma\pi a\sigma\mu ds$ was involved; see notes on ch. iv, 18.

27. ἐνορκίζω υμάς κ.τ.λ.] ' I adjure you by the Lord.' This very strong form of entreaty has been differently explained. There does not seem sufficient reason for concluding from ver. 12, 13, with Olsh., that there had been such differences between the Elders and the Church of Thessalonica as to suggest a fear that the Epistle might not be communicated to the church at large; as the language of those verses is admirably calculated both to bespeak respect for the Elders, and to conciliate the Church. That the expression arose from slight distrust combined with a  $\theta \epsilon \rho \mu \eta$  diárota towards his converts (Chrys., Theoph.) is improbable; that it was a customary form with St Paul (Jowett I) is indemonstrable; that the inspired Apostle was not master of his words or did not know their value (Jowett 2) is monstrous. We therefore may perhaps fall back on the reason hinted by Theodoret and expanded by recent expositors,-that a deep sense of the great spiritual importance of this Ep., not merely to those who were anxious about the KOIHWHEVOI (ch. iv. 13) but to all without exception, suggested the unusual adjuration ; ὅρκον προστέθεικε, πασι την έκ της καταγνώσεως ώφέλειαν avayvwoonival] 'be read-as the context suggests-publicly;' comp. Luke iv. 16, Acts xv. 21, 2 Cor. iii. 15, Col. iv. 16. This meaning ('palam prælegatur,' Schott) is however not specially due to the prep. avá, as avayv. is frequently used without any accessory notion of publicity, but is reflected on the verb by the general tenor of the sentence. The aor. infin. perhaps refers to the single act (Alf.), but must certainly not be pressed, as this tense in the infinitive, especially after verbs of 'hoping,' 'commanding,' &c. (see notes on ch. iv. 10), is often used in reference not merely to single acts, but to what is either timeless ('ab omni temporis definiti conditione libera et immunis' Stallb. on Plato, Euthyd. p. 140), or simply eventual, and dependent on the action expressed by the finite verb; see Scheuerl. p. 320 sq., Winer, Gr. § 44. 7. b, p. 296, and esp. Schmalfeld, Syntax, § 173. 4, p. 346,—where the different moods of the infin. are carefully considered and contrasted.

28. 'Η χάρις κ.τ.λ.] The concluding benedictions of St Paul's Epp. are somewhat noticeably varied. Adopting the best attested readings, we may observe that the shortest form is  $\dot{\eta}$  $\chi d\rho \iota s \ \mu \epsilon \theta' \dot{\upsilon} \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$ , Col. iv. 18, 2 Tim. iv. 22 (preceded by & Kúpios 'I. X. μετά τοῦ πνεύμ. σου), and similarly ή χ. μετὰ πάντων ύμων, Tit. iii. 15, [Heb. xiii. 25, ] and ή χ. μετά σοῦ, 1 Tim. vi. 21; the longest being the familiar benediction in 2 Cor. xiii. 13. Of the rest we have first, ή χ. τοῦ Κυρίου ἡμῶν Ί. Χ.  $\mu\epsilon\theta'$   $\dot{\nu}\mu\hat{\omega}\nu$ , as here and Rom. xvi. 20: 2 Thess. iii. 18 and Rom. xvi. 24 (a doubtful verse) give πάντων ύμ.; I Cor. xvi. 23 omits ήμων and probably Xριστοῦ, and appends ή ἀγάπη μου μετὰ πάντ. ύμ. έν Χ. 'Ι. Secondly, ή χ. τοῦ Κυρίου ήμῶν Ί. Χ. μετὰ τοῦ πνεύματος ύμων, as Philem. 25, Gal. vi. 18 (adding  $\delta \epsilon \lambda \phi ol$ ), Phil. iv. 23 (om.  $\eta \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$ ). And lastly, ή χ. μετά πάντων των άγαπώντων τον Κύριον ήμων 'Ι. Χ. έν appapola, Eph. vi. 24. See Koch on Philem. 25, p. 135 sq. The aµhv [Rec. with AD<sup>2</sup>D<sup>3</sup>EKL ; mss.] is appy. rightly omitted by Lachm. and Tisch. with BD1FG; mss.; Clarom., Sangerm., Vulg. (Amiat.), al., being very probably a liturgical addition.

INTRODUCTION.

THIS short but important Epistle was written by the Apostle to his converts at Thessalonica a short time after his First Epistle, and apparently from the same place. If, as seems highly probable, Corinth be regarded as the place from which the First Epistle was written (see Introd. to the First Ep.), we may reasonably suppose the present Epistle to have been written from the same city: the same companions (ch. i. 1, comp. 1 Thess. i. 1) were still with the Apostle (contrast Acts xviii. 18); similar forms and circumstances of trial appear to have been surrounding him (ch. iii, 2, compared with 1 Thess. ii. 16, Acts xviii. 6).

The exact time at which the Epistle was written cannot be determined. If the First Epistle was written soon after the arrival of Timothy from Macedonia (ch. iii. 6), and towards the commencement of the Apostle's eighteenth-month stay at Corinth (Acts xviii. 11), we shall probably not be far wrong in placing the date of the Second Epistle towards the end of the first twelve months of the Apostle's residence there (comp. ch. iii. 2 with Acts xviii. 12, and consider ver. 18,  $\epsilon \tau \iota \pi \rho o \sigma \mu \epsilon i \nu a s i \kappa a \nu a s)$ , and thus but a few months after that of the First Epistle. We may then specify the autumn of A.D. 53 as an approximately correct date: see Davidson, Introd. Vol. 11, p. 440.

The circumstances which gave rise to the Epistle seem clearly to have been some additional information which the Apostle had received concerning the disquieted state of the minds of his converts. Whether this reached him through the bearer of the First Epistle, or formed the substance of a letter from the elders of the Church of Thessalonica, must remain mere conjecture. This much however seems to be certain, that some letter had been circulated at Thessalonica purporting to come from the Apostle (ch. ii. 2) which, combined probably with some teaching equally said to be derived from St Paul (comp. notes on ch. ii. 2), had added greatly to the general excitement, and rendered it necessary for this Second Epistle to be written, and to be vouched for by a clear mark of genuineness (ch. iii. 17). The purport of the letter and the teaching was clearly to the effect that the day of the Lord was at hand; and it does not seem improbable that this might have been based on some expressions in the First Epistle (ch. iv. 15, 16, 17, v. 2 sq.), which had been distorted or exaggerated so as better to keep alive the feverish anxiety and unregulated enthusiasm of the converts in this busy city. We may thus perhaps, with Davidson (Introd. Vol. 11. p. 448), consider it more probable that the Second Epistle was an indirect than a direct result of the First. It was apparently not so much designed to correct innocent misapprehensions of the former Epistle (Paley, al.) as to remove a positively false construction which had been put-whether with a partly good or mainly bad intent we know not-both on that Epistle and on the Apostle's general teaching.

The whole Epistle indeed is so clearly supplemental to the First (comp. also ch. ii. 15) that we may without hesitation reject the opinion of Grotius and Ewald, who reverse the order of the two Epistles.

The main object of the Epistle then was to calm excitement, and to make it perfectly plain that the Lord's second Advent was not close at hand, nay, that a mysterious course of events previously alluded to (ch. ii. 5), of which the beginning could confessedly be already recognised (ver. 7), had first to be fully developed. Corrective instruction is thus the chief subject; with this however is associated cheering consolation under afflictions (ch. i. 4 sq.), and direct exhortation to orderly conduct (ch. iii. 6), industry (ver. 8 sq.), and quietness (ver. 12).

The authenticity and genuineness are supported by early and explicit external testimonies (Irenæus c. Hær. III. 7. 2, Clem.-Alex. Strom. v. p. 655, ed. Pott., Tertullian de Resurr. Carn. cap. 24), and have never been called in question till recently. The objections however are of a most arbitrary and subjective character, and do not deserve any serious consideration. Complete answers will be found in Lünemann, Einleitung, p. 163 sq., and Davidson, Introd. Vol. II. p. 454 sq.

Apostolic address and ΠΑΥΛΟΣ καὶ Σιλουανὸς καὶ Τιμό- Ι. salutation. ἐν Θεῷ πατρὶ ἡμῶν καὶ Κυρίψ Ἰησοῦ Χριστῷ. χάρις 2 ὑμῦν καὶ εἰρήνη ἀπὸ Θεοῦ πατρὸς ἡμῶν καὶ Κυρίου Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ.

2.  $\pi \alpha \tau \rho \delta \dot{\eta} \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$ ] The reading is doubtful. Tisch. (ed. 2, 7) omits, and Lachm. brackets  $\dot{\eta} \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$  with BDE; 3 mss.; Clarom., Sangerm.; Theoph.; Ambrst. (ed.), Pel. (Lünem., Alf.). C is deficient. The pronoun is retained in Rec. with AFGKLN; appy. great majority of mss.; Syr. (both), Aug., Vulg., Goth., Æth. (both), Copt., Arm.; Chrys., Theod., al. (Griesb., but marked with<sup>0</sup>),—and appy. rightly; for on the one hand the preponderance of external authority is very decided, and on the other the probability of an omission either accidentally or intentionally, owing to the  $\dot{\eta} \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$  just preceding, is not much less than the probability of an interpolation to conform with other Epistles.

I. Παῦλος καὶ Σιλουανὸς καὶ T.] The same form of salutation as in the First Epistle; see notes in loc. The only difference lies in the addition of  $\dot{\eta}\mu\omega\nu$  to  $\pi\alpha\tau\rho l$ , which, contrary to what we might have expected, does not appear to have suggested any variety of reading. For a brief account of Silvanus and Timothy, who are here, as in the First Ep., associated with the Apostle as having co-operated with him in founding the Church of Thessalonica, see notes on 1 Thess. i. I.

In 2 John 3 we find  $\pi a \rho \dot{a}$  in the same combination, but with a difference of meaning that in the present case (in ref. to God) is scarcely appreciable, and depends perhaps entirely on the usage and mode of conception of the writer. St John, for example, uses  $\pi a \rho \dot{a}$  (with gen.) and  $\dot{a} \pi \dot{o}$  in a proportion rather more than I to 3, while St Paul uses the same prepp. in a proportion of 1 to nearly 10. The general distinction between these prepp.  $(\dot{a}\pi \dot{b}, \text{ emanation simply}; \pi a \rho \dot{a}, \text{ eman.}$ from a personal source) and the more frequently used  $\epsilon \kappa$  is well stated by Winer, Gr. § 47. b, p. 326.

3. Eixap. ode ( )our ] 'We are bound to give thanks,' scil. St Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy. Though we must be cautious in pressing the plural in every case, yet in the present, when we remember the relation in which Silvanus and Timothy stood to the Church of Thessalonica, it can hardly be overlooked: see notes on I Thess. i. 2. On this use of  $\epsilon i \chi a \rho \iota \sigma \tau \epsilon i \nu$  in the sense of χάριν ἕχειν, see notes on Phil. i. 3, and for the constructions of evxap., notes on Col. i. 12. The occurrence in this connexion of so strong a word as  $\delta\phi\epsilon\lambda\epsilon\omega$  is well worthy of note.

περί ὑμῶν] 'concerning you;' with no very appreciable difference from  $\vartheta \pi \dot{\epsilon} \rho$ (Eph. i. 16) in the same formula; see notes on I Thess. i. 2, v. 25, and for the distinction between these prepositions in cases where they appear less interchangeable, see on Gal. i. 4, and on Phil. i. 7. καθώς άξιόν ioniv] 'as it is meet;' not on the one hand a mere parenthetical addition to the preceding  $\epsilon i \chi a \rho$ .  $\delta \phi \epsilon l \lambda$ . Thus, as Lünem. well observes, while the  $\delta\phi\epsilon i$ - $\lambda o \mu \epsilon \nu$  states the duty of the  $\epsilon \dot{\nu} \chi a \rho_i \sigma \tau i a$ on its subjective side,  $\kappa \alpha \theta \omega s \kappa. \tau. \lambda$ . subjoins the objective aspects. It may be remarked that few particles in St Paul's Epp. cause a more decided discrepancy of interpretation than  $\delta \tau \iota$ . Between the merely objective (Winer, Gr. § 53. 9, p. 398) and the strictly causal force (id. 8. b, p. 395) of the particle it is not only often very difficult to decide, but in several passages (e.g. Rom. viii. 21) exceptical considerations of some moment will be found to depend on the decision.

compounds of  $i\pi \partial \rho$  has been noticed and briefly illustrated on Eph. iii. 20; see also Fritz. Rom. v. 20, Vol. I. p. 351. It may be observed that  $i\pi \epsilon \rho a v \xi d v \epsilon_i$  appears to be associated with  $\pi t \sigma \tau \iota s$  as conveying more distinctly the idea of organic evolution and growth (comp. Matth. xvii. 20, Luke xvii. 6), while with  $d\gamma d \pi \eta$  a term is used which expresses more generally the idea of spiritual enlargement, and of extension toward others; comp. notes on 1 Thess. iii. ένος έκάστου κ. τ. λ.] 'of every one of you all toward each other;' not without distinctive emphasis,- first, in specifying that this  $\dot{a}\gamma\dot{a}\pi\eta$  was not merely general, but was individually manifested (ἴση ἦν παρὰ πάντων ἡ  $\dot{a}\gamma \dot{a}\pi\eta$  els  $\pi \dot{a}\nu\tau as$ , Theoph.), and secondly, in showing that it was not restricted in its exhibitions to those who loved them, but extended to all their fellow-Christians at Thessalonica; όταν μερικώς άγαπωμεν, ούκ άγάπη τοῦτο ἀλλὰ διάστασις εἰ γὰρ διὰ τὸν Θεόν άγαπậς πάντας άγάπα, Theoph. On this verse see five practical sermons by Manton, Works, Vol. IV. p. 420-458 (Lond. 1698).

4.  $i\mu\hat{a}s a\dot{v}\tau o\dot{v}s$ ] 'we ourselves,' as well as others, whether among you or elsewhere, who might call attention to your Christian progress more naturally and appropriately than those who felt it to be humanly speaking due to their own exertions, but who in the present case could not forbear. De Wette compares I Thess. i. 8, but it may be doubted whether St Paul had here that passage very distinctly in his thoughts. To refer  $i\mu\hat{a}s a\dot{v}\tau o\dot{v}s$ to St Paul himself, in contrast to his associates included in the preceding plural verbs (Schott), seems distinctly illogical: and to leave open the possibility that this may be only an instance of 'false emphasis or awkwardness of expression' (Jowett) can only be characterized as a subterfuge at variance with all fair, sound, and reasonable The distinction between exegesis.  $\dot{\eta}\mu\epsilon\hat{\imath}s$  avtol (in which the emphasis falls on the  $\dot{\eta}\mu\epsilon\hat{\imath}s$ ) and  $a\dot{\upsilon}\tau ol$   $\dot{\eta}\mu\epsilon\hat{\imath}s$  (in which it falls more on the avit of, comp. Psalm lii. 1, cvi. 47, al., in eccl. writers, and in Æsop, Fab. CCCXLII. p. 139 (ed. Schneider). The reading is not by any means certain: Rec. with DE(FG καυχήσασθαι) KL; mss.; many Ff., reads καυχάσθαι; but the probability that the change to the simpler and more common form is due to a corrector is in this case so great that the reading of Lachm. and Tisch., supported by ABN; 17, must be considered to deserve the preference. There is no êv διà δυcîv in these words, scil. ύπομονηs έν πίστει, Grot., - ever a doubtful and precarious assumption (see Fritz. on Matth. p. 853 ff. Excurs. T., especially when the more usual meaning has just preceded (ver. 3) in reference to the same subjects. The Thessalonians evinced faith in its proper and usual sense, in bearing up under their tribulations, and) believing on Him while they were bearing His cross. On the meaning of  $\dot{\upsilon}\pi o\mu o\nu \eta$  (here almost taking the place of  $\delta \lambda \pi i s$ , Neand. πάσιν seems clearly to belong only to διωγμοῖς; the article would otherwise have been omitted before  $\partial \lambda l ψ ε \sigma ιν$ . The distinction between the two words appears sufficiently obvious:  $\delta ιωγμ ds$ is the more special term ('injurias complectitur quas Judæi et ethnici Christianis propter doctrinæ Christianæ professionem imposuerunt, 'Fritz.),  $\partial \lambda i ψ \iota$ s the more general and comprehensive; see Fritz. Palm, Lex. s.v. Vol. I. p. 227. The present tense shows that the application is still going on, and is in no way at variance with I Thess. i. 6, ii. 14 (contrast Baur, Paulus, p. 488, notes), which refer to an earlier persecution that appears to have partially subsided before the first Epistle was writ-The present allusion, as Lünem. ten. rightly observes, is to some fresh outbreak. endurance of all their persecutions and their afflictions in patience and faith formed the Evoleryma This diralas κρίσεως τοῦ Θεοῦ; comp. Rom. viii. 3, and see Winer, Gr. § 59. 9, p. 472. The reference of Evdayua to the Thessalonians ('ipsi Thessal. adversa sustinentes intelligi possunt esse exemplum justi judicii Dei,' Est.) is grammatically plausible, but both logically and exegetically improbable and unsatisfactory: the proof of the righteous judgment of God was not to be looked for in the Thessalonians themselves, but in their acts and their patient endurance. της διkalas kploews] 'the just judgment,' that will be displayed at the Lord's second coming (comp. ver. 7), when they who have suffered with and for the Lord will also reign with Him; comp. 2 Tim. ii. 12. To refer the δικαία κρίσιs solely to present sufferings as perfecting and preparing the Thessalonians for future glory (Olsh.) is to miss the whole point of the sentence: the Apostle's argument is that their endurance of sufferings in faith is a token of God's righteous judgment and of a future reward, which will display itself in rewarding the patient sufferers, as surely as it will inflict punishment on their persecutors; ίστε σαφώς τών κινδύνων τά άθλα, και την τών ούρανών προσδέχεσθε βασιλείαν, του άγωνοθέτου την δικαίαν έπιστάμενοι ψηφον, Theod.

els rò καταξιωθ.] 'that ye may be counted worthy;' general direction of the δικαία κρίσιs and object to which it tended. This infinitival clause has been associated with three different portions of the preceding sentence; (a) with als  $d\nu \epsilon_{\chi} \epsilon \sigma \theta \epsilon$ , scil. 'quas afflictiones sustinctis eo fine et fructu ut...efficiamini digni regno Dei,' Est.;

Of these, while (a) causes the really important member  $\xi \nu \delta \epsilon \iota \gamma \mu \alpha \kappa. \tau. \lambda$ . to relapse into a mere parenthesis, and (b) infringes on the almost regular meaning of  $\epsilon ls \tau \delta$  with the infin., (c) preserves the logical sequence of clauses and the usual force of  $\epsilon ls \ \tau \delta$ with the infin. Whether however the result or the aim is here specified is somewhat doubtful. The decidedly predominant usage in St Paul's Epp. of  $\epsilon is \tau \delta$  with the inf. suggests the latter (Winer, Gr. § 44. 6, p. 295, Meyer on Rom. i. 20, note): as however there seems some reason for recognising elsewhere in the N.T. a secondary final force of  $\epsilon is \tau \delta$  (see notes on I Thess. ii. 12), we may perhaps most plausibly in the present case regard the  $\kappa \alpha \tau \alpha \xi \iota \omega \theta \hat{\eta} \nu \alpha \iota \kappa. \tau. \lambda.$ not purely as the purpose, 'in order to,' Alf., but rather as the object to which it tended: the general direction and tendency of the kplous was that patient and holy sufferers should be accounted worthy of God's kingdom. της βασιλείας του Θεού] 'the kingdom of God;' His future kingdom in heaven, of which the Christian here on earth is a subject, but the full privileges of which he is to enjoy hereafter; see notes on I Thess. ii. 12, and comp. Est., but, with a more general reference, 'in behalf of which,' 'for the sake of which,'-the  $i\pi\epsilon\rho$  marking the object for which ('in commodum cujus,' Usteri, Lehrb. II. 1. 1, p. 116) the suffering was endured (comp. Acts v. 41, Rom. i. 5, see Winer, Gr. § 48. 1, p. 343), while the kal with a species of consecutive force supplies a renewed hint of the connexion between the suffering and the καταξιω- $\theta$   $\hat{\eta}$   $\nu a_l \kappa, \tau, \lambda$ . On this force of  $\kappa a_l$ , see Winer, Gr. § 53. 3, p. 387, and comp. notes on I Thess. iv. I. The clause thus contains no indirect assertion that sufferings established a claim to the kingdom of God (άπὸ τοῦ πάσχειν προπορίζεται ή βασιλεία των ούρανων, Theoph.), but only confirms the idea elsewhere expressed in Scripture that they formed the avenue which led to it (ούτως δεί εις την βασιλείαν είσιέναι, Chrys.), and that the connexion between holy suffering and future blessedness was mystically close and indissoluble; comp. Acts xiv. 22, Rom. viii. 17. On the general aspects of suffering in the N.T., see Destiny of the Creature, p. 36-43.

It is somewhat singular that a scholar usually so sound as Schott should have felt a difficulty at the division into two classes; surely the article before  $\mu\dot{\eta}$   $\dot{\upsilon}\pi\alpha\kappa$ . renders such a view all but certain; see Winer, Gr. § 19. 5, p. 117, Green, Gr. p. 215. Even in seeming exceptions to the rule (Matth. xxvii. 3 [Rec.], Luke xxii. 4 [Tisch.], al.) it may be fairly questioned whether the writer did not in these particular cases really intend the two classes to be regarded as separate, though otherwise commonly united. The reading is slightly doubtful; Rec. adds, and Lachm. inserts in brackets, Xριστοῦ with AFGN; mss.; Vulg., Clarom., Syr., Goth., al. C is defici-Though the omission of  $X\rho$ . ent. does not characterize this Ep. as it does the first (see notes on I Thess. iii. 13), 'Ino. alone [with BDEKL; 25 mss.; Copt., Syr.-Phil., Æth.; many Ff.] is on the whole the more probable reading here.

If we revert to the distinctions stated in the notes on Gal. iv. 24, it would seem that  $\delta\sigma\tau_{iS}$  is here used, not in a causal sense with ref. to the reason for tloovow (Lünem., Alf .- who however mix up two usages), but explicatively (' who truly '), or even simply classifically, with ref. to the class or category to which the antecedents are referred, and to the characteristics which mark them ; see notes on Gal. ii. 4, and on Phil. ii. 20. The brief distinction of Krüger (Sprachl. § 50. 8), that ôs has simply an objective aspect, öστιs one qualitative and generic, will in most cases be found useful and applicable. For other and idiomatic usages, see Ellendt, Lex. Sophocl. s. v. Vol. II. p. 381 sq., and comp. Schaefer. notes on Demosth. Vol. II. p. 531.

Sikny TIGOUGLY] 'shall pay the penalty.' This formula does not occur elsewhere in the N.T. All the sounder commentators on this text recognise in alúvios a reference to 'res in perpetuum futuræ' (Schott), and a testimony to the eternity of future punishment that cannot easily be explained away: ποῦ τοίνυν οι 'Ωριγενισται οι τέλος της κολάσεως μυθούμενοι; αλώνιον ταύτην ό Παῦλος λέγει, Theoph.; comp. Pearson, Creed, Art. XII. p. 465 (ed. Burton). In answer to the efforts of some writers of the present day to give alúvios a qualitative aspect, let it briefly be said that the earliest Greek expositors never appear to have lost sight of its quantitative aspects; akpiβέστερον έδειξε της τιμωρίας το μέγεθος αλώνιον ταύτην ἀποκαλέσας, Theod. For further remarks on this subject, see notes and reff. in Destiny of the Creature, Serm. IV., and for a discussion of the grave question of the eternity of divine punishments, Erbkam, in Stud. u. Krit. for 1838, p. 422 sq. The reading of Lachm. (non marg.)  $\delta\lambda \epsilon\theta\rho \iota o\nu$  [with A; 2 mss.; Ephr., Chrvs. (ms.)] is far too feebly supported to deserve much consideration. άπο προσώπου τοῦ Kup.] ' removed from the presence of the Lord.' These words have received three different explanations, corresponding to the three meanings, temporal, causal, and local, which may be assigned to the preposition. Of these  $d\pi d$  can scarcely be here (a) temporal (άρκεῖ παραγενέσθαι μόνον και δφθήναι τον Θεόν και πάντες έν κολάσει και τιμωρία γίνονται, Chrys., comp. Theoph., Œcum.), as the subst. with which it is associated (not  $\pi \alpha \rho$ ovolas but  $\pi \rho o \sigma \omega \pi o v$ ) seems wholly to preclude anything but a simple and quasi-physical reference. Equally doubtful is (b) the causal translation; for though  $d\pi \partial$  may be thus associated with neuter and even passive verbs, as marking the personal source whence the action originates (see exx. in Winer, Gr. § 47. a, p. 332, comp. Thiersch, de Pentat. 11. 15, p. 106), yet, on the other hand, such a connexion in the present case would involve the assumption that  $\pi \rho o \sigma \omega \pi o v$  $\tau o \hat{v}$  Kup. was a periphrasis for the personal rou Kuplov (Acts iii, 19, cited by De W., owing to the dissimilar nature of the verbs, is no parallel), and merely equivalent to 'præsente Domino' (comp. Pelt), -a resolution of the words in a high degree precarious and doubtful. We therefore adopt (c) the simply local translation, according to which  $d\pi \partial$  marks the idea of 'separation from' (Olsh., Lünem.), emkedma ['de devant'] Æth., while

έλθη ἐνδοξασθηναι ἐν τοῖς άγίοις αὐτοῦ καὶ θαυμασθηναι ἐν πᾶσιν τοῖς πιστεύσασιν, ὅτι ἐπιστεύθη τὸ μαρτύριον

προσώπου τοῦ Κυρ. retains its proper meaning, and specifies that perennial fountain of blessedness (comp. Psalm xvi. 11, Matth. xviii. 10, Rev. xxii. 4), to be separated from which will constitute the true essence of the fearful 'pœna damni' (Jackson, Creed, XI. 20. q): see further details in Schott and Lünem. in loc., by both of whom this view is well maintained. The article before Kuplov is omitted by DEFG; 10 mss. άπό της δόξης κ.τ.λ.] 'from the glory of His might;' not 'His mighty glory,' Jowett,-a most doubtful paraphrase, but the glory arising from, emanating from His might (gen. originis, comp. notes on I Thess. i. 6), the dóža being regarded, so to speak, as the result of the exercise of His  $l\sigma\chi vs$ , and as that sphere and halo which environs its manifestations. The assumption of De W. that in this clause  $\dot{a}\pi\dot{o}$  has a causal force is perfectly gratuitous.

10. ὅταν έλθη] 'when He shall have come;' specific statement of the time in which the preceding  $\delta l \kappa \eta \nu \tau l \sigma o \nu \sigma \iota \nu$ shall be brought about and accomplished; τότε γάρ τοῦ κριτοῦ τὴν δικαίαν ψηφον θαυμάσουσιν απαντες, Theod. On the force of  $\delta \tau a \nu$  with the aor. subj. as referring to an objectively possible event, which is to, can, or must, take place at some single point of time distinct from the actual present, but the exact epoch of which is left uncertain, see Winer, Gr. § 42. 5, p. 275, and esp. Schmalfeld, Synt. § 121, where the nature of the construction is well discussed. The most natural and idiomatic mode of translation is briefly noticed in notes to Transl. ένδοξασθήναι έν κ.τ.λ.] 'to be glorified in (the persons of) His saints;' infinitive of design or purpose, — not equivalent to  $\omega \sigma \tau \epsilon \kappa . \tau . \lambda$ . (Jowett), from which it is grammatically distinguishable as involving no reference to mode or degree; see notes on Col. i. 22, where both formulæ are briefly discussed. The verb itself is a  $\delta ls$ λεγόμ. in the N.T. (here and ver. 12), and, except in the LXX (Exod. xiv. 4, Isaiah xlv. 25, xlix. 3, al.) and eccl. writers, is of rare occurrence. The prep. seems here very distinctly to mark-not the mere locality 'among His saints' (Michael.), still less the instruments or media of the glorification (ev dia eotl, Chrys., Beng.), but the substratum of the action, the mirror as it were (Alf.) in which and on which the δόξα was reflected and displayed; comp. Exod. xiv. 4, Isaiah xlix. 3, and see notes on Gal. i. 24.

Lastly, the ayıa do not here appear to be the Holy Angels, but, as the tacit contrasts and limitations of the context suggest, the risen and glorified company of believers ; contrast I Thess. iii. 13, where both  $\pi d\nu \tau \epsilon s$ , and the absence of all notice of the unholy, suggest the more inclusive reference. θαυμασθήναι κ.τ.λ.] 'to be wondered at in all them that believed ;' scil. owing to the reflection of His glory and power which is displayed in those who believed on Him while they were on earth; fobstupescent Christum in credentibus tam magnum et gloriosum esse,' Cocceius. The aor. πιστεύσασιν [ Rec. πιστεύουσιν, but in opp. to all MSS.; many Vv. and Ff.] is here suitably used in connexion with the period referred to: at that time the belief of the faithful would belong to the past; comp. κ.τ.λ.] 'because our testimony unto you was believed;' parenthetical clause taking up the preceding  $\pi \iota \sigma \tau \epsilon \iota \sigma a \sigma \iota v$ , and giving it a more distinct reference to those  $(\dot{\epsilon}\phi' \dot{\nu}\mu\hat{a}s)$  to whom he was writing. The μαρτύριον ήμων is the testimony relating to Christ (µapr. τοῦ Xρ., 1 Cor. i. 6), the message of the Gospel (μαρτύριον δὲ κήρυγμα προσηγόρευσε, Theod.), delivered by the Apostle and his associates (gen. originis or causæ efficientis, Scheuerl. Synt. § 17, see notes on I Thess. i. 6), the destination of which is specified in the same enunciation; comp. Col. i. 8, την ύμων άγάπην έν Πνεύματι, where, as here, the anarthrous prepositional member gives the whole clause a more complete unity of conception; see notes l.c., and Winer, Gr. § 30. 2, p. 123. On the prep.  $\ell \pi l$ , which here seems to mark the mental-direction of the μαρτύριον (comp. Luke ix. 5), and commonly involves some idea of 'nearness or approximation' (Donalds. Crat. § 172), see Winer, Gr. § 49. l, p. 363 sq. έν τη ήμέρα έκ. is most naturally joined with  $\theta a \nu \mu a \sigma \theta \hat{\eta} \nu a \iota \kappa. \tau. \lambda.$ , to which it is joined as a predication of time, reiterating and more precisely defining the foregoing temporal clause δταν  $\ell \lambda \theta \eta$  κ.τ. λ. Some of the older Vv., e.g. Syr., Æth., Goth., appear to have joined these words with what precedes, but are compelled either to regard the aor.  $\epsilon \pi \iota \sigma \tau$ . as equivalent to a future ( Syr., but not Syr.-Phil.) or to assign meanings to  $\dot{\epsilon}\nu$ τŷ ήμ. έκ., scil. 'de illo die,' Menoch., 'cum spe retributionis in illo die percipiendæ,' Est., that are neither grammatically nor exegetically defensible. The position of  $\epsilon \nu \tau \hat{\eta} \dot{\eta} \mu$ .  $\epsilon \kappa$ . is confessedly somewhat unusual, but perhaps may have been designed to impress still more on the readers the exact and definite epoch when all was to be realized.

II. Eis ö] 'Whereunto,' 'with expectations directed to which,' to its realization and fruition; not equivalent to δι' ö (Auth., Schott), nor even to  $\dot{\upsilon}\pi\dot{\epsilon}\rho$  & (comp. De W.), but simply, with the primary force of the prep., definitive of the direction taken, as it were, by the longing prayers of the A postle and his associates ; see Winer, Gr. § 49. a, p. 354, Donalds. Cratyl. § 170, and comp. Col. i. 29, but observe that the verb with which it is there associated  $(\kappa o \pi \iota \hat{\omega})$  gives the prep. a somewhat stronger and more definite και προσευχόμεθα] meaning. 'we also pray;' besides merely longing or merely directing your hopes, we also avail ourselves of the definite accents of prayer, the kal gently contrasting the  $\pi \rho \sigma \epsilon v \chi$ . with the infusion of confidence and hope involved in the preceding words and especially echoed in the parenthetical member. On this use of kal, see notes on Phil. iv. 12, and on the use of  $\pi\epsilon\rho i$  with  $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma\epsilon i \chi$ . see notes on I Thess. v. 25, and on Col. i. 3. ίνα ύμας κ.τ.λ.] 'that God may count you worthy of your calling;' subject of the prayer blended with the purpose of making it; Iva having here, as not uncommonly in this combination, its secondary and weakened force; comp. Col. iv. 3, I Thess. iv. I, and notes on Eph. i. 17, and on Phil. i. g. The verb agiouv occurs 7 times in the N.T. (Luke vii. 7, 1 Tim. v. 17, Heb. iii. 3, al.), and regularly in the sense of 'esteeming or counting agios' ('dignari,' Vulg. here, κλήσεως ό Θεός ήμων και πληρώση πάσαν ειδοκίαν άγα-12 θωσύνης και έργον πίστεως εν δυνάμει, όπως ενδοξασθή

Clarom.), not of making so (comp. Syr. (and, Copt., al.), a meaning not lexically demonstrable; compare Rost u. Palm, Lex. s.v. The contrary is urged by Olsh., on the ground that the context shows that the call had been already received : khnous however, though really the initial act (comp. 1 Thess. ii. 12), includes the Christian course which follows (Eph. iv. I), and its issues in blessedness hereafter; κλήσιν ούν ένταῦθα λέγει την διά των πράξεων βεβαιουμένην, ήτις και κυρίως κλήσίς έστι, Theoph., see notes on Phil. iii. 14, and comp. Reuss, Théol. Chrét. IV. 15, Vol. 11, p. 145. πληρώση πάσαν κ.τ.λ.] 'falfil, bring to completion, every good pleasure of goodness,' 'ut expleat omnem dulcedinem honestatis, h. e. ut plenam et perfectam, quâ recreemini, honestatem vobis impertiat,' Fritz. Rom. x. I, Vol. II. p. 372, note. The meaning of these words is not perfectly clear. The familiar use of εὐδοκεῖν, εὐδοκία, in ref. to God (Eph. i. 5, 9, Phil. ii. 13), suggests a similar reference in the present case (Œcum., Theoph. in part, Beng., al.); to this however there is (1) the exegetical objection that dyadwovn. though occurring 4 times in St Paul's Epp., is never applied to God, and (2) the more grave contextual objection that the second member  $\xi_{\rho\gamma\sigma\nu} \pi i \sigma \tau \epsilon \omega s$ . equally undefined by any pronoun, certainly refers to those whom the Apostle is addressing. It seems safest then to refer the present member to the Thessalonians; evoorla marking the good pleasure they evinced, and the defining gen. ayalwourns (gen. objecti, Krüger, Sprachl. § 47. 7. 1,-not of apposition, Alf.) the element in which it was so manifested, or more exactly, the object to which the action implied in the derivative subst. was especially directed ; see Scheuerl. Synt. § 17. I, p. 126. The attempt to refer the expression partly to God and partly to the Thess. (Olsh., comp. Theoph.), or to regard the operation of the believer and that of the Spirit as blended and confused (Jowett), is in a high degree precarious and unsatisfactory. On the meaning of evdoxía. see the good note of Fritz. l.c. Vol. H. p. 369 sq., and on the meaning of ayabwovy (moral goodness) and its distinction from ayabbrys, notes on Gal. v. 22. έργον πίστεως] ' the work of faith,' the work which is the distinctive feature of it; Epyov being that which marks, characterizes, and evinces the vitality of the  $\pi l \sigma \tau \iota s$ , almost 'the activity of faith,' not however merely as  $\tau \dot{\eta} \nu \ \dot{\upsilon} \pi o \mu o \nu \dot{\eta} \nu \ \tau \hat{\omega} \nu$ διωγμών, Theoph., but  $i \pi o \mu o \nu \eta \nu$  as exhibited in the various circumstances of Christian life and duty. τὸ ὄνομα τοῦ Κυρίου ἡμῶν Ἰησοῦ ἐν ὑμῖν καὶ ὑμεῖς ἐν αὐτῷ κατὰ τὴν χάριν τοῦ Θεοῦ ἡμῶν καὶ Κυρίου Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ.

Be not disquieted concerning the Lord's coming. The Man of Sin, as ye know, must first  $\tau \eta s$  mapouroias  $\tau o \tilde{v}$  Kupiou  $\eta \mu \hat{\omega} v$  in $\sigma o \hat{v}$ be revealed; and then shall be destroyed by the Lord.

tween the present use of  $\delta\pi\omega s$  (used comparatively rarely by St Paul; only 6 times excluding quotations), and the corresponding one of Iva. Speaking somewhat roughly, one may perhaps say that the relatival compound  $\delta\pi\omega s$ (Donalds. Cratyl. § 196) involves some obscure reference to manner, while wa (appy. connected with the reflexive I, or the pronoun of the second person, comp. Donalds. Cratyl. § 139) may retain some tinge of its primary reference to locality. The real practical differences however are these, (a) that  $\delta\pi\omega$ s has often more of an eventual aspect; (b) that it is used with the future and occasionally associated with  $d\nu$ , — both which constructions are inadmissible with the final lva; see Klotz, Devar. Vol. II. p. 629 sq.

τὸ ὄνομα τοῦ Κυρ. is not a mere periphrasis for ὁ Κυρ.os, but specifies that character and personality as revealed tò and acknowledged by men; comp., but with caution, Bretschn. Lex. s.v. 6, p. 291, and notes on Phil. ii. 10. The assertion of Jowett in loc. that these words have 'no specific meaning' cannot be sustained, and is language in every way to be regretted.

The addition  $X\rho\iota\sigma\tau\sigma\hat{v}$  [Rec., Lachm. in brackets, with AFG; Vulg., Syr. (both); Chrys.] is rightly rejected by Tisch. with BDEKLN; Clarom., Sangerm., Copt., Sahid., al.; Theod. (Lünem.), but to the immediately preceding 'I $\eta\sigma\sigma\hat{v}$ . The exact notion of reciprocity (comp. notes. on Gal. vi.

14) would be best maintained by the former reference; but, as Alf. correctly observes, the present expression is used far too frequently and exclusively in ref. to union in our Lord Himself to admit here of any different applicaκατά την χάριν] 'in tion. accordance with the grace;' the xápis is the 'norma' according to which the glorification took place, and thence. by an intelligible transition, that of which it is regarded as a consequence; ή χάρις αύτοῦ δι' ήμῶν πάντα κατορθοῖ, Œcum.; comp. notes on karà on Phil. ii. 3, and Tit. iii. 5. τοῦ Θεοῦ ήμών κ.τ.λ.] This is one of the passages supposed to fall under Granville Sharpe's rule (comp. Middl. Gr. Art. p. 56, ed. Rose), according to which Θεόs and Kúpios would refer to the same person. It may be justly doubted however whether, owing to the peculiar nature of Kúpios (Winer, Gr. § 19. I, p. II3), this can be sustained in the present case; see esp. Middleton, p. 379 sq., and comp. Green, Gr. p. 216.

CHAPTER II. 1. 'Epwtäµev  $\delta \dot{\epsilon} \dot{\nu}_{\mu}$ .] 'Now we beseech you,' transition by means of the  $\delta \dot{\epsilon} \mu \epsilon \tau a \beta a \tau \kappa \delta \nu$  (see notes on Gal. iii. 8) from the Apostle's prayers for his converts to what he claims of them, and the course of conduct he exhorts them to follow. On the meaning of  $\dot{\epsilon} \rho \omega \tau a \nu$ , see notes on I Thess. iv. I.  $\dot{\nu} \pi \dot{\epsilon} \rho$  is here certainly not introductory of a formula of adjuration (Vulg., perhaps Æth. [baenta,—often so used], Beza, al.), as such a meaning, though grammatically tenable (Bernhardy, Synt. v. 21, p. 244, -partially, but appy. without full reason, objected to by Winer). is by no means exceptically probable, and is without precedent in the language of the N.T. The more natural interpretation is to regard the prep. as approximating in meaning to  $\pi \epsilon \rho l$ (Winer, Gr. § 47. l, p. 343; comp. Krüger, Sprachl. § 68. 28. 3), but still distinct from it, as involving some trace of the idea of benefit to or furtherance of the  $\pi a \rho o v \sigma l a$ ; comp. Wordsw. in loc., and see notes on Phil. ii. 13. The subject of the παρουσία had been misunderstood and misinterpreted, and its commodum therefore was what the Apostle wished to proήμων έπισυν. έπ' αύτόν] mote. 'our gathering together unto Him,' scil. in the clouds of heaven, when He comes to judge the quick and dead; see I Thess. iv. 17, and comp. Matth. xxiv. 31, Mark xiii. 27. The subst. έπισυναγωγή only occurs once again in the N.T. (Heb. x. 25), in ref. to Christian worship (comp. 2 Macc. ii. 7), and seems confined to later writers. The meaning assigned by Hammond, 'the greater liberty of the Christians to assemble to the service of Christ, the greater freedom of ecclesiastical assemblies,' is due to his reference of the present  $\pi a \rho o v \sigma la \tau o \hat{v}$  Kuplov to God's judgment on the Jews. The mutual relation of the two Epp. seems totally to preclude such a reference: if in I Thess. iv. 15 the words refer to the final day of doom (Hamm.), the allusion here must certainly be the en' aυτόν] ' unto Him :' same. comp. Mark v. 21, συνήχθη δχλος πο- $\lambda \dot{v}s \, \dot{\epsilon}\pi' \, a \dot{v} \tau \dot{v}$ ; the preposition marking the point to which the συναγωγή was directed, and losing its idea of superposition in that of approximation to or juxtaposition; comp. Donalds. Cratyl. § 172. The difference between  $\pi\epsilon\rho i$  and  $\pi\rho \delta s$  in the present combination is perhaps no more than this, that while  $\pi\rho\delta s$  points rather to the direction to be taken,  $\epsilon\pi i$  marks more the point to be reached.

2 Χριστοῦ καὶ ήμῶν ἐπισυναγωγῆς ἐπ' αὐτόν, εἰς τὸ μὴ ταχέως σαλευθηναι ὑμᾶς ἀπὸ τοῦ νοὸς μηδὲ θροείσθαι,

2. els το μή κ.τ.λ.] ' that ye should not be soon shaken,' 'ut non cito moveamini,' Vulg., Clarom.; object and aim of the  $\epsilon \rho \omega \tau \hat{a} \nu$ , with perhaps some included reference to the subject of it; comp. I Thess. iii. 10, and notes on I Thess. ii. 12. This construction though not found elsewhere with  $\epsilon \rho \omega \tau \hat{a} \nu$  is perfectly intelligible. The verb  $\sigma \alpha \lambda \epsilon \dot{\nu} \omega$ , as its derivation shows  $\int \sigma d\lambda os$ , connected with AA-, and with Sanscr. form sal, Benfey, Wurzellex. Vol. I. p. 61], marks an agitated and disquieted state of mind, which in the present case was due to wild spiritual anticipations; compare Acts xvii. 13, and see exx. in Elsner, Obs. Vol. II. p. 283. The  $\tau a \chi \epsilon \omega s$  does not seem to refer to the period since St Paul was with them, or to the date of the First Epistle, but simply to the time when they might happen to hear the doctrine; the reference being rather modal ('præcipitanter,' De W.) than purely temporal; 'si id crederent facili momento quassaretur ipsorum fides,' Cocceius. and tou voos from your mind,' 'a vestro sensu,' Vulg.; certainly not 'a sententiâ seu doctrinâ,' Est., but simply 'statu mentis solito,' Schott 1,-their ordinary, sober, and normal state of mind,  $\pi a \rho a \tau \rho a \pi \hat{\eta} \nu a \iota$ άπο τοῦ νοός, δν μέχρι τοῦ νῦν είχετε όρθῶs ἰστάμενον, Theoph.; comp. unde opoeiodai] 'nor yet be troubled;' stronger expression than the foregoing, introduced by the slightly ascensive μηδέ; see notes on I Thess. ii. 3 (Transl.). The verb  $\theta_{po\ell\omega}$  [derived from OPEOMAI, and connected with τρέω; comp. Donalds. Cratyl. § 272] properly denotes 'clamorem tumultuantem edere' (Schott), and thence, by a natural transition, that terrified state (ταραχίζεσθαι, Zonaras), which is associated with and gives rise to such outward manifestations. In later writers  $\mu \dot{\eta} \theta \rho o \eta \theta \hat{\eta} s$  comes to mean little more than un bavuáons, Lobeck, Phryn. p. 676. The reading of Rec.  $\mu\eta\tau\epsilon$  [with D<sup>3</sup>EKL; several Ff.] is rightly rejected by Lachm. and Tisch. on the preponderating external authority of ABD1 (giving it also before  $\delta_{i\dot{\alpha}} \lambda \delta_{\gamma ov}$  F (giving  $\mu \eta \delta \dot{\epsilon}$  thrice, but  $\mu\eta\tau\epsilon$  with  $\delta\iota\lambda$   $\lambda\delta\gamma\sigma\nu$ ) GN; Orig. The second negation is here, by means of the thrice repeated  $\mu\eta\tau\epsilon$ , divided into three members; see exx. and illustrations in Winer, Gr. § 55. 6, p. 437, where the distinctive character of  $\mu\eta\delta\dot{\epsilon}$ and  $\mu\eta\tau\epsilon$ , their meaning, and sequence, are well delineated. μήτε διά  $\lambda \delta \gamma o v$  may be either regarded, (a) as an independent member distinguished both from what precedes and follows, or (b) may be connected more closely

In the former case  $\lambda \delta \gamma o v$  forms a species of antithesis to  $\pi \nu \epsilon \dot{\nu} \mu \alpha \tau \sigma s$  as denoting oral teaching, less marked by supernatural or prophetic characteristics. (διδασκαλίας ζώση φωνή γενομένης, Theoph. ); in the latter the Noyou stands contrasted with  $\epsilon \pi \iota \sigma \tau o \lambda \hat{\eta} s$ , as marking what the Apostle had communicated by word of mouth in contradistinction to what he had written;  $\mu\eta$   $\pi\iota\sigma\tau\epsilon\dot{\iota}\epsilon\nu$ ...μήτε εί πλασάμενοι ώς έξ αὐτοῦ γραφείσαν έπιστολήν προφέροιεν, μήτε εί άγράφως αὐτὸν εἰρηκέναι λέγοιεν, Theod. Of these (b) seems slightly the most. probable, especially as  $\lambda \delta \gamma \sigma \sigma$  and  $\epsilon \pi \iota$ - $\sigma \tau o \lambda \eta$  are found similarly combined in To extend ws di huw ver. 15. to the first clause, either partially (Jowett) or completely (Nösselt), seems illogical; oral or written communications might be ascribed to the absent Apostle, but the  $\pi \nu \epsilon \hat{\nu} \mu a$  could only have been recognised as working in him (De W.) when he was with them; comp. Lünem. in loc. ພົຣ ຽເ ήμῶν] 'as (coming) through us,' represented to come from us as its mediate authors; the ws as usual marking the erroneous aspects under which the λόγοs or  $\epsilon \pi i \sigma \tau o \lambda \dot{\eta}$  was designed to be regarded: 'particula ús substantivis participiis totisque enuntiationibus præposita rei veritate sublatâ aliquid opinione errore simulatione niti declarat,' Fritz. Rom. ix. 32, Vol. II. p. 360, comp. notes on Eph. v. 22. It seems impossible to understand these words otherwise, especially when coupled with the notice in ch. iii. 17, than as implying that not only oral but written communications, definitely ascribed to St Paul, were, not conceived (Jowett), but actually known by the Apostle to have been lately circulated in the Church of Thessalonica: kal γάρ και έπιστολάς πλάττοντες ώς παρά Παύλου σταλείσας έκύρουν & έλεγον, Theoph., comp. Neander, Planting, Vol. I. p. 204 (Bohn). When we consider the extreme disquietude and anxieties that appear to have prevailed in this Church in ref. to the  $\pi a \rho o v \sigma i a$ Toù Kuplov, there appears nothing strange in the supposition that even within less time than a year since the Apostle had last written fictitious letters should have obtained currency among them. To refer the expression with Hammond, al., to portions of the First Epistle which had been misunderstood seems distinctly to infringe on the simple meaning of ώς δι' ήμων. ώς ὅτι ἐνέστ. κ.τ.λ.] 'as that, to the effect that, the day of the Lord is now commencing, already come;' subject of the pretended communication introduced by  $\dot{\omega}s$ , which, as before, represents the statement not as actual, but as so represented, as the notion which was designed to be propagated; see Winer, Gr. § 65. 9, p. 544, Meyer on 2 Cor. xi. 21, and exx. in Kypke, Obs. Vol. 11. p. 268. The verb. ένέστηκεν is somewhat stronger than  $\dot{\epsilon}\phi\dot{\epsilon}\sigma\tau$ . (2 Tim. iv. 6), and seems to mark not only the nearness but the actual presence and commencement of the  $\eta\mu\epsilon\rho\alpha$   $\tau\sigma\hat{v}$  Kup.; 'magna hoc verbo propinquitas significatur ; nam evertis [Rom. viii. 38, 1 Cor. iii. 22] est præsens,' Beng., comp. notes on Gal. i. 4. Hammond in loc., and see the numerous exx. in Rost u. Palm, Lex. s. v. Vol. 1. p. 929. The ημέρα τοῦ Κυρ. thus approximates in meaning to  $\pi a \rho$ ovola rou Kup., and like it includes. besides the exact epoch of the Lord's appearance, the course of events immediately preceding and connected with it; comp. Reuss, Théol. Chrét. IV. 21, Vol. Π. p. 230, 243. For Kυplov Rec. reads Χριστοῦ with D<sup>3</sup>K; most mss.

3. µή TIS K.T. λ.] 'Let no one deceive you in any way;' not only in any of the three ways before specified (Theoph., Œcum.), but, with a more completely inclusive reference, - in any way, or by any artifice whatever; πάντα κατά ταύτον τα της απάτης  $\epsilon \xi \epsilon \beta a \lambda \epsilon \nu \epsilon l \delta \eta$ , Theod. On the form έξαπατâr, comp. notes on 1 Tim. ii. öτι έαν μή έλθη] 'because I4. (the day will not arrive) unless there come;' slight grammatical irregularity owing to the omission of any member involving a finite verb (such as ou γενήσεται ή παρουσία τοῦ Κυρ., Theoph., or ή ήμέρα οὐκ ἐνστήσεται) which can easily be supplied by the reader; see Winer, Gr. § 64. I. 7, p. 528, comp. Donalds. Gr. § 583. B, note. The most natural punctuation is not a comma before örı, as in Lachm., Tisch., Buttm., but a colon, as in Mill, and as suggested by Lünemann.

ή dπoστaσla] 'the falling away,' the definite religious apostasy that shall precede the coming of Antichrist, and of which it is not improbable that the Apostle had informed them by word of mouth; see ver. 5, and comp. Green, Gram. p. 155. It is hardly necessary to say that  $\dot{a}\pi o\sigma\tau a\sigma ia$  is not an abstract for a concrete term (airdy Kalei τόν άντίχριστον άποστασίαν, Chrys.; so Theod., Theoph., (Ecum. 1), nor again a political (Nösselt) or politico-religious (Kern) falling away, whether past or future, but simply, in accordance with what seems to be the regular use of the word (Acts xxi. 21, comp. 2 Chron. xxix. 19, 1 Macc. ii, 15), that religious and spiritual apostasy ('diabolicam apostasiam,' Iren. adv. Hær. V. 25. 1), that falling away from faith in Christ (άπο Θεοῦ ἀναχώρησιν, Œcum.) of which the revelation of Antichrist shall be the concluding and most appalling phenomenon; comp. Luke xviii. 8. The paulo-post future view, according to which the  $\dot{a}\pi o\sigma\tau a\sigma a$  refers to the revolt of the Jews from the Romans (Schoettg. Hor. Hebr. Vol. I. p. 840), is thus opposed to the probable technical meaning of the . word, while that of Hammond, who mainly refers it to the lapse to Gnosticism, fails to exhibit its generic reference, and to exhaust its prophetic significance. On the form of the word, a later form for  $d\pi \delta\sigma\tau a\sigma is$ , see Lobeck, Phryn. p. 528.

άποκαλυφθή] 'be revealed,'-a very noticeable expression: as the Lord's coming is characterized as an  $d\pi o\kappa d$ - $\lambda v \psi is$  (ch. i. 7), so is that of Antichrist. As He is now spiritually present in His Church, to be personally revealed with more glory hereafter, even so the power of Antichrist is now secretly at work, but will hereafter be made manifest in a definite and distinctive bodily personality. The  $\kappa al$  has here appy. its consecutive force (see notes on I Thess. iv. I); the revelation of Antichrist was the aggravated issue of the  $\dot{a}\pi o\sigma\tau a\sigma ia$ .

ό άνθρ. τῆς ἀμαρτίας] 'the man of Sin,' the fearful child of man (obs. the distinct term ἄνθρ.) of whom Sin is the special characteristic and attribute, and in whom it is as it were impersonated and incarnate; ἄνθρωπου δὲ αὐτὸν ἀμαρτίας προσηγόρευσεν, ἐπειδὴ ἅνθρ. ἐστι τὴν φύσιν, πῶσαν ἐν ἑαυτῷ τοῦ διαβόλου δεχόμενος τὴν ἐνέργειαν, Theod. On this gen. of the ' predominating quality,' which is commonly classed under the general head of the gen. possessivus, see Scheuerlein, Synt. § 16. 3, p. 115, Winer, Gr. § 34. 3. b, p. 211 sq. For auaprias, BN; 10 mss. read avoulas. ό νίος τηs aπωλ.] 'the son of perdition ;' he who stands in the sort of relation to it that a son does to a father, and who falls under its power and domination, 'cujus finis est interitus,' Cocceius [Phil. iii. 19]; see John xvii. 12, where this awful name is given to Judas, and comp. Evang. Nicod. cap. 20, where it is applied to Satan; see Thilo, p. 708. The transitive (Pelt), or mixed trans. and intransitive meaning (ús και αύτος άπολλύμενος και έτέροις πρόξενος τούτου γινόμενος, Theod., comp. (Ecum.), seems to be phraseologically doubtful; comp. Winer, Gr. § 34. 3. b, p. 213, and notes on I Thess. v. 5.

The adversary, though assimilating one of the distinctive features of Satan ()ひど), is clearly not to be confounded with him whose agent and emissary he is (ver. 9), but, in accordance with the almost uniform tradition of the ancient Church, is Antichrist,-no mere set of principles ('vis spiritualis evangelio contraria,' Pelt) or succession of opponents (Jowett, comp. Middl. Gr. Art. p. 383, and Wordsw. in loc.), but one single personal being, as truly man as He whom he impiously opposes: ris de outos έστιν; άρα ό σατανάς; οὐδαμῶς ἀλλ' άνθρωπός τις πάσαν αύτοῦ δεχόμενος την ένέργειαν, Chrys., see Wieseler, Chronol. p. 261, Hofmann, Schriftb.

ύπεραιρόμενος έπι πάντα λεγόμενον Θεόν ή σέβασμα,

II. 2, Vol. II. p. 617. The patristic references will be found in the Excursus of Lünem. p. 204, and at length in Alford, Prolegom. on this Epistle. The object of the opposition (avrikely.), it need scarcely be said, can be none other than Christ,-He whose blessed name is involved in the more distinctive title (durly plortos) of the adversary, and to whom that son of perdition, as Origen well says, is karà διάμετρον έναντίος, contra Cels. VI. 64. The present grammatical connexion, which (see above) is as old as Syr., is rightly adopted by De W., Lünem., and most modern commentators: the absence of the art., urged by Pelt., only shows that the  $i\pi\epsilon\rho\alpha\iota\rho\delta\mu\epsilon\nu\sigmas$   $i\pil$  $\pi d\nu \tau a, \kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . is not a different person from the avrikeluevos, but by no means specifies that both are to be united in connexion with  $\epsilon \pi l \pi d \nu \tau a \kappa. \tau. \lambda.;$ comp. Winer, Gr. § 19. 4, 5, p. 116 sq. In a case like the present the article really performs a kind of double duty; it serves to turn avrik. into a subst., and also indicates that the two participles refer to the same individual. και ύπεραιρόμ. κ.τ.λ.] <sup>4</sup>and (who) exalteth himself above (and against) every one called God,' scil. every one so called, whether 'eum qui verissime dicitur Deus' (Schott), or those esteemed so by the heathen; the participle being prefixed to avoid the appearance of placing on a level or including in a common designation  $\tau \partial \nu \ \Theta \epsilon \partial \nu$  and the so-called gods of paganism; comp. I Cor. viii. 5, leybmeron deol, Eph. ii. II. The verb  $\dot{\upsilon}\pi\epsilon\rho\alpha\rho$ . occurs (probably) twice in 2 Cor. xii. 7, and serves to mark the haughty exaltation (ivwohreral ral μεγαλυνθήσεται έπι πάντα θεόν, καί λαλήσει ὑπέρογκα, Dan. xi. 36, Theod.), while  $\epsilon \pi i$  with its general local meaning ('supra,' Vulg., 'ufar,' Goth.) of 'motion with a view to superposition' (Donalds. Gr. § 483) involves the more specific and ethical one of opposition: comp. Matth. x. 21, and Winer, Gr. § 49. l, p. 363 sq.

έπι πάντα λεγόμ. Θεόν] This characteristic of impious exaltation is in such striking parallelism with that ascribed by Daniel to 'the king that shall do according to his will' (ch. xi. 36), that we can scarcely doubt that the ancient interpreters were right in referring both to the same person, -Antichrist. The former portion of the prophecy in Daniel is appy. correctly referred to Antiochus Epiphanes, but the concluding verses (ver. 36 sq.) seem only applicable to him of whom Antiochus was merely a type and shadow; comp. Jerome on Dan. xi. 21, and see Prideaux, Connection, Part II. Book 3 (ad fin.). If this be correct, we may be justified in believing that other types of Antichrist may have appeared, and may yet appear before that fearful Being finally come. If asked to name them, we shrink not from pointing to this prophecy, and saying that in whomsoever these distinctive features be found-whosoever wields temporal, or temporal and spiritual power, in any degree similar to that in which the Man of Sin is here described as wielding it-he, be he pope or potentate, is beyond all doubt a distinct type of Antichrist. From such comparisons the wisest and most Catholic writers have not deemed it right to shrink; see Andrewes, Serm. VI. Vol. IV. p. 146 sq., and compare the reff. at the end of Wordsworth's long and important note on this passage. ή σέβασμα] 'or object of worship,' scil. of divine worship,a further definition appended to  $\Theta\epsilon\delta\nu$ .

ώστε αὐτὸν εἰς τὸν ναὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ καθίσαι ἀποδεικνύντα

The special interpretation of Bengel, founded on the connexion of  $\sigma\epsilon\beta a\sigma\mu a$  and  $\sigma\epsilon\beta a\sigma\tau\delta s$ , 'Cæsaris majestas et potestas Romæ maxime conspicua,' is wholly at variance with the prevailing use of the word (Acts xvii. 23, Wisdom xiv. 20, xv. 17, Bel 27 [Theod.], see Suicer, Thesaur. s.v. Vol. II. p. 942), and still more so with the generic terms of the prophecy.

üore aurov...кад.] 'so that he sitteth down :' his arrogance rises to such an impious height as to lead to this utter-hic consilium quam sequelam innuere videtur.' Pelt. The verb καθίσαι is here not transitive (1 Cor. vi. 4, Eph. i. 20), but in accordance with its nearly regular usage in the N.T. intransitive; comp. Thom.-Mag. p. 486 (ed. Bern.). The pronoun is thus not reflexive (Grot.), but is introduced and placed prominently forward to mark the individualizing arrogance ('hic ipse, qui quævis sancta et divina contemnit,' Schott) of this impious intruder. The interpolation after  $\Theta \epsilon o \hat{\nu}$  of  $\dot{\omega}s \ \Theta \epsilon \delta \nu$ , adopted by Rec. with D<sup>3</sup>EKL(FG<sup>1</sup> ίνα Θ.); mss.; Syr., Syr.-Phil. with an asterisk, Ar. (Pol.); Chrys., al., is rightly rejected by Lachm., Tisch., with A BD1X; 10 mss.; Clarom., Sangerm., Augiens., Boern., Vulg., Goth. (?), Copt., Sah., Æth., Arm.; Origen (3), and many Ff. C is deficient.

els rov vado rou  $\Theta(\epsilon o v)$  'in the temple of God' (the 'adytum' itself, not the mere  $le\rho b\nu$ ), literally 'into,' with the not uncommon pregnant force of the preposition in connexion with  $l_{\zeta}\epsilon u\nu$ ,  $\kappa a\theta \delta_{\zeta}^{2} \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota \kappa.\tau.\lambda.$ ; comp. Winer, Gr. § 50. 4, p. 368 sq., Buttm. Mid. p. 175. The exact meaning of these words has been greatly contested. Are they (a) merely a figurative or metaphorical expression (1 Cor. iii. 17, comp. Eph. ii. 21) for the Church of Christ,  $\tau \dot{\alpha}s$ πανταχοῦ ἐκκλησίas (Chrys.), according to the views of most of the interpreters of the fourth century? Or do they refer to (b) the actual temple of God at Jerusalem (Matth. xxvi. 61), which prophecy seems to declare may be restored (Ezek, xxxvii. 26; see Todd on Antichr. p. 218), as proposed by Irenæus (Hær. v. 30. 4), and as adopted, though with varying modes of explanation, by the majority of recent German commentators? If we are called on to decide absolutely, the combination (opp. to Alf.) of local terms and the possibly traditional nature of the interpr. of Irenæus must decidedly sway us to (b). It may be asked however whether in so wide a prophecy we are wise in positively excluding (a). May it not be possible that a haughty judicial or dictatorial session in the Church of Christ may be succeeded by and culminate in a literal act of ineffable presumption to which the present words may more immediately though not exclusively refer? Combined or partially combined interpretations are ever to be regarded with suspicion. but in a prophecy of this profound nature they appear to have some claim on our attention. άποδεικνύντα κ.τ.λ.] 'exhibiting himself that he is God;' not merely 'a god,' Copt., or even 'tamquam sit Deus,' Vulg. Book v. Vol. II. p. 480 (Clark). For examples of this use of à $\pi o \delta eixvivai$ , see Loesner, Obs. p. 384, and for the force of the compound à $\pi o \delta$ . 6. και νυν το κατέχ. οίδ.] ' and now what restraineth ye know.' The difficulty of these words is twofold, (I) lexical, turning on the meaning of vûv, (2) exceptical, in reference to the explanation that is to be given of  $\tau \delta$ κατέχον. With regard to the first, the temporal particle subsequently connected with  $\delta \kappa \alpha \tau \epsilon \chi \omega \nu$  (ver. 7), and the preceding  $\xi \tau \iota$  (ver. 5), both seem to suggest the temporal use of vûv (Wieseler, Chronol. p. 259 note); the order of the words however and the context are so very distinctly in favour of the logical use (Hartung, Partik. vûv, 2. 2, Vol. II. p. 25, see notes on I Thess. iii. 8), that on the whole that meaning is to be preferred ;

see esp. Lünem. in loc. who has appy. brought valid arguments against the temporal meaning. To investigate (2) properly would far outstrip the limits of this commentary. I may however say briefly-that after most anxious consideration I believe that a modification of the current patristic view is much the most plausible interpretation. The majority of these early writers referred the restraining influence to the Roman Empire, 'quis nisi Romanus status?' Tertull. de Resurr. cap. 24: so Chrys., Theoph., Œcum., Cyril of Jerus., al. In its literal meaning this cannot now be sustained without artificial and unhistorical assumptions: if however we refer the to katexov to what really formed the groundwork of that interpretation-the restraining power of well-ordered human rule, the principles of legality as opposed to those of avoula-of which the Roman Empire was the then embodiment and manifestation, we shall probably not be far from the real meaning of this very mysterious expression. Of the numerous other views, we may notice the opinion of Theod. and Theod .-Mops., that the to katexor is o tou Ocoû öpos, as certainly being at first sight plausible; but to this the  $\tilde{\epsilon}\omega s \ \epsilon\kappa$  $\mu \epsilon \sigma o \nu \gamma \epsilon \nu \eta \tau a \iota$  introduces an objection that seems positively insuperable. Further information will be found in the Excursus of Pelt (who however adopts the view of Theod.), p. 185 sq., in the thoughtful note of Olsh., the discussion of Lünem. p. 204 sq., the useful summary of Alford, Prolegom. on this Epistle, and the good note of Wordsw. in loc.; comp. also Hofmann, Schriftb. 11. 2, Vol. 11. p. 613 els tò à ποκαλ.] ' that sq.

This  $\dot{\alpha}\pi\sigma\kappa d\lambda\nu\psi_{1S}$ was not to be immediate ( $o\dot{\nu}\kappa$   $\epsilon\hat{n}\pi\epsilon\nu$   $\ddot{\sigma}\tau a$  $\tau\alpha\chi\epsilon\omegas$   $\dot{\epsilon}\sigma\tau a$ , Chrys.), or fortuitous, but was to be deferred till the  $\dot{o}$   $\dot{\epsilon}a\nu$ - $\tauo\hat{\nu}$   $\kappa a\iota\rho\delta s$ ,—the season appointed and ordained by God. On the correct insertion of  $\dot{\epsilon}\nu$ , see notes on Eph. ii. 12.

7. το γαρ μυστήρ. κ.τ.λ.] 'For the mystery of lawlessness ;' confirmatory explanation of the preceding statement: the mystery of lawlessness is truly at work; but its full manifestation cannot take place till the removal of the restraining power. On this blending of the explanatory and argumentative forces of yap, see notes on I Thess. ii. I. The meaning of µυστήριον τη̂s ἀνομ. is somewhat doubtful. Considered merely grammatically, the gen. does not seem to be that of the agent (Theod.), or that of apposition (Lünem., and Alf. - who however seems to mix it up with a gen. continentis), but simply a gen. definitivus (comp. Madvig, Synt. § 49) or gen. of the 'characterizing principle or quality' (Scheuerl. Synt. § 16. 3, p. 115), -the mystery of which the characterizing feature, or, so to say, the active principle, is avouia; comp. Joseph. Bell. Jud. I. 24. Ι, τον Αντιπάτρου βίον ούκ αν αμάρτοι τις είπων κακίας μυστήριον. The transition from this gen. to that of ethical content is so easy and natural, that it is often difficult to decide whether the gen. belongs to that category or to that of the possess. gen.; see Scheuerl. l.c. The genitival relation of  $\mu\nu\sigma\tau\eta\rho$ .  $\tau\eta$ s  $\epsilon \dot{v} \sigma \epsilon \beta \epsilon las$  is often somewhat plausibly contrasted with the present expression (Andrewes, Serm. 111. Vol. 1. 34), but really seems to be different; see notes

This mystery on I Tim. iii. o. of avoula is no personality, scil. Antichrist, or any'real or assumed type of Antichrist (Νερώνα ένταῦθά φησιν, Chrys.), but all that mass of uncombined and so to say unorganized dvo- $\mu$ ia, which, though at present seen only in detail and not revealed in its true proportions, is even now  $(\eta \delta \eta)$ aggregating and energizing, and will hereafter  $(\delta \nu \tau \hat{\omega} \delta a v \tau o \hat{v} \kappa a \rho \hat{\omega})$  find its complete development and organization in the person and power of Antichrist. p. 485, and comp. Gal. ii. 10, µbvov τών πτωχών ίνα μνημονεύωμεν, where the emphatic words are similarly attached to the semi-elliptical µ6νον. As however in Gal. l.c. so here it is not necessary to supply definitely any verb to complete the ellipsis ('tantum ut qui tenet nunc teneat.' Vulg., comp. Auth.), still less to connect µόνον with what precedes (Kypke, Obs. Vol. II. p. 342). The µóvov belongs to Ews, and simply states the limitation involved in the present working of the μυστήριον της avoulas: it is working already, but only with unconcentrated action until the obstacle be removed, and Antichrist be revealed. So rightly as to structure Chrys., ή ἀρχή ή 'Pωμαϊκή όταν άρθή έκ μέσου, τότε έκεινος  $\tilde{\eta}\xi\epsilon\iota$ . The only other plausible structure is the supplement of  $\ell\sigma\tau\iota$ , but the objection of Lünem., that in the present case a word of such real importance could scarcely be omitted, seems reasonable and valid. The greatest difficulty however is the change of gender in the designation of the restraining principle. Perhaps the simplest view is to regard it, not as a studied designation of a single individual (e.g. St Paul, Schott, p. 249), or of a collection of such (e. g. the saints at Jerusalem, Wieseler, Chronol. p. 273, or, more plausibly, the succession of Roman Emperors, Wordsw.), but merely as a realistic touch, by which what was previously expressed by the more abstract to katexov is now represented as concrete and personified; comp. Rom. xiii. 4, where the personification is somewhat similarly introduced after, and elicited from, a foregoing abstract term (¿¿ov- $\sigma(av)$ . apri is to be closely connected with  $\delta \kappa \alpha \tau \epsilon \chi \omega \nu$ , and simply refers to time regarded as present to the writer. On the derivation and meaning of the word, see notes on I Thess. iii. 6.

Ews in µiorov yingrai] On this connexion of Eus with the subjunctive without äv,-a construction especially characteristic of later writers, see Winer, Gr. § 41. 3, p. 266. The distinction acutely drawn by Herm. (de Partic. äv, II. 9, p. 109) between such formulæ as  $\mu i \mu \nu \epsilon \tau \epsilon \ \epsilon \omega s \ \theta \dot{a} \nu \omega$  (de moribundo) and Ews av Oávw (de eo qui non ita propinquam sibi putaret mortem esse) and repeated by Klotz (Devar. Vol. II. p. 568) cannot with safety be applied in the N. T.; nor can we with distinct probability ascribe the omission of av to any idea of design supposed to be involved in the sentence (it is actually inserted here by FG), as suggested by Green, Gram. p. 64, note. We have only an instance of that obliteration of finer shades of distinction which characterizes the later and decadent Greek. The phrase έκ μέσου γίγνεσθαι is illustrated by Wetstein and Kypke (Obs. Winer, Gr. § 59. 5, p. 466) and the gen. being associated with all the three substantives. The exact nature of the genitival relation is not perfectly certain:  $\psi \epsilon i \delta \delta v s$  may be regarded as (a) a gen. of the origin, (b) of the characterizing quality or essence (see notes on ver. 7), or lastly, (c) of 'the point of view' (Scheuerl. Synt. § 18, p. 129). Of these (a) is by no means probable; but between (b) and (c) it is very difficult to decide. Perhaps the object specified in ver. II, and the analogy of anaty adikias (ver. 10), scil. 'fraus quæ ad improbitatem spectat' (Schott 1, Winer, Gr. § 30. 2. β, p. 170), may here incline us to the latter; so Chrvs. 2, els ψεῦδος ἄγουσι. For exx. of these more lax connexions of the gen., see Winer, Gr. l. c.

The three substantives might seem to be climactic; it was not only in an element of power (see notes on 1 Thess. i. 5), but one of signs, and further one of prodigies, that the working of Satan took place; as however we find a varied order (Acts ii. 22), and as the difference between  $\sigma\eta\mu\epsilon\hat{i}a$  ('res insolitas quibus Deus aliquid significet,' Fritz.) and  $\tau\epsilon\rho\alpha\tau a$  ('quæ ut inusitata observari soleant,' ib.) exists less in the things themselves than in the mode of regarding them, we may perhaps most naturally consider the substantives as studiedly accumulated so as to give force and expansion to the description; compare Bornemann, Schol. in Luc. p. xxx. On the meaning of the last two words, and the derivation of  $\tau \epsilon \rho as$  $[\tau \eta \rho \epsilon \omega, \text{ comp. Benfey, Wurzellex. In the case of (a) we must have had the usual dative of 'interest,' not (as here) a gen. of possession; in the case of (b) the seeming parallelism with 1 Thess. v. 9 would be destroyed, and the glorification of our Lord would really become the object of the κρατέντε τὰς παραδόσεις] 'hold fast the instructions;' practically synonymous with 1 Cor xi. 2, τὰς παραδόσεις κατέχετε. These παραδόσεις (Mark vii. 3, Gal. i. 14, al.) probably related, not as in 1 Cor. l. c. (see Meyer in loc.) to matters both of doctrine and discipline, but, as the more specific έδιδάχθητε and the general tenor of the context (comp. ver. 5) suggest, solely to the former, κανόνα διδασκαλίas, Theod. The polemical and controversial use of the term, hinted at even by Chrys., is brought forward by Damasc. (de Imag. 1. 23, Vol. 1. p. 518, Paris, 1712), and enforced by most writers of the Romanist Church (comp. Canon. Conc. Trid. Sess. IV. p. 15, ed. Tauchn.), but distinctly without plausibility. No reference to any έκκλησιαστικόν φρόνημα (Euseb. Hist. Eccl. v. 28; comp. Möhler, Symbolik, § 38, p. 361) can fairly be elicited from the words. The Apostle, as the following clause most distinctly shows, is referring to some definite and lately-given communications on doctrine which he had specially made to the Thessalonians (comp. I Cor. l. c., καθώς παρέδωκα) by word of mouth and in his former letter. For the most ingenious modern defence of the Romanist doctrine of tradition, see Möhler, Symbolik, l. c. ås p. 361-365. έδιδάχθητε] 'which ye were taught.' This unusual order is not left unnoticed by Chrys. and the Greek expositors;  $\tau \hat{\eta} \tau \hat{\eta} s$ τάξεως έναλλαγŷ τὴν ὁμοτιμίαν δεικνύει, The readings throughout Theod. the clause are somewhat doubtful. Besides the variation given in the critical note, Lachm. differs from Tisch. in inserting o before Xpioros [with A], and including it in brackets before Θεόs [BD1 omit]. 6 OEDS ό πατήρ ήμων] ' God our Father.' This exact form of expression, though so strongly supported here, does not appear to occur elsewhere.

ό dyaπήσas κ.τ.λ. seems to refer only to God the Father. The union of Father and Son, esp. as shown by the subsequent singular verb, is I confess so mystically close that it is difficult to speak with complete confidence (Alf., but see his previous note), still the usual reference of  $d\gamma d\pi \eta$ to the Father (see above) may incline us here to the more exclusive reference. The arbitrary reference of the first of the two participles to Christ, and of the second to God the Father (Baumg.-Crus.), is almost obviously untenable. παράκλησιν alwv(av] 'eternal comfort;' the best shade of meaning for  $\pi a \rho d\kappa \lambda \eta \sigma \iota s$ here. Alwros is used not appy. with any specially qualitative reference to an έλπίδα τών μελλόντων (Chrys., Theoph.), but mainly in a temporal sense, in contrast to the transitory and fleeting nature of earthly joys (Olsh.): the  $\epsilon \lambda \pi i s \tau \hat{\omega} \nu \mu \epsilon \lambda \lambda \delta \nu \tau \omega \nu$  is embodied in the  $\epsilon \lambda \pi l \delta a \, \dot{a} \gamma a \theta \dot{\eta} \nu$ , 'la perspective d'un heureux avenir,' Reuss, Théol. Chrét. IV. 9, Vol. II. p. 85; comp., though with a slightly different reference, την μακαρίαν έλπίδα, Tit. ii. 13. Alúvios is used in the N. T. as an adj. of two terminations except here and Heb. ix. 12.

iv  $\chi \dot{\alpha} \rho \iota \tau \iota$  'in grace;' adjunct of manner, not to both preceding participles ( $\dot{\alpha}\gamma a\pi$ . being more usually undefined, Rom. viii. 37, Gal. ii. 20, al.), but to  $\delta o \dot{v}$  (Schott, and appy. Chrys.,

(Ecum.), the ev as usual defining the sphere and element in which the love is evinced and the consolation vouchsafed. In cases like the present the line of demarcation between the above reference to ethical locality and the instrumental use  $(\chi d\rho \iota \tau \iota, Chrys.)$ is really very shadowy. It can scarcely be doubted that such a use has arisen from the inclusive nature of the Aramaic , and it is well not to be unduly narrow in interpretation; still in most of the expressions similar to the present there is a theological idea. - an idea of an encompassing element of grace, which it seems desirable to retain; comp. notes on I Thess. ii. 3.

17. παρακαλέσαι] 'comfort;' opt. and sing., as in I Thess. iii. II, where see notes. The Apostle does not say merely vuâs, but vuôv ràs καρδίαs (comp. Col. ii. 2); it was the καρδία, the seat of their feelings and affections (comp. notes on I Tim. i. 5, Beck, Seelenl. 111. 24, p. 92 sq.), the καρδία that was so full of hope and fear about the future, that the Apostle prayed might receive comfort. This meaning (Los [consoletur] Syr., comp. Æth.), seems thus in the present case more suitable than 'exhortetur,' Vulg., as a translation of παρακαλέσαι; see notes on I Thess. V. 'in every good work and word ;' both  $\pi a \nu \tau i$  and  $\dot{a} \gamma a \theta \hat{\omega}$  being clearly connected with the two intervening substantives. The slightly unusual order [Rec. however gives λόγ. κ. έργ.,-but only with FGK; mss.] has appy. caused the Greek commentators (silet Theod.) to assign the doubful meaning δόγματα to the simple word  $\lambda$ όγ $\varphi$ . This is by no means probable; the association with έργω (comp. Fritz. Rom. xv. 18, Vol. III. p. 268), and still more the inclusive  $\pi a\nu \tau l$ , seem both decisive for the ordinary meaning. It is singular that Chrys. (so Theoph.) should have here taken èv as instrumental; clearly the Epyon Kal  $\lambda \delta \gamma os$  are not the means by which, but the elements in which the  $\sigma \tau \eta \rho_i \gamma \mu \partial s$ takes place.

CHAPTER III. I. To  $\lambda ourdou$ ] 'Finally,' 'as to what remains to be said;' similar in meaning to  $\lambda ourdou$ (I Thess. iv. I), but owing to the article slightly more specific. On the grammatical difference between this formula and the gen.  $\tau o\hat{v} \lambda ourdou$ , see notes on Gal. vi. 17.

prayer blended with the purpose of making it, as so often in St Paul's Epp.; see notes on Eph. i. 17. This prayer of the Apostle, as Chrys. has well observed, was not  $i\nu a \mu \eta$   $\kappa \nu \delta \nu \nu \epsilon i \eta$ ( $\epsilon ls \tau o \hat{\nu} \tau o \gamma d\rho \ \tilde{\epsilon} \kappa \epsilon \iota \tau o$ ), but that his Lord's word (compare 1 Thess. i. 8) might speed onward and be glorified. As ever so now his prayer did not involve one single selfish element.

τρέχη και δοξάζηται] ' may have free course and be glorified ;' ' currat et clarificetur.' Vulg., i.e. may find no obstacles and hindrances (άκωλύτως συντρέχη, Theod., προκόπτη, Damasc.) in its onward course (comp. 2 Tim. ii. 2, où δέδεται), and be manifested, felt, and acknowledged in its true power and glory by all; compare ch. i. 12, but not, as usually cited, Acts xiii. 48, -where, as De W. rightly observes, the word (dožáj.) has a somewhat weaker force, more nearly approaching to 'laudare,' comp. Schneider on Xen. Anab. v. o. 32. The middle force adopted by Pelt, 'laudem sibi paret,' is not supported by the usage of the N.T., nor is it at all accurate to say that  $d\pi \partial$  would have been more naturally used if the verb had been passive. If any other prep. had been used, it would have been  $i\pi \partial$ (Matth. vi. 2, Luke iv. 15) or èv (John xvii. 10. al.) with persons : comp. dogag- $\theta \hat{\eta} \dots \delta i'$  av  $\hat{\eta}$ s [å  $\sigma \theta \epsilon \nu \epsilon las$ ] in John xi. 4.  $\Pi \rho \delta s$  however is perfectly suitable, as denoting the locality reached where the glorification took place. On the use of  $\pi \rho \delta s$  with verbs implying rest, dc., see notes on Gal. i. 18.

2. Kal [va pur bour out i and that we may be delivered,' that we may by our freedom co-operate in this advance of God's word. To find here a mere shrinking of the flesh on the part of the Apostle from the dangers that awaited him (Jowett) is to assign to the Apostle a character that never belonged to him, and which such passages as Rom. xv. 31 (see ver. 32, which shows the true reason) and 2 Cor. i. 8 most certainly do not substantiate. How much keener are the perceptions of the older commentators : διπλή μέν ή αίτησις είναι δοκεί, μία δέ δμως έστι των γάρ πονηρών άνθρώπων ήττωμένων, άκωλύτως και ό τοῦ κηρύγματος συντρέχει λόγος, Theod.

is somewhat doubtful. The most natural supposition is that they were perverse and fanatical Jews (not Christians, on account of what follows) at Corinth, who were then opposing the word of God and the Apostle's ministry of it; comp. Acts xviii. 12 sq. and Wieseler, Chronol. p. 256. The remark of Tertullian seems to have always been very true in reference to the early Church,—'synagogas Judæorum fontes persecutionum,' adv. Gnost. Scorp. cap. 10.

où vàp πάντων ή πίστις] 'for the faith doth not pertain to all men;' reason for the foregoing clause and the mention of those alluded to in it. The definite  $\dot{\eta}$  πίστις can here only refer to 'faith' in the Christian sense ( $\tau \dot{\partial}$ πιστεῦσαι, Œcum., and perhaps Syr.

)20100): the expansion of Schott, 'fides sincera et constans,' in contrast to false Christians ( $\psi ev\delta d\delta \epsilon \lambda$ - $\phi o_i$ , Gal. ii. 4), seems inconsistent with the use of the simple unqualified substantive. For exx. of this not uncommon use of the possessive gen., see Krüger, Sprachl. § 47. 6. 8, and comp. Acts i. 7, Winer, Gr. § 30. 5, p. 176. Wetstein in loc. quotes the well-known proverbial saying où  $\pi a\nu$ - $\tau \delta s$   $dv \delta \rho \delta s$   $\delta s$   $K \delta \rho u v \theta ov \ \epsilon \sigma \theta' \ \delta m \lambda o \hat{v} s$ , cited by Suidas s. vv. où  $\pi a \nu \tau \delta s$ , Vol. II. p. 1220 (ed. Here as elsewhere in the N.T. it is extremely doubtful whether  $\tau o\hat{v} \pi o \nu \eta$ poù refers to evil in the abstract (see Rom. xii. 9), or to the Evil One (1 John v. 18, comp. Eph. vi. 16, and notes in loc.). The context alone must decide; and this in the present case, in spite of the reference to ch. ii. 17, στηρίξαι έν παντί έργω και λόγω, urged by Lünem. and repeated by Alf., seems rather in favour of the masculine, -(1) in consequence of the probable ref. to the Lord's prayer, where the Greek commentators (whose opinion in such points deserves full consideration) adopt the masc., -and (2) from the tacit personal antithesis suggested by the preceding Kúpios. The ancient Vv., whose testimony would here have been of considerable importance, do not seem to afford us any sure indications of the view they adopted. The same word, we may observe, is used by Syr. both here and in 1 John v. 18,

It is very difficult to draw clear lines of demarcation between the ethical uses of  $\pi \rho \delta s$ .  $\epsilon \pi i$ . and els, in combinations like the present. To speak somewhat generally, we may perhaps say that  $\pi \rho \delta s$  with the acc. commonly indicates simple ethical motion (comp. Donalds. Crat. § 169, 171);  $\epsilon \pi i$  with the same case mental direction with an idea of approximation (Donalds. Crat. § 172) and a more defined expression of the erga (Luke vi. 35) or contra (Matth. x. 21); els direction or destination with the idea of having actually reached the object (comp. Krüger, Sprachl. § 68. 21. 5, and notes on Philem. 5), and with a wider and more inclusive notion of general behaviour however

öτι ά παραγγέλλ.] 'that the things which we command :' objective or expositive sentence (Donalds. Gr. § 584, see notes on ch. ii. 13), stating the matter of the Apostle's confidence. The ά παραγγέλλ.,—clearly not 'quæ præcepimus,' Pelt,—here refers most naturally to the commands which the Apostle is now in the act of giving to his converts, and links the present verse in an easy and natural way to ver. 6.

καl ποιείτε κ. ποιήσ. belongs to the apodosis of the sentence, kal...kal presenting both ποιείτε and ποιήσ. simultaneously in a single predication ; see notes on 1 Tim. iv. 10. There is in this verse much variation of reading. After παραγγέλλομεν Rec. inserts ύμιν, but it is rightly omitted by Lachm. and Tisch. with BD1N; 2 mss.; Vulg., al. The insertion may have been suggested by ver. 6. Also Lachm. reads παραγγέλλομεν [ύμιν και ἐποιήσατε και] ποιείτε καl ποιήσετε, but the reading in this extended form is supported only by B, as FG (which insert  $\kappa \alpha \ell \epsilon \pi o \iota \eta \sigma$ .) omit kal moinsere. It is doubtful however whether the  $\kappa \alpha l$  should be retained before  $\pi oi \epsilon i \tau \epsilon$  as it is omitted by  $AD^1 \aleph^1$ ; Syr. Observe that C is deficient.

in the concluding member of the verse has led Basil (de Spir. Sanct. cap. 21), Theod., Theoph., CEc., and recently Wordsw., to refer à Kúpios to the Holy Spirit. This however is unnecessary, and indeed contrary to the language of the N.T.; Kúpios appy. not being so applied even in the debateable passage 2 Cor. iii. 18, see On the compound Meyer in loc. κατευθύνειν (εὐθυπορεῖν, Theoph.), see notes on I Thess. iii. els τὴν ἀγ. τοῦ Θεοῦ] ' into the love of God ;' principle to which and into which the Apostle prays that his converts may be guided. The only doubt is whether τοῦ Θεοῦ is a gen. subjecti, under the more specific form of a gen. auctoris, scil. 'amor quem Deus hominum quasi infundit animis,' Pelt,—or simply a gen. objecti, 'amor erga Deum,' Beng., τὸ ἀγαπῆσαι αὐτόν, Theoph. The latter is most natural; the love of God is indeed the 'virtutis Christianæ fons limpidissimus,' Schott; see Matth. xxii. 37.

την ὑπομ. τοῦ Χρ.] 'the patience of Christ.' The meaning of these words is also slightly doubtful, owing to the different aspects in which the gen. may be regarded. Analogy with what precedes would suggest (a) a gen. objecti, 'patient waiting for Christ' (Auth., Chrys. 2, Theoph. 2), but would introduce a meaning of ὑπομ. that is appy, not lexically defensible, and certainly is contrary to the usage of the N.T. Of the other meanings, (b) the gen. auctoris or causæ efficientis (Pelt) is plausible, but appy. less simple than the more inclusive possessive gen. (Lünem., Alf.), 'patience such as Christ exhibited;' "va v mouévouev is έκεῖνος ὑπέμεινεν, Chrys. 1, Theod. 1, comp. 1 Pet. ii. 21. On the meaning of the word inouvy, see notes on I Thess. i. 3. The addition of the art. before ὑπομονήν which Rec. omits has the support of all the MSS. most mss. and Greek Ff.

6. Παραγγ. δè ὑμîν] ' Now we command you;' transition by means of the δε μεταβατικόν (see notes on Gal. iii. 8) to the more distinctly preceptive portion of the Epistle. In what follows, the exhortations of the former Epistle (ch. iv. II, I2, v. I4) are repeated and expanded with more studied distinctness of language, it being probable that the evils previously alluded to had advanced among some members of this Church to a still more perilous height. The words in onbuari K.T. A. give the  $\pi a \rho a \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda l a$  a greater force and solemnity; ούχ ήμεις ταῦτα λέγομεν άλλ' δ Χριστός, Chrys.: see I Cor. v. 4, and comp. The verb  $\sigma \tau \epsilon \lambda \lambda \epsilon i \nu$ [derived from a root  $\Sigma TA$ -, Pott, Elym. Forsch. Vol. I. p. 197] properly signifies 'collocare,'—thence, with a not improbable figurative reference ( $\tau a$  $i \sigma \tau i a$ , Rost u. Palm, Lex. s.v. Vol. II. p. 1529), 'cohibere,' 'comprimere,' and reflexively, 'se subtrahere,' Vulg., Clarom.,

[ut sitis distantes] Syr., 'gaskaidaib izvis,' Goth., sim. Copt., al.; comp. Mal. ii. 5. άπο προσώπου δνόματός μου στέλλεσθαι αύτόν [where the Heb. seems to suggest a tinge of the still further derivative meaning 'præ metu se subducere ;' Hesych. φοβείται, στέλλεται], Gen. viii. I (Aquil.), and with an accus. 2 Cor. viii. 20, στελλόμεrot rouro, rightly translated by Vulg. " devitantes hoc;' add also Gal. ii. 12, ύπέστελλεν... έαυτόν, Heb. x. 38, ύποστείληται. For further exx., see Elsner, Obs. Vol. II. p. 283, Kypke, Obs. Vol. II. p. 344, Loesner, Obs. p. 387, where this verb is copiously illustrated.

dτάκτως περιπ.] 'walking disorderly;' comp. I Thess. v. 14, rows arakrows, and see note on ver. 7. On this use of the verb περιπατείν (περιπ. τουτέστι BLOUPTOS, Chrys.), as indicating the general course of a life in its habitual and practical manifestations, see reff. on I Thess. iv. 12, and comp. notes on Phil. iii. 18. κατά την παρά-Soory ' according to the instruction or lesson;' παράδοσις (comp. ch. ii. 15) including both the oral (comp. ver. 10, I Thess. iv. 11) and written instructions which the Apostle had delivered to his converts. To refer this to a παράδοσιν την δια των έργων, as Chrys. and the Greek expositors do, is to infringe on what follows, where this mode of teaching is distinctly specified. ήν παρελάβοσαν] "which they received,' scil. those intimated in the foregoing expression  $\pi a\nu\tau \partial s \ \delta \delta \epsilon \lambda \phi_0 \hat{v}$ , which here serves the purpose of a collective substantive. The main difficulty is the reading. Lachm. (text) adopts  $\pi a \rho \epsilon \lambda d\beta \epsilon \tau \epsilon$  with BFG ; 3 mss. ; Goth., Syr. Phil., al.,but scarcely with plausibility, as the change would have been so easily suggested by the seeming difficulty of construction in the 3rd plural. The same may be said of Rec.  $\pi \alpha \rho \epsilon \lambda \alpha \beta \epsilon$ , which however has only the authority of a few mss. and Syr. The choice then lies between  $\pi a \rho \epsilon \lambda a Sov$  [Scholz, with D<sup>2</sup>D<sup>3</sup>EKLN<sup>4</sup>; mss.; Greek Ff.] and the text παρελάβοσαν [Griesb., Tisch., Lachm. in marg., with  $A \aleph^1$ ; Basil, and ¿λάβοσαν, D1]. The majority of Versions support the third person plural: C is deficient. The tendency to grammatical correction coupled with the known existence (Sturz, de Dial. Alex. p. 60, Matth. Gr. § 201. 5) and prevalence even to a late period (Lobeck, Phryn. p. 349) of the form -ovav in the 3rd plur. of the imperf. and second aor., induces us to acquiesce in the probable, though not strongly supported reading  $\pi a \rho \epsilon \lambda \delta \beta \sigma \sigma a \nu$ ; so Olsh., Lünem., Alf., and Wordsworth.

7. abrol yàp old.] 'For yourselves know;' confirmation of the wisdom and pertinence of the foregoing exhortation, and more esp. of the modal clause immediately preceding, by an appeal to their own knowledge and observation. The Thessalonian converts knew 'of themselves'  $\pi \hat{\omega}s \ \delta \hat{\epsilon} \epsilon$  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda.$ , and needed not that the Apostle should inform them.

πῶς δεῖ μιμεῖσθαι ήμ.] 'how ye ought to imitate us;' a simple and intelligible δεῖ μιμεῖσθαι ἡμᾶς, ὅτι οὐκ ἠτακτήσαμεν ἐν ὑμῖν, οὐδὲ 8 δωρεὰν ἄρτον ἐφάγομεν παρά τινος, ἀλλ' ἐν κόπφ καὶ μόχθφ νύκτα καὶ ἡμέραν ἐργαζόμενοι πρὸς τὸ μὴ ἐπι-

'brachylogy.' The more natural sequence would have been  $\pi \hat{\omega}s \, \delta \hat{\epsilon} \, \pi \epsilon \rho \iota$ .  $\pi \alpha \tau \hat{\epsilon} \hat{\nu} \, \kappa a \, \dot{\eta} \mu \hat{a}s \, \mu \mu \epsilon \hat{\imath} \sigma \theta a$ , but the more brief mode of expression is probably designedly chosen, as throwing emphasis on the  $\mu \mu e \hat{\imath} \sigma \theta a \iota$ , and giving the whole appeal more point and force. It is somewhat doubtful whether the plural is to be referred to St Paul alone, or to the Apostle and his associates. From comparison with 1 Thess. ii. 9, where the ref. seems to be the more inclusive one, we shall most probably be justified in adopting the same view in the present case.

öτι ούκ ήτακτήσ.] 'in that we behaved not disorderly.' This is appy. one of those cases in which the causal sentence approaches somewhat nearly, not so much to the modal (comp. Æth., kama [sicut, quemadmodum], Peile, 'how') as to the relative (comp. Syr.

(qui non ambulavimus]) or to the expositive sentence, with both of which it has some logical and grammatical affinity; comp. Winer, Gr. § 60. 6, p. 479. It was not so much 'because' St Paul and his associates our ήτάκτησαν, as 'seeing that,' 'in that,' such was the case, that the Thessalonians came to know how ('quali ratione vivendi,' Beng.) to imitate them. In a word, the evragia was not so much a cause, as a causa sine quâ non of the knowledge. This use of ori, which might perhaps be termed its 'sub-causal' or 'secondary causal' use, deserves some attention, esp. in the N.T. The verb atakteiv is a  $a\pi$ .  $\lambda \epsilon \gamma \delta \mu$ . in the N. T., as is arakros (I Thess. v. 14), while the adv. only occurs in ver. 6, 11, the whole group being thus peculiar to these Epp. The word is here practically synonymous with  $\pi \epsilon \rho i \pi a \tau \epsilon \hat{i} \nu$  $\dot{a} \tau \dot{a} \kappa \tau \omega s$ , ver. 11: it occurs occasionally in classical Greek, sometimes in a more restricted reference to  $\tau \dot{a} \sigma \tau \rho a$  $\tau i \omega \tau i \kappa d$ , e. g. Demosth. Olynth. III. p. 31,  $\tau o \dot{v} s \dot{a} \tau a \kappa \tau o \hat{v} \tau \tau a$  ('qui disciplinam militarem labefactant,' Wolf), sometimes, as here, with a more general reference, e. g. Xen. Cyrop. VIII. 1, 22; see Kypke, Obs. Vol. II. p. 345.

8. οὐδὲ δωρεἀν ἀρτον ἐφάγ.] 'nor ate we bread for naught.' Δωρεἀν is an adverbial accusative implying either 'sine justâ causâ,' Gal. ii. 21 (see notes), or, as here, 'gratis,' Vulg., Syr.,—the true idea of λαμβάvew δωρεἀν being 'ita accipere ut nihil referas, nullâ prægressâ causâ accipiendi,' Tittm. Synon. II. p. 161. The formula ἀρτον φαγεῖν appears to be Hebraistic (comp. Δ΄, Gen.

xliii. 25, 2 Sam. ix. 7, 10, al.), implying really little more than the simple verb  $\phi a \gamma \epsilon \hat{\nu}$  (I Cor. ix. 4), but, like all these Hebraistic turns, being full of force and expressiveness; comp. Winer, Gr. § 3, p. 26 sq.

έν κόπψ καὶ μόχθψ], 'in toil and travail,' scil. ἄρτον ἐφάγομεν; adjunct of manner, involving a tacit opposition to the preceding δωρεάν. On the meaning and derivation of these words, and the apparent distinction between them, see notes on 1 Thess, ii, o.

νύκτα καὶ ήμ. κ.τ.λ.] 'working during night and day;' participial explanation of the preceding  $\epsilon \nu$  κόπ $\psi$  καὶ  $\mu \delta \chi \partial \psi$ , more remotely dependent on the foregoing  $\epsilon \phi \delta \gamma o \mu \epsilon \nu$ ; see Winer, Gr. § 45. 6. b, p. 314. participial clause closely with  $\epsilon \nu \kappa \delta \pi \varphi$ καl μόχθω, according to which  $\epsilon \rho \gamma$ . would have a more distinctly modal force. This is perfectly admissible ; the emphatic position of Supear however suggests the sharper antithesis which the separation of the members here seems to introduce. The reading νυκτός και ημέρας [Lachm. (non marg.) with BFGX ; 5 mss. ; Chrys. (ms.), Dam.] has very strong claims to attention. Still it may have been suggested by I Thess. ii. 9, iii. 10. On the phrase itself, see notes on I Thess. I.c., and on I Tim. v. 5.

9. ovx ör1 ' not that;' limitation of what precedes, to prevent the preceding declaration being misapprehended and misapplied: the Apostle reserves his ministerial right and privilege of receiving if need be support from his converts; comp. 1 Cor. ix. 4 sq. On the use of this formula ('ex dialecticis, ut ita dicam, formulis Paulo solemnibus,' Pelt), which is found several times in St Paul's Epp. (2 Cor. i. 24, iii. 5, Phil. iii. 12, iv. 11, 17), see Hartung, Partik. έξουσίαν] 'power,' 'right,' scil. τοῦ μὴ ἐργ. (De W.), or more naturally τοῦ δωρεὰν φαγεῖν ἄρτον (Lünem.), the latter being the principal statement of the preceding verse. The word έξουσία ('jus, licentia, auctoritas, aliquid faciendi,' Schott) is used exactly

10. Kal yáp] 'For also,' 'for besides ;' second confirmation of the wisdom and pertinence of the preceding warning that they ought to avoid those that were walking disorderly,the yap being co-ordinate with the preceding yap in ver. 7, and the kal having appy. a conjunctive force, and serving to connect this argumentative clause with that in ver. 7, and thus more thoroughly to substantiate the κατά την παράδ. ην κ.τ.λ. Lünemann, followed by Alf., makes kal ascensive, and refers it to  $\tau o \hat{v} \tau o \pi a \rho \eta \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda \lambda$ , as bringing out an additional element in the reminiscence. This is somewhat forced : kal yap has two usages in the N.T.,-one in which the conjunctive force of kal prevails (' etenim,' Beza), the other ('nam etiam;' 'nam et,' Vulg.,-but not Clarom., which omits 'et') in which the ascensive force is predominant; see Winer, Gr. § 53. 8, p. 397, and notes on Phil. ii. 27. The latter has been undoubtedly far too often overlooked in the N.T. (comp. Fritz. Rom. xi. 1, Vol. 11. p. 433), but is not to be obtruded in a passage like the present, where the context (contrast 1 Thess. iii. 4) and sequence

The partially proverbial statement which follows is illustrated by Wetstein in loc., and Schoettg. Hor. Hebr. Vol. I. p. 850; the most pertinent quotation is Bereschith, XIV. 12, 'R. Hunna dixit : fecit eum servum manumissum coram se ipso, ut si non laboret non manducet.' The exhortation is expressed in the form of a kind of 'enthymeme' (Whately, Logic, II. 3. 7, p. 121), the portion to be supplied being 'atqui quilibet edit; ergo quilibet laborato,' Beng. On the use of ov following  $\epsilon$ , when the negative is closely united with the verb, see notes on I Tim. iii. 5, and the exx. collected by Winer, Gr. § 55. 2, p. 423 sq., Gayler, de Part. This  $\pi a \rho d\kappa \lambda \eta$ ous is ev Kup. Ino. Xp.; it is in Him that it has its proper force and efficacy; see notes on I Thess. iv. I. where  $\pi \alpha \rho \alpha \kappa \alpha \lambda \epsilon \hat{\iota} \nu$  is enhanced by the same addition. The reading can hardly be thought doubtful:  $\epsilon \nu K v \rho$ .  $I \eta \sigma$ .  $X\rho\iota\sigma\tau\hat{\varphi}$  is supported by  $AB(D^{\dagger}E^{\dagger} \epsilon \nu$ K. 'I. μετά ήσυχίας] 'with quietness;' in opposition to the busy and meddlesome course of life followed by the περιπατοῦντες ἀτάκτως and περιεργαζόμενοι; see 1 Thess. iv. 11. The preposition μετὰ serves to point not to the 'causa instrumentalis' (Kypke, Obs. Vol. I. p. 143), but to the concomitant of their working,—that which was associated with it, and characterized their 'modus operandi;' comp. Winer, Gr. § 47. h, p. 337. On the derivation of ήσυχία and its probable distinction from the less common ήρεμία, see notes on 1 Tim. ii. 2.

τὸν ἑἀυτῶν ἀρτον] 'their own bread,' — 'their own' (τὸν ἐξ οἰκείων πόνων, Chrys.), not without emphasis; they were not to seek it at the hands of others (comp. ver. 8), they were not 'alienâ vivere quadrâ,' Juven. Sat. v. 2. The sentiment is well illustrated by Schoettg. and Wetst. in loc. from the Rabbinical writings, out of which the following deserves citation; 'quo tempore homo panem proprium edit, animo composito ac sedato est; si vero panem parentum aut liberorum comedit, non animo tam sedato est, ne dicam de pane peregrino,' Aboth R. Nathan, cap. 30.

13. Uµeis Sé, aberdol] 'But ye, brethren ;' renewal of his address to those who were 'recte animati' (Schott), and lived orderly after the example which he had set them. Kalon.] 'lose not heart in well doing.' The exact meaning of καλοποιείν has been somewhat differently estimated. Several modern writers, following the hint, though not the exact interpr. (μή μήν περιίδητε λιμώ διαφθαρέντας) of Chrys., Theoph., assign to the verb the idea of 'conferring benefits;' the connexion between this and the preceding verse arising from the gentle contrast between the duty of living by their own labour, and the still further duty of conferring benefits on others; see Calv. in loc. As this meaning however seems to be lexically doubtful, see Lev. v. 4 (Cod. Coisl., where καλοπ. stands in antithesis to κακοποιήσαι). and as the more generic 'recte agere'

 $\kappa \alpha \lambda \delta \nu$  its less restricted meaning. The exact definition of this  $\kappa \alpha \lambda \delta \nu$  lies in the specifications of the context.

On the form  $\ell \nu \kappa \kappa \kappa \ell \nu$  [Lachm., Tisch. with ABD  $\Re$ ] and the somewhat doubtful  $\ell \kappa \kappa \kappa \kappa \ell \nu$  [Rec.], see the remarks and distinctions in notes on Gal. l.c.

It is doubtful whether  $\delta_{i\dot{\alpha}}$  $\tau \hat{\eta} s \, \epsilon \pi \iota \sigma \tau o \lambda \hat{\eta} s$  is to be joined (a) with the following verb  $\sigma\eta\mu\epsilon\iotao\vartheta\sigma\theta\epsilon$ , or (b) with the preceding subst.  $\tau \hat{\omega} \lambda \delta \gamma \omega$ . scil. τῷ διὰ τῆς ἐπιστολῆς ἀποσταλέντι. Œcum. The former is adopted by Æth. (Pol.), Beng., Pelt, Winer (Gr. § 18. 9. note 3, p. 108), and others, either  $(a_1)$  in the simple sense, 'notate in epistolâ,' Æth., scil. 'in epistolâ ad me scriptâ illum suis notis depingite,' Grot.,  $-\tau \hat{\eta}s \ \epsilon \pi \iota \sigma \tau o \lambda \hat{\eta}s$  referring to the letter which St Paul would in that case receive from the Thess. (see Winer); or  $(a_2)$  in the more artificial sense, 'hac epistolâ freti severius tractate,' Pelt (comp. Beng.),--τη̂s έπι- $\sigma \tau o \lambda \hat{\eta} s$  in that case referring to the present epistle. Of these last mentioned  $(a_2)$  seems clearly forced and improbable, while  $(a_1)$ , though somewhat more plausible, lies open to the contextual objection that the present order of words would tend to throw an emphasis on  $\delta_{i\dot{\alpha}} \tau \hat{\eta}_{s} \dot{\epsilon} \pi_{i\sigma\tau}$ , which cannot be accounted for, and further to the still graver exegetical objection that a letter would seem uncalled for after the precept in ver. 6, where the course to be pursued by the Thessalonians is already stated. We retain then (b) with Syr., not improbably Vulg., Copt., Goth. [the exact order of the Greek is preserved], Chrys. (appy.), Theoph., Œcum., and most modern expositors. The objection founded on the omission of the art.  $\tau \hat{\varphi}$  after  $\dot{\eta} \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$  is not of weight, as διὰ της έπιστ. is so associated with  $\tau \hat{\varphi}$  $\lambda \delta \gamma \omega \ \eta \mu$ . as to form with it only a single idea; see exx. in Winer, Gr. § 20. 2, p. 123. It may be observed that this is one of those cases in which the use of the art, in the N.T. seems slightly to differ from that in the best Attic Greek. While in the latter the article is rarely omitted, except after verbal substantives (Krüger, Sprachl. § 50. 9. 9), or where the structural connexion of the prepositional member with what precedes is palpably close. this omission of the art, in the N.T. is so far from unusual, that its insertion usually implies some degree of emphasis; see Fritz. Rom. iii. 25. Vol. 1. p. 195 (note). σημειοῦσθε] 'mark,'-scil. by avoid-and iseparetur a vobis], comp. Æth.-Platt. The verb  $\sigma\eta\mu\epsilon\iotao\hat{v}$ . σθαι is a άπ. λεγόμ. in the N.T.: it properly implies in the active 'signo distinguere' (Schott), e.g. έπιστολàs σφραγίδι, Dion. Hal. Antiq. IV. 57, and thence in the middle 'sibi notare aliquid' (Polyb. Hist. XXII. 11, 12),more correctly, according to the Atticists, amosymalvesdal (Thomas-Mag. p. 791, Herodian, p. 420, ed. Koch), or as here, with a more intensive force, 'notâ (censoriâ) notare ;' the middle having what has been termedits 'dynamic' character, Krüger, Sprachl. § 52. 8. 4. The reading is doubtful; Lachm. omits kal with ABD3EN; 17; Clarom., Sangerm., Goth., Copt. ; Chrys. ; Tert., al.,-and reads συναναμίγνυσθαι in which he is supported as to the termination by ABD<sup>1</sup>EFGN; on this last reading it is impossible to pronounce from the Manuscript evidence, on account of the constant interchange of  $\epsilon$ and a by itacism. Of the Versions Clarom., Sangerm., Copt., Goth., support the infinitive, Vulg., Syr., Augiens., the imperative.

On the meaning of the word είρήνη, not merely 'concord' (ωστε μηδαμόθεν έχειν φιλονεικίας άφορμήν, Chrys.), but peace in its widest and Christian sense,-the deep tranquillity of a soul resting on God, see notes on Phil. iv. 7, and on the nature of the gen., see notes on I Thess. v. 23,but observe that Kúpios can more readily be associated with the gen. as being allied to verbs that regularly govern that case; comp. διὰ παντός κ.τ.λ.] 'continually in every manner,'—at all times (Matth. xviii. 10, Acts ii. 25, Rom. xi. 10, al., comp. Ast, Lex. Platon. The second mode however Autograph salutation and benediction. Ο ἀσπασμος τῆ ἐμῆ χειρὶ Παύ- 17 λου, ὅ ἐστιν σημεῖον ἐν πάσῃ ἐπιστολῆ· οὕτως γράφω· enters but slightly into the contemplation of the Apostle, as there is nothing in the Ep. to make us think that  $\tau \delta \epsilon i \rho \eta \nu \epsilon \dot{\nu} \epsilon \mu \eta \lambda \delta \delta \lambda \dot{\eta} \lambda \delta \nu s$  had been seriously endangered or violated. The reading  $\epsilon \nu \pi a \nu \tau i \tau \delta \pi \omega$ , adopted by Lachm. with A1D1FG ; 2 mss. ; Vulg., Clarom., Goth. ; Chrys. [see the note of Montfaucon], seems to have been suggested by the not uncommon occurrence of the formula (I Cor. i. 2, 2 Cor. ii. 14, 1 Tim. ii. 8), and perhaps partially by the foregoing allusion to time. The reading of the text is supported by A2BD3EKLX; nearly all mss.; Syr. (both), Copt., al.; Theod., Dam., and seems in every way more suitable to the context.

17. 'O ἀσπασμός κ.τ.λ.] ' The salutation by the hand of me Paul ;' comp. I Cor. xvi. 21, and Col. iv. 18, On the quasi-appositional genitive Παύλου, see exx. in Jelf, Gr. § 467. 4. These words appy, form the commencement of the autograph salutation with which the Apostle attests the genuineness and authenticity of the Epistle (comp. notes on Gal. vi. 11), the two verses having appy. both been written by the Apostle,-not merely ver. 18 (τδ 'Η χάρις κ.τ.λ. άντι τοῦ ἐρρώσθαί σε γράφειν είώθει. Theod., al.), which, as Lünem. rightly observes, could hardly be termed a direct aonaoubs.

ö] 'which thing;' not meaning, by attraction (see exx. in Winer, Gr. § 24. 3, p. 150) to the following σημεΐον, 'which greeting,' but more simply and naturally referring to the preceding words, and to the general fact of their being written  $\tau_{\hat{\eta}} \epsilon_{\mu\hat{\eta}} \chi_{\epsilon i\rho l} \Pi_{a \nu l o v}$ . These autograph lines formed a σημεΐον that the Ep. was not ώs δί αὐτοῦ (ch. ii. 2), but was truly and genuinely his own inspired composition.

έν πάση έπιστολη] ' in every epistle ;' appy. with reference to every future Epistle (τη πρός ούστινας δήποτε, Theoph. 2) which the Apostle might hereafter deem it necessary so to authenticate. - not merely those he might have contemplated writing to Thessalonica (Theoph. I, Lünem.); for consider I Cor. xvi. 21, and Col. iv. 18. If it be urged that these last mentioned are the only Epp. in which the autograph attestation seems to have found a place, it may be reasonably answered that the  $\pi \alpha \sigma \eta$  must be understood relatively of every Epistle that was sent in such a way or under such circumstances as to have needed it. All the other Epp. (except I Cor., Col., which have the  $\sigma\eta\mu\epsilon\hat{\iota}\sigma\nu$ , and I Thess., which was sent before circumstances proved it to be necessary) are fairly shown both by De Wette and by Alf. in loc. to have either been delivered by emissaries (2 Cor., Phil.), to bear such marks (Gal. vi. 11, and perhaps the doxology in Rom., Eph.), or to be of such a general character (Rom. ? Eph. ? and those to individuals), as to have rendered a formal attestation unnecessary.

ούτως γράφω] 'so I write;' scil. in such characters as ver. 17 and 18 appeared to be written with. The suppositions that the Apostle here inserted some words (τ∂'Aσπάζομαι ὑμᾶς,  $\dagger$  τ∂ "Ερρωσθε,  $\dagger$  τι τοιοῦτον, Œcum.), or adopted a monogram ('conjunctis scilicet apte literis II et  $\Lambda$ ,' according to Zeltner, de Monogr. # TRANSLATION.

NOTICE.

THE following translation has been revised in accordance with the principles laid down in former portions of this work. Experience seems satisfactorily to show that change is undesirable except where our Authorised Version is incorrect, inexact, insufficient, obscure (Pref. to Galatians, p. xxv), or inconsistent with itself in renderings of the less usual words or forms of expression (Notice to Transl. of Pastoral Epistles). The last form of correction is perhaps the most difficult to adjust, as our Translators expressly state that they have not been careful to preserve throughout their work a studied uniformity of translation, and consequently any attempt to do this regularly would reverse the principles on which they acted, and tend to produce what they avoided-dulness and monotony. Still in the same Epistle, and especially in the same context, it is so obviously desirable to be consistent, that here at least changes will have to be introduced. It must however always rest with individual judgment whether the word or expression in question is of such a character as to demand uniformity, or whether it is best left to take its hue from the context. That I have always been judicious in my decisions is more than I dare hope, but still I have striven to make them with a clear recognition of the general principles that characterize the noble Version which I am presuming to revise.

That these points may be more fully considered, and that my opinion, where seemingly capricious or precipitate, may be more completely tested, I have made a few additions to the notes in the shape of reasons for the changes adopted, and I have further sought to add to the common stock of principles of revision a brief record of my own experiences and my own many difficulties. Sincerely and earnestly do I trust that the revision of our Authorised Version may be undertaken in its own good time, and that that time is not indefinitely remote, still year after year I am made more sensibly to feel that this can only be done by a frank and modest avowal, on the part of every one who has gained any experience, of the real difficulties that attend on the work,—difficulties far more numerous than the inexact and often presumptuous criticism of the day is at all aware of.

I have carefully considered the Revised Translation of these Epistles published by the American Bible Union (Trübner, London, 1856), and have in a few cases profited by its suggestions, still I cannot but feel that this laborious work is at present very far from what we may imagine to be the model of a national Revision.

It may be as well to notice here that the translation of Wiclif is quoted from the New Testament published by Pickering in 1848; that Coverdale's Testament of 1538 is cited from the Paris edition; that the edition of Cranmer employed is that of April 1540; that the Genevan Version is given from the first edition 1560; and that the citations from the Bishops' Bible are made from the first edition 1568. For the remaining Versions, of Tyndale and Coverdale, the Rhemish and the Authorised, I have used Bagster's reprints.

FIRST EPISTLE TO THE THESSALONIANS.

PAUL and Silvanus and Timothy to the church of the I. Thessalonians in God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. Grace be to you and peace.

We give thanks to God always for you all, making 2 mention of you in our prayers; remembering without 3 ceasing your work of faith, and toil of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ, in the presence of God and our Father: knowing, brethren beloved of God, your 4 election; because our Gospel came not unto you in word 5

I. Timothy] So WICL., CRAN., RHEM.: Timotheus, AUTH. and remaining Vv. See notes on Col. i. I (Transl.). In God] So all Vv. except AUTH., GEN., which is in God,—an unnecessary and inexact addition, not adopted by AUTH. in the parallel passage 2 Thess. i. I.

And the Lord] So WICL., COV. Test., RHEM. (our L.): and in the Lord, AUTH. and remaining Vv. The addition of 'in' seems unnecessary, and is best reserved for those cases where it is expressed in the Greek, or where, as in I Tim. vi. 9 (see notes), there are contextual reasons for its introduction. The mistakes caused by such insertions are well noticed by Blunt, Parish Priest, p. 56. And peace] AUTH. adds "from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3. Toil] Similarly WICL., traueyl:

labour, AUTH. and the remaining Vv. except GEN., diligent love. Though 'labour of love' has from the alliteration become familiar to the ear, it seems desirable here to maintain the more strict translation of  $\kappa \delta \pi \sigma s$ : see notes in loc. In the presence of ] So AUTH. in ch. ii. 19: in the sight of, AUTH. and the other Vv. except WICL., Cov. (both), RHEM., before. It is of little moment which of these translations is adopted; but as the expression  $\ell \mu \pi \rho$ .  $\tau \sigma \tilde{\nu} \, \Theta \epsilon \sigma$ is only used by St Paul in this Epistle, it should be similarly translated throughout.

4. Beloved of God, your el.] So AUTH. Marg., Cov. Test., RHEM., and (giving how that ye are electe) TYND., Cov., CBAN.: beloved, your election of God, AUTH., BISH., and sim. GEN. (that ye are elect of God).

5. Because] For, AUTH. and all

only, but also in power and in the Holy Ghost and in much assurance; even as ye know what manner of men 6 we became among you for your sake. And ye became followers of us and of the Lord, having received the word
7 in much affliction with joy of the Holy Ghost; so that ye became an ensample to all that believe in Macedonia and 8 in Achaia. For from you hath sounded forth the word

- of the Lord not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but in every place your faith to God-ward is gone forth; so that
- 9 we need not to speak anything. For they themselves report of us what manner of entering in we had unto you, and how ye turned unto God from idols to serve the
- 10 living and true God; and to wait for His Son from heaven, whom He raised from the dead, even Jesus who delivereth us from the coming wrath.

Vv. except RHEM., that. Even as] As, AUTH. and all Vv. It is almost impossible to lay down any exact rule for the translation of  $\kappa \alpha \theta \omega s$ . Whether the lighter 'as,' or the more expressive and perhaps more literal 'even as' or 'according as' is to be adopted, must appy. be left wholly to the context and to individual judgment.

Became] Behaued oure selves, TYND., CRAN.; haue ben, COV. Test., RHEM.; were, AUTH. and remaining Vv.

6. Followers] So AUTH. and all Vv. Though 'imitators' would be more exact, it is hardly necessary to displace the present idiomatic and perfectly intelligible translation.

7. Became an ensample] Sim., are become an ens., Cov. Test.: were *ensamples, AUTH.; were an ensample, TYND., Cov., CRAN., BISH.

And in Achaia] And *Achaia, AUTH. 8. Hath sounded forth] Sounded out, AUTH., TYND., CRAN., GEN., BISH. The perfect ought always to be observed in translation. Though idiom may occasionally require the aorist to be translated with the usual sign of the perfect, the converse is extremely rare; comp. 2 Cor. i. 9. But] But *also, AUTH.

Is gone forth] Sim. Cov. Test. (is gone out): is spread abroad, AUTH., Cov., BISH.; spred her silfe abroade, TYND., CRAN.; is proceeded, RHEM.

9. Report] SO RHEM.: shew, AUTH. and remaining Vv. Turned] Returned, AUTH. ed. 1611, as given in the English Hexapla.

10. From heaven] So AUTH. and all Vv. except WICL., fro heuenes. Many modern Vv. preserve both the article and the plural, but with the familiar usage of the word in the N.T. (e.g. Matth. vi. 9) before us it seems in general passages like the present both harsh and unnecessary to be thus literally precise. Who] So RHEM.: which, AUTH.

Delivereth] So TYND., CBAN., GEN., BISH.: delivered, AUTH., WICL.; hath delyuered, COV. (both), RHEM.

Coming wrath] Wrath to come, AUTH. and all Vv. (w. to comynge, WICL.).

For yourselves know, brethren, our entering in unto II. you that it hath not been vain: but after that we had suf- 2 fered before, and had been shamefully entreated, as ye know, at Philippi, we were bold of speech in our God, so as to speak unto you the Gospel of God in much conflict. For our exhortation is not of error, nor yet of unclean- 3

CHAFTER II. I. Know, brethren] So, in the same order, TYND., GEN., RHEM.: brethren, know, AUTH., COV., CRAN., BISH. There seems here no cause for departing from the order of the original. Entering] Entrance, AUTH. There is no reason why the rendering adopted in ch. i. 9 should not be retained.

Hath not been] Was not, AUTH. and all Vv. Vain] So WICL., RHEM.: in vain, AUTH. and remaining Vv.

2. But after] But *even after, AUTH. Had been shamefully entr.] Were shamefully entr., AUTH., TYND., CRAN., GEN., BISH. The other Vy, vary the translation of the participle ; Cov. gives, but as we had suffred afore, & were, &c.: Cov. Test., but we suffred ... and were ... and were boldened : and RHEM., but having suffered before and been abused, &c. If the view taken in the notes be correct, it seems best to regard both participles as temporal, and to express them both by the idiomatic resolution into the English pluperfect. On the translation of the aorist part. when associated with the finite verb, see notes on Phil. ii. 30 (Transl.). Were bold of speech] Were bold, AUTH. and the other Vv. except WICL., hadde triste ; Cov. Test., were boldened ; and RHEM., had confidence : see notes in loc.

So as to speak] To speak, AUTH. and all Vv. (for to sp., WICL.). The introduction of 'so as' seems necessary to exhibit the explanatory nature of the infinitive, and to avoid tautology. In (3)] So WIGL., COV. Test., CRAN., BISH., RHEM.: *with, AUTH., TYND., COV., GEN. Conflict] SO AUTH. in Col. ii. I, giving contention here. There is much variation in the translation here : Bisynesse, WICL.; carefulnesse, COV. Test., RHEM. (these three following the Vulg. sollicitudine); strivynge, TYND., COV., CRAN., GEN., BISH.

3. Is] Was, AUTH. and all Vv. Error] So all Vv. except AUTH., GEN., BISH., deceit. Nor yet...nor] Nor yet ... nether, TYND., COV., CRAN.; nor...nor, AUTH., COV. Test., GEN.: nether ... nether, WICL., BISH.; not ... nor, RHEM. There is some little difficulty in the choice of an appropriate rendering in the different cases of continued negation. Perhaps the following distinctions of translation may be found generally satisfactory in application. (1)  $M\dot{\eta}...\mu\eta\delta\dot{\epsilon}$  or  $o\dot{\upsilon}...o\dot{\upsilon}\delta\dot{\epsilon}$  will commonly admit the translation (a) 'not...neither,' when the two words or clauses to which the negation is prefixed are simply parallel and coordinate, e.g. Matth. vii. 6; (b) 'not ... nor,' when there is some sort of connexion in thought, or accordance in meaning, in the words or clauses with which the negatives are associated, e. g. ch. v. 5; (c) 'not...nor yet,' where there is less accordance, and where the latter clause has somewhat of a climactic character, e.g. Phil. ii. 16, and see notes to Transl. (2) Mη...μηδέ...μηδέ, 'not...nor...nor' (John i. 13), where the terms are similar or non-ascensive, or 'not'

- . 4 ness, nor in guile: but according as we have been approved of God to be put in trust with the Gospel, even so we speak; not as pleasing men, but God which proveth
  - 5 our hearts. For neither at any time used we speech of flattery, as ye know, nor a cloke of covetousness; God is
  - 6 witness: neither seeking glory of men, neither of you nor of others, though we might have used authority as Christ's
- . 7 apostles. But we were gentle in the midst of you, like as
  - 8 a nurse cherisheth her own children; so, being affectionately desirous of you, we had good will to impart to followed by 'nor...nor yet,' as perhaps Col. ii. 21 (but see notes), or by 'nor yet...nor,' as here, according as the dissimilarity or climactic force is mainly exhibited in the second or in the third term. (3)  $M\dot{\eta}...\mu\dot{\eta}\tau\epsilon...\mu\dot{\eta}\tau\epsilon$ , 'not...neither ... nor ;' where the first negation, so to say, bifurcates, and is expanded into two similar clauses introduced each by the adjunctive  $\mu\eta\tau\epsilon$ ; comp. AUTH. in I Tim. i. 7. In cases where there are three or more repetitions of  $\mu\eta\tau\epsilon$ , our Authorised Version appears to adopt in the main (3), repeating 'neither' after 'nor;' comp. Matth. v. 34, Luke ix. 3.

4. According as] As, AUTH. and It has been before oball Vv. served that the introduction of 'according' or 'even' must depend on the general hue of the passage : here it seems necessary. Have been] Were, AUTH. Approved] So RHEM.; sim. prouede, WICL.: allowed, AUTH. and remaining Vv. Proveth ] So WICL., RHEM .: trieth, AUTH. and remaining Vv. WICL. and RHEM. are the only Vv. which preserve the paronomasia in δεδοκιμάσμεθα ... δοκιμά-CONTL.

5. Speech of flattery] Somewhat similarly, worde of glosynge, W10L.; the vvord of adulation, RHEM.: flattering words, AUTH. and remaining Vv.

6. Neither seeking] So WICL., and (giving nor) Cov. Test., RHEM. : nor ... sought we, AUTH., and so the remaining Vv., except that they more correctly adopt neither at the commencement of the clauses. In some cases, especially in St Paul's Epp., it is almost impossible to give an idiomatic translation without converting the participle into a finite verb (comp. Rom. xii. 9 sq.): here however there is no such necessity. Nor] So rightly WICL. (nether), Cov. (both), GEN., RHEM.: nor yet, AUTH., TYND., CRAN., BISH. Though] Vvhereas, RHEM.; when, AUTH. and remaining Vv. Have used authority] So AUTH. Marg.; be charge to you, WICL. ; have bene chargeable, TYND., Cov. (both) [adding vnto you], GEN.; have bene i auctorite. CRAN., BISH.; have been a burden to you, RHEM.; have been burdensome, AUTH. (Vulg. here adds vobis.) Christ's apostles] So WICL .: the Apostles of Christ, AUTH. and remaining Vv. (Cov. Test. omits the).

7. In the midst of ] So WICL. (mydil), RHEM.: among, AUTH. and remaining Vv. Like as] So Cov.: even as, AUTH.

Her own] Her, AUTH. and all Vv.

8. We had good will to] Somewhat similarly, oure good will was to, TYND., CRAN., GEN., BISH.; we...wolde with good wyl, COV.: we were willing to, you, not the Gospel of God only, but also our own souls, because ye became very dear to us. For ye remember, 9 brethren, our toil and travail: working night and day, that we might not be burdensome to any of you, preached we unto you the Gospel of God. Ye are witnesses, and 10 so is God, how holily and justly and unblameably we behaved ourselves to you that believe; even as you know 11 how in regard of every one of you we did so, as a father toward his own children, exhorting you and encouraging you, and testifying that ye should walk worthy of God 12 who is calling you into His own kingdom and glory.

AUTH.; we...wolden, WICL., COV. Test.; we would gladly, RHEM. Εὐδοκεῦν occurs again in ch. iii. 1, 2 Thess. ii. 12, but it is not possible to preserve a uniform translation.

Impart] So, as to the tense of the infin., WICL. (bitake), RHEM. (deliuer): have imparted, AUTH.; have dealte, TYND. and the five remaining Vv.

Became] Similarly WICL., ben made; and RHEM., are become: were, AUTH. and remaining Vv. Very dear] Similarly Cov. Test., RHEM., most deare; and WICL., most derworth: dear, AUTH. and remaining Vv.

9. Toil] Labour, AUTH. and the other Vv. except WICL., traueyl (giving werynesse for  $\mu \delta \chi \theta o \nu$ ). See notes on ch. i. 3 (Transl.).

Working] So WIGL., RHEM.: *for labouring, AUTH. It is well to translate ξργον, ἐργάζομαι, always by 'work.'

That we might not, &c.] Because we would not be chargeable unto, AUTH., TYND. (greveous), COV., CRAN., GEN., BISH.; that we schulden not greue, WICL.; leste we shulde be chargeagle wnto, COV. Test.; lest vve should charge, RHEM.

Preached we] We preached, AUTH. The inversion seems to give a slight force, and to keep in more immediate connexion the participle and its finite verb. 10. So is God] So TYND., COV. (both), CRAN.: God also, AUTH., GEN., BISH.; God, WICL., RHEM. To you] So WICL., RHEM.: among you, AUTH. and the other Vv. except Cov. Test., wyth you.

II. Even as] As, AUTH. and all Vv. How in regard of, &c.] How we exhorted and comforted, and charged every one of you, (as a father doeth his children,), AUTH.: CRAN. alone preserves the correct construction, though with a somewhat free translation, how that we bare soch affeccyon vnto every one of you, as a father doth vnto chyldren. exhortynge, confortyng, and besechyng you that, &c. This also seems the more correct position for the clause ώs πατήρ κ.τ.λ., except that it somewhat interferes with the easy run of the sentence. His own] As above in ver. 7: his, AUTH. and all Vv. except CRAN., which omits the pronoun. Exhorting you] AUTH. omits you here; and does not supply it after the following word.

Encouraging] AUTH. and all Vv. use the word comfort for  $\pi a \rho a \kappa a \lambda o \hat{v} \nu \tau \epsilon s$ here: for the constr. of AUTH. see above. Testifying] So AUTH. for  $\mu a \rho \tau \dot{v} \rho \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota$  in Gal. v. 3; Eph. iv. 17; here it employs \*charge, reading  $\mu a \rho \tau v \rho o \dot{\mu} e \nu a$ .

I THESSALONIANS.

13 For this cause we also thank God without ceasing, that when ye received from us the word of preaching that is of God, ye accepted not the word of men, but, as it is in truth, the word of God, which worketh also in you14 that believe. For ye, brethren, became followers of the churches of God which are in Judæa in Christ Jesus, in that ye also suffered the same things of your own country-

15 men as they too did of the Jews, who killed both the Lord Jesus and the prophets, and drove us out, and please16 not God, and are contrary to all men, hindering us from

AUTH. and remaining Vv.

Is calling] Hath called, AUTH. and the other Vv. except WICL., clepide. Into] So WICL., RHEM.: unto, AUTH. and remaining Vv. His own] His, AUTH. and all Vv.

13. We also thank] Also thank we, AUTH., GEN.: as kal belongs to nueîs it is better to adopt the order of the text; sim. Cov. Test., RHEM. That (before when)] So GEN .: because, AUTH., BISH.; for, WICL.; because that, TYND., COV. (both), CRAN., From us the word of, &c.] RHEM. Very similarly, of vs the worde of the preachinge of God, Cov. (both), GEN .: the word of God, which ye heard of us, AUTH.; of vs the worde of the herynge of god, WICL., RHEM. ; of vs the worde wherwith God was preached, TYND.; of vs y' worde (wherwith ye learned to know God), CRAN. ; the worde which ye hearde of vs concernyng God, BISH.

Accepted] Received, AUTH. and allother Vv. except WICL. (token, giving hadden take before). It is desirable to show by the translation that two words are used,  $\pi a \rho a \lambda a \beta \delta \nu \tau \epsilon s \dots \epsilon \delta \epsilon \xi a \sigma \theta \epsilon$ . Vulg. uses accipere in both cases.

Not] It not as, AUTH. and all Vv., and so Vulg. Worketh] So all Vv. except AUTH., BISH., effectually worketh. See also AUTH. in James v. 16. The force of èvep-  $\gamma \epsilon \hat{i} \sigma \theta a i$ , 'ex se vim suam exercere,' cannot easily be expressed in English: 'to work' seems hardly sufficient on the one hand; 'to work effectually' somewhat too strong on the other. The most exact translation is perhaps 'to evince (its) working,' but is not in harmony with the tone of our Authorised Version.

14. Followers] See note on ch. i. 6 (Transl.). Are in J.] So WICL., Cov. Test., RHEM., following the Vulg.: in J. are, AUTH. and remaining Vv. In that] Similarly GEN., because: so that, Cov.; for, AUTH. and remaining Vv. Suffered] Have suffered, AUTH. and all Vv. The same] So WICL., GEN., RHEM.: soch, Cov. Test.; like, AUTH. and remaining Vv.

As they too did] Even as they have, AUTH.

15. Killed both] Both killed, AUTH., GEN., BISH., RHEM. The prophets] *Their own Pr., AUTH. Drove us out] Haue chased vs out, AUTH. Marg.; pursuen vs, WICL.; haue persued vs, COV. Test.; have persecuted us, AUTH. and 6 remaining Vv.

Please not God] So Cov., Cov. Test. (do not pl.), RHEM.: they please not God, AUTH., WICL. (to g.); God they please not, TYND., CBAN., GEN., BISH.

16. Hindering] And hynder, CRAN., BISH.; forbidding, AUTH., WICL.,

speaking to the Gentiles that they might be saved,—in order to fill up their sins alway. But the wrath is come upon them unto the very end.

But we, brethren, having been torn from you for a 17 short time, in face, not in heart, the more abundantly en-

Cov. (both); and forbid, TYND., GEN.; prohibiting, RHEM. Though the transl. given by AUTH. is the usual one of  $\kappa\omega\lambda\dot{\omega}\epsilon\nu$  and cannot be called incorrect, yet that adopted in the text is here far more forcible. From speaking] To speak, AUTH.; see previous note. In order to fill up] To fill up, AUTH. But] For, AUTH. and all Vv. (forsothe, WICL.). Vulg. here gives enim for  $\delta \epsilon$ .

Is come] So AUTH. and all Vv. (Cov. adds allready) except WICL., bifore came. This certainly seems one of those cases in which our English aorist does not convey the full force of the Greek, but remands the event too absolutely to the past. While the Greek  $\xi \phi \theta a \sigma \epsilon$  states the fact, but is simply silent as to 'quam late pateat id quod actum est' (see notes in loc.), the English 'came' seems to express it. and also to imply distinctly that the event with all its issues plainly belongs to the past. Unto the very end] Til into the ende, WICL.; even to the end, RHEM.; both following the Vulg.: to the uttermost, AUTH., Cov. (vnto ye vttemost), GEN. (vtmoste), BISH. (vtm.); even to the vtmost, TYND., CBAN.; vntyll the vttemost, Cov. Test. The translation adopted in the text perhaps more precisely renders  $\phi \theta \dot{a} \nu \epsilon \nu$  $\epsilon i \dot{s} \tau \dot{\epsilon} \lambda o \dot{s}$  than the more qualitative and appy. adverbial 'to the uttermost;' see notes in loc.

17. Having been torn from you] Being taken from you, AUTH.; desolate fro you, WICL.; for as moch...as we are kept from you, TYND., Cov. (haue bene), CRAN., GEN. (were), BISH.; beynge kepte frö you, Cov. Test.; depriued you, RHEM. It is almost impossible represent in English without a paraphrase the highly expressive  $d\pi o\rho\phi a$ - $\nu \sigma\theta \epsilon \nu \tau es$ , which serves so forcibly to convey not only the separation and severance of the Apostle from his converts, but also his desolate and bereaved state while so separated. The present translation, adopted by Murdoch (Transl. of Syr. N. T.), Peile, and others, seems to approach this meaning as nearly as any single word that has yet been suggested.

Face] Presence, AUTH.:  $\pi\rho\delta\sigma\omega\pi\sigma\nu$  is translated face in the next clause.

The more abundantly endeavoured] More aboundauntly have hivede, WICL .: end. the more abundantly, AUTH.; enforsed the more, TYND., CRAN., GEN., BISH.; have haisted the more, Cov.; hasted more spedely, Cov. Test.; have hastened the more aboundantly, RHEM. Though all the Vv. except WICL. put the adverb after and not before the verb, the latter order is perhaps to be preferred, as throwing the emphasis more distinctly on the 'more abundantly.' It may be observed that much caution must be used in adjusting the order of the words in English with regard to emphasis; for while in Greek the emphatic word seems always to have the precedence, the attentive reader will often observe that the contrary is the case in English. In the position of the verb and adverb however the two languages seem to be mainly coincident. The discrepancy between the English and the Greek position of emphasis has been far too

- 18 deavoured to see your face with great desire. On which account we would fain have come unto you, even I Paul, 20 Verily ye are our glory and joy.

III. Wherefore when we could no longer forbear, we2 thought it good to be left behind at Athens alone; and sent Timothy, our brother and fellow-worker with God in the Gospel of Christ, to establish you, and to exhort you3 in behalf of your faith that no man be disquieted in these much neglected by modern revisers, many of whom seem to think that in all cases the most complete faithfulness is attained by rigidly following the order of the original; see for example the canons laid down by Wade, Notes on the Revised Transl. of St John, p. iv.

On which account] \* Wherefore, 18. Would fain] AUTH. Would, AUTH. and all Vv. Few words cause more difficulty to the translator of the N. T. than the verb  $\theta \epsilon \lambda \omega$ : ' wish' is commonly much too weak, 'desire' not always exact, and 'will' and 'would' often liable to be mistaken for mere auxiliaries. In many cases the Translators of our Version appear to have availed themselves of the past tense 'would' as a very suitable and idiomatic translation of the present θέλω; comp. Rom. vii. 15 sq. Here however it is open to the misconception above alluded to.

Both once] Once, AUTH. And (2)] But, AUTH. and all Vv.

19. Boasting] Rejoicing, AUTH. and the other Vv. except WICL., Cov. Test., RHEM., glorie (gloriæ, Vulg.).

Or is it not also you] Whether yee ben not, WIOL.: are not even ye, AUTH.; are not evē you it, GEN.: are not ye it, TYND., COV. (both), CRAN., BISH.; are not you, RHEM. It will thus be. seen that WICL. alone offers any equivalent to n ouxi (nonne, Vulg.), and that kal is preserved only by AUTH., It is frequently difficult to de-GEN. cide whether in interrogations introduced by  $\eta$  ovxl the  $\eta$  is to be regarded as only giving a greater vividness and abruptness to the question, almost 'What! are not, dc.,' or as really retaining its proper disjunctive force. In the present case, and in more perhaps than are usually so regarded, the latter seems the more correct Lord Jesus] Lord Jesus view. \*Christ, AUTH.

20. Verily] Similarly, yes, TYND., Cov., CRAN., GEN., BISH.; forsothe, WICL.; for, AUTH., Cov. Test., RHEM.

CHAPTER III. I. Thought it good] On the transl. of eidoxeûv, see note on ch. ii. 8 (Transl.). Be left behind] Be left, AUTH.; dwelle, WICL.; remayne, TYND. and six remaining Vv.

2. Timothy] Timotheus, AUTH.: see notes on Col. i. 1 (Transl.).

And fellow-worker with God] And *minister of God, and our fellowlabourer, AUTH. Exhort] So Cov. Test., RHEM. (ad...exhortandos, Vulg.): comfort, AUTH., TYND., Cov., CRAN., GEN., BISH.

afflictions: for yourselves know that we are appointed thereunto. For verily, when we were with you, we told 4 you before that we were to be afflicted; as also it came to pass, and ye know. For this cause, when I too could 5no longer forbear, I sent with a view of knowing your faith, lest haply the tempter have tempted you, and our toil should prove in vain.

But now when Timothy came unto us from you, and 6 brought us the good tidings of your faith and love, and that ye have good remembrance of us always, longing to see us, as we also to see you,—for this cause were we 7

3. Be] So WICL., RHEM.: should be, AUTH. and remaining Vv.

Disquieted] Moved, AUTH. and all Vv. As the word is peculiar and a  $\ddot{\alpha}\pi\alpha\xi$  $\lambda\epsilon\gamma\delta\mu\epsilon\nu\sigma\nu$ , it is better to give it a distinguishing translation. In] So all Vv. except AUTH., by; and GEN., with.

4. Were to be afflicted] Should suffer tribulation, AUTH. and all Vv. WICL., Cov. Test., GEN., RHEM., however give tribulacons (vs to suffre t., WICL.).

As also] So Cov. Test. (putting also after passe), RHEM.; as &, WICL.: even as, AUTH. and remaining Vv.

5. I too] Sim., I also, RHEM.: AUTH. and remaining Vv. except WICL. (which gives & I poul) omit to translate kal. With a view of knowing] To know, AUTH., WICL. (for to), Cov. Test., BISH., RHEM.; y' I mighte kn. of, GEN.; that I myght have knowledge of, TYND., Cov., CBAN.

Haply] So TYND., COV. (both); and sim., parauenture, WICL.; perhaps, RHEM.: by some means, AUTH., CRAN., BISH.; in any sorte, GEN. Have tempted] So AUTH., COV. Test., RHEM. (hath): had t., TYND., COV., CRAN., GEN., BISH. WICL. gives schal tempte. Neither translation is quite exact or strictly idiomatic; the English perfect however seems here to approach more nearly to the present use of the Greek aorist than the pluperfect, and perhaps, owing to the peculiar form of the expression in the original, may be considered as admissible in point of English. Toil] Labour, AUTH. See notes on ch. i. 3 (Transl.).

Should prove] Be, AUTH.; be made, WICL., COV. Test., RHEM.; had bene bestowed, TYND., CRAN.; had bene, COV., GEN., BISH.

6. Timothy] Timotheus, AUTH .: see notes on Col. i. I (Transl.). Unto us from you] So WICL. (to), Cov. Test., RHEM. : from you unto us, AUTH. and remaining Vv.,-a departure from the order in the Greek for which there does not here seem any satisfactory The good tidings Good t ... reason. AUTH. Love] So TYND., Cov., CRAN., GEN., BISH.: charity, AUTH., WICL., COV. Test., RHEM. On this correction see notes on I Tim. i. 5 (Transl.). Longing ] Desiring greatly, AUTH.; desirynge, WICL. and remaining Vv.: the  $\dot{\epsilon}\pi i$  in  $\dot{\epsilon}\pi i\pi o\theta \epsilon i \nu$  is not intensive; see notes. Cov. gives, desyringe to se vs as we also longe to se you.

7. For this cause] Therefore; AUTH. and all Vv. Were we] We were, AUTH. The transposition seems to keep the sentence a little closer togecomforted, brethren, over you in all our necessity and 8 affliction by your faith: since now we live, if ye stand 9 fast in the Lord. For what thanksgiving can we render to God for you, for all the joy which we joy for your sakesin the presence of our God; night and day praying very exceedingly that we may see your face and supply the lacking measures of your faith?

Now may God Himself and our Father and our Lord Jesus Christ direct our way unto you. But you may the Lord make to increase and abound in your love towards one another and towards all men, even as we also ther, and is frequently adopted in AUTH. Brethren] So, in this order, RHEM.: AUTH. and remaining Vv. append it to therefore. Here it seems more exact to retain the order of the Greek. Necessity and affliction]\*Affliction and distress, AUTH. There is no cause for forsaking the ordinary rendering of  $d\nu d\gamma \kappa \eta$  which is preserved by 6 Versions. AUTH. has here distress; WICL. and Cov. Test. give nede.

8. Since] For, AUTH. and the other Vv. except RHEM., because. Here the particle  $\delta \tau \iota$  seems scarcely to have so full a force as 'because,' and yet to be somewhat stronger than 'for,'—which, as a general rule, it is desirable to reserve as the translation of  $\gamma d\rho$ .

9. Thanksgiving] So Cov. Test., RHEM., and sim. WICL. (doinge of thankyngis): thanks, AUTH. and remaining Vv. Render to God] So Cov. Test. (vnto), RHEM., and similarly WICL. (yilde to god): render to God again, AUTH.; recompence to god agayne, TYND., Cov., CBAN., GEN., BISH. Which] Similarly, that, TYND., Cov. (that we have concernynge gou before oure G.), CBAN. : wherewith AUTH., COV. Test., GEN., BISH., RHEM.; in whiche, WICL.

In the presence of ] Before, AUTH. and all Vv.; see notes on ch. i. 3 (Transl.).  Very exceedingly] Exceedingly, AUTH. See ch. v. 13, Eph. iii. 20, the only places where this emphatic compound ὑπερεκπερισσοῦ [-ῶs] occurs.

May] So Cov. Test., RHEM.: might, AUTH. Supply, &c.] Might perfect that which is lacking in, AUTH., and sim. TYND. and Cov. (both giving fulfill), GEN. (accoplish); fulfille tho thing is that faylen of, WICL.; to fulfyll the thynges that are lakyng vnto, Cov. Test., CRAN. (myght...which); repayre the wantynges of, BISH.; may accomplish those things that voant of, RHEM. Cov. omits might (2).

II. May God] AUTH. and the other Vv. omit may, which however seems to add perspicuity to the sentence (CRAN. gives wrongly God...shall).

12. But you may the Lord make] And the Lord make you, AUTH. But is rightly given by Cov. (both). Though there is perhaps some little awkwardness in the prominence given to the pronoun, it seems required to convey to the English reader the antithesis of the original; see notes. Your] So WICL., COV. Test., RHEM., following the Vulg. It is better to insert the pronoun in transl. though it is here omitted by AUTH. and remaining Towards one another] One Vv. towards another, AUTH. We also] So Cov. Test., BISH., RHEM .:

abound towards you; to the end He may stablish your 13 hearts unblameable in holiness in the presence of God and our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all His saints.

Furthermore then, brethren, we beseech you and ex- IV. hort you in the Lord Jesus, that as ye received of us how ye ought to walk and to please God, as indeed ye are walking—that so ye would abound still more. For ye 2 know what commandments we gave you by the Lord Jesus. For this is the will of God, even your sanctifica-3 tion, to wit that ye abstain from Fornication,—that every 4 one of you know how to get himself his own vessel in sanctification and honour, not in lustfulness of desire, 5 even as the Gentiles also which know not God; that no 6 we, AUTH. omitting kal in translation. Abound (2)] Do, AUTH.

13. In the presence of Before, AUTH. and all Vv.: see notes on ch. i. 3 (Transl.). God and our Father] So WICL., COV. Test., BISH., RHEM.: God even our Father, AUTH., GEN.; God oure father, TYND., COV., CRAN. On the best mode of translating this august formula, see notes on Gal. i. 4 (Transl.). Lord Jesus] Lord Jesus* Christ, AUTH.

CHAPTER IV. 1. Furthermore] So AUTH. and the other Vv. except WICL., hensforthwarde; and RHEM., for the rest. This translation of  $\lambda_{0i\pi\partial\nu}$  is perhaps not exactly literal, but seems sufficiently approximate: 'finally' would here be hardly appropriate, and 'for the rest' (RHEM.), though literal, is both harsh and awkward.

Brethren, we] So Cov. Test., RHEM., and similarly WIOL. (therfore br. hens. we): AUTH. and remaining Vv. insert br. after you,—but not in accordance with the Greek order. In] So WICL., TYND., Cov. (both), GEN., RHEM.: by, AUTH., CRAN., BISH. Received] Have received, AUTH. and all Vv. As indeed ye are walking] AUTH. *omits this clause. That so] AUTH. omits *that. Still more] More and more, AUTH. and the other Vv. except WICL., RHEM., more; and Cov. Test., which gives that ye maye be more plentyfullyer.

3. To wit that ye] Sim., that yee, WICL., COV. Test., RHEM. (you): that ye should, AUTH., COV., CRAN., BISH.; and that ye shuld, TYND., GEN.—but TYND. translates the preceding clause even that ye shuld be holy: GEN. as AUTH.

4. Know] Should know, AUTH. This clause is parallel to the preceding 'to wit that,' &c. Get himself] Possess, AUTH., GEN., BISH., RHEM.; welde [i.e. wield] WICL.; kepe, TYND., COV., CBAN.; vse, COV. Test.

His own] His, AUTH. and all Vv.

5. Lustfulness of desire] Sim., passioun of desire, WICL.: the passion of lust, RHEM.; the lust of concupiscence, AUTH. and remaining Vv.

Gentiles also] AUTH. omits kal in translation. man go beyond and overreach his brother in the matter:
because that the Lord is the avenger of all these things, 7 as also we before told you and did solemnly testify. For God called us not for uncleanness, but in sanctification.
8 Wherefore then he that rejecteth rejecteth not man but God, who also gave His Holy Spirit unto you.

9 Now as touching brotherly love ye need not that I write to you; for ye yourselves are taught of God to love
10 one another: for indeed ye do it towards all the brethren that are in the whole of Macedonia. But we exhort you,

6. Overreach] So AUTH. Marg. (oppresse, or, ouerreach): deceyue, WICL.; begyle, Cov. Test.; circumuent, RHEM. (all three from Vulg., circumveniat); defraud, AUTH. and 5 remaining Vv. The matter] So AUTH. Marg.: any matter, AUTH., GEN., BISH.; bargayninge, TYND., Cov. (both), CRAN.; businesse, RHEM. All these things] So WICL., Cov. Test., RHEM.: all such, AUTH., BISH.; all suche thinges, TYND., Cov., CBAN., GEN. As also, &c.] As we also have forewarned you, and testified, AUTH., BISH.

The renderings of the other Vv. are here added as they exhibit a singular variety of translation in a simple clause. As we bifore seyden to you, & have witnesside (or provede by autorite), WICL.; as we tolde you before tyme and testified, TYND., CRAN. (om. tyme); as we have sayde & testified vnto you afore tyme, Cov.; as we have sayd and witnessed vnto you before, Cov. Test.; as we also have tolde you before time and testified, GEN.; as vve have foretold you, and have testified, RHEM. The slight change to 'did testify' is made for the sake of preserving a sort of rhythm; comp. notes on Phil. ii. 16 (Transl.).

7. Called us not] Clepide not vs, WIGL.; hath not called us, AUTH. and remaining Vv. For (2)...in] To ...vnto, Cov.; vnto...into, BISH.; into (bis), WICL., RHEM.; unto (bis), AUTH. and 4 remaining Vv. It is probably a mere accident that Cov. and BISH. preserve a difference in rendering between  $i\pi i$  and  $i\nu$ . Sanctification] So RHEM.: holiness, AUTH. It is well to preserve uniformity of translation with ver. 3, 4.

8. Wherefore then he] And so he. WICL. ; wherfore he, Cov. Test. ; therfore he, RHEM.; he therefore, AUTH. and remaining Vv. Rejecteth (bis)]So AUTH. Marg .: despiseth, AUTH. and all Vv. WICL., Cov. Test., GEN., RHEM., insert thes thing is after the first dispisith (Vulg. haec). Gave] So WICL.: hath sent, TYND., CRAN.; hath...given, AUTH. and remaining Vv. His Holy Spirit unto you] Unto *us his holy Spirit, AUTH.; his holy spirit in vs, WICL., COV. Test., RHEM.; his holy sprete amonge you, TYND., CRAN. ; his holy sprete in to you, Cov.; you his holie Spirit, GEN.; to you his h. s., BISH.

9. Now] But, AUTH. and all Vv. except WICL. (forsothe).

10. For indeed] And in deed, AUTH.; & forsothe, WICL.; for, Cov. Test.; ye and...verely, TYND., CBAN., GEN., BISH.; yee and, Cov., RHEM.

That] Which, AUTH. The whole of M.] Whole M., Cov. Test.: all M., AUTH. and remaining Vv.

brethren, to abound still more, and to study to be quiet, 11 and to do your own business, and to work with your hands, according as we commanded you; in order that 12 ye may walk becomingly toward them that are without, and may have need of no man.

Now we would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, 13 concerning them that are sleeping, that ye sorrow not, even as the rest which have no hope. For if we believe that 14 Jesus died and rose again, even so them that are laid to sleep through Jesus will God bring with Him. For this 15 we say to you in the word of the Lord, that we which are

To abound] That yee abounde, WICL., RHEM. (you); that ye increase, AUTH. and remaining Vv. Still more] More, WICL., RHEM.; more and more, AUTH. and remaining Vv. (yet m. and m., Cov.). See ver. 2.

II. To study] That ye st., AUTH.

Your hands] So WICL., Cov. Test.: your own h., AUTH. and remaining Vv. According as] As, AUTH. and all Vv.

12. In order that] That, AUTH. and all Vv. Becomingly] Honestly, AUTH. and all Vv. The translation 'seemly' deserves consideration, but is appy. open to the objection that in point of strict etymology such a form of the adverb is somewhat doubtful; see Trench, on Auth. Vers. ch. 11. p. 31. May have] That ye may have, AUTH.

Need] Lack, AUTH. No man] So AUTH. Marg.: nothing, AUTH. The clause is translated, and that nothinge be lackynge vnto you, by TYND., COV., CRAN., GEN., BISH. (in you).

13. Now] But, AUTH., BISH.; forsothe, WICL.; and, RHEM.: the remaining five Versions omit  $\delta \dot{\epsilon}$  in translation. We] \*I, AUTH. That] Which, AUTH. Are sleeping] Are \*asleep, AUTH., GEN.; are fallen a slepe, TYND., COV., CRAN.; slepe, COV. Test., BISH., RHEM. For  $\pi \epsilon \rho i \ \tau \hat{\omega} \nu \kappa$ . WICL has simply of men slepyng (or dyinge). The rest] Others, AUTH., RHEM.; other, WICL. and the six remaining Vv.

14. Them that are laid to sleep through Jesus] Them also which sleep in Jesus, AUTH.: no Version has attempted to express the Aorist participle.

15. In] So all Vv. except AUTH., Which are living and GEN., by. are remaining behind ] Which are alive and remain, AUTH.; that lyuen that ben residue (or lefte), WICL.; which live and are remayninge, TYND., Cov., GEN.; that lyue, whych remayne, Cov. Test.; whych shall lyue, & shall remayne, CRAN.; whiche lyue, remayning, BISH.; which line, which are remaining, RHEM. It is not easy to give these words a perfectly accurate and perfectly idiomatic translation : 'we the living, the remaining, dc. would be accurate, but bald; 'we the living who are, &c.' somewhat harsh and appositional. We therefore may perhaps not unwisely retain the 'and,' and also (with AUTH.) omit the second relative in translation, as tending to overload the sentence. The slight addition 'behind' seems suggested by the compound  $\pi\epsilon_{\rho_i\lambda\epsilon_i\pi\epsilon\sigma\theta\alpha_i}$ , the prep. probably marking the idea of overplus, and thence, in the present context, of a continuance on earth and living and are remaining behind unto the coming of the Lord shall in no wise prevent them that are laid to sleep:

- 16 because the Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the Archangel, and with the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first;
- 17 then we which are living and are remaining behind shall be caught up at the same time together with them in clouds, to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever
- 18 be with the Lord. So then comfort one another with these words.
- V. But concerning the times and the seasons, brethren,
- 2 ye have no need to be written to. For yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in
- 3 the night. When they shall say Peace and safety; then doth destruction come suddenly upon them, as travail survival; comp. Herod. I. 82.

Shall in no wise] Shall not, AUTH. and all Vv. Great caution is required in the translation of  $o\dot{v} \ \mu\dot{\eta}$  in the N.T., as in some cases it appears very doubtful whether any emphatic negation is really contemplated by the writer, and whether the formula was not due to that general tendency to strengthened negation which is often observable in later Greek. Perhaps the simplest and best rule is to be guided by the context,—which here seems to require the stronger form of translation.

Prevent] If it be thought necessary to alter this now obsolete word, we may have recourse to the more modern 'precede:' archaisms however as such are not altered in this Revision.

Them that are laid to sleep] Them which are asleep, AUTH.: see note on ver. 14.

16. Because] For, AUTH. and all Vv. In the following words it is perhaps doubtful whether the order of the Greek, which places  $\kappa \alpha \tau \alpha \beta \cdot \eta \sigma \epsilon \tau \alpha \iota$  $\dot{\alpha} \pi' \circ \dot{\upsilon} \rho \alpha r \circ \dot{\upsilon}$  last, might not be advantageously retained, as indeed it is by WIGL., RHEM. It tends however to throw appy. a greater stress on these words than is conveyed by the original.

17. Are living, &c.] Are alive, and remain, AUTH.: see note on ver. 15. At the same—them] Together with them, AUTH., WICL., COV. Test., BISH.; with them also, TYND., COV., CRAN., GEN.; vvithal...vvith them, RHEM. On the translation of μμα σύν αἰτοῖs, see notes in loc. In clouds] So WICL.: in the clouds, AUTH. and remaining Vv.

18. So then] Wherefore, AUTH. and the other Vv. except WICL., & so; and RHEM., therfore.

CHAPTER V. I. Concerning] Of, AUTH. and all Vv. To be written to] To wryte vnto you, Cov.; that we do wryt vnto you, Cov. Test.; that vve vvrite to you, RHEM.; that I write unto you, AUTH. and remaining Vv. (WICL., to).

3. When] *For when, AUTH.

Doth destruction come suddenly] Sudden destruction cometh, AUTH. : aipvi upon a woman with child; and they shall in no wise escape. But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that the 4 day should overtake you as a thief. For ye all are sons 5 of light, and sons of the day: we are not of the night, nor of darkness. Accordingly then let us not sleep, even as 6 do the rest; but let us watch and be sober. For they 7 that sleep sleep in the night; and they that be drunken are drunken in the night. But let us, as we are of the 8 day, be sober, having put on the breastplate of faith and love, and as an helmet the hope of salvation; because 9 God did not appoint us unto wrath, but to obtain salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us, that, 10 whether we watch or sleep, we should together live with him. Wherefore comfort each other, and edify one the 11 other, even as also ye do.

διos is a 'secondary predication of manner,' a force preserved by no Version. In no wise] Not, AUTH. and all Vv.; see notes on ch. iv. 15 (Transl.).

4. The day] The ilke d., WICL.; the same d., RHEM.; that d., AUTH. and remaining Vv. (Cov. Test. omits one that appy. by mistake). It may be doubted whether the text is here so explicit as AUTH.; the translation however of the article by a pronoun is so hazardous, and so erroneous in principle, that the cases are but very few in which idiom or perspicuity can be allowed to prevail over the literal rendering; comp. 2 Thess. iii. 14.

5. For ye all are]\* Ye are all, AUTH. Independently of the insertion of  $\gamma d\rho$ , which is required by Manuscript authority, it seems better to give to 'all' a prominence corresponding to that of  $\pi d \nu \tau \epsilon s$  in the Greek. Sons (bis)] Similarly WICL. (the sones... sones): the children, AUTH. and remaining Vv.; but Cov. omits the article in both cases, and RHEM. omits it in the second. 6. Accordingly then] Therefore, AUTH. and all Vv. Even as] As, AUTH. The rest] The other, Cov. Test.: others, AUTH., RHEM.; other, TYND. and 5 remaining Vv.

8. As we are] Who are, AUTH.: all Versions insert a relative.

Having put on] Putting on, AUTH.: see notes in loc. As an helmet] So TYND.: for an helmet, AUTH., CRAN., GEN.

9. Because] For, AUTH. and all Vv. Did not appoint] Hath not appointed, AUTH. and the other Vv. except WICL. (puttide not).

10. Watch] So RHEM.: wake, AUTH. and remaining Vv.: see ver. 6.

Together live] Live together, AUTH. and all Vv.; see notes.

11. Each other] Your selves together, AUTH., TYND., COV., CRAN., BISH.; one another, COV. Test., GEN., RHEM. One the other] Eche other, WICL.; every one another, CRAN., BISH.; one another, AUTH. and remaining Vv.

I THESSALONIANS.

Now we beseech you, brethren, to regard them which 12 labour among you, and preside over you in the Lord, and 13 admonish you; and to esteem them very exceedingly in love for their work's sake. Be at peace among your-14 selves. Moreover we exhort you, brethren, admonish the disorderly, encourage the feeble minded, support the 15 weak, be longsuffering toward all men. See that none render evil for evil to any man; but alway follow after that which is good towards one another and towards all 16 men. Rejoice alway; pray without ceasing; in every thing give thanks, for this is the will of God in Christ 20 Jesus toward you. Quench not the Spirit; despise not 21 prophesyings: but prove all things; hold fast that which 22 is good. Abstain from every form of evil. But may the 23

15. None | So AUTH. and the other Vv. except WICL., Cov. Test., no man. It may be remarked that AUTH. and the older Vv. appy. always adopt the form 'none,' not 'no one.'

Alway] So Cov. Test., RHEM. (alvvaies): evermore, WICL .; ever, AUTH. and remaining Vv. Follow after] So AUTH. in I Tim. vi. II: sue, WICL.; pursue, RHEM.; follow, AUTH. and 6 remaining Vv. Towards one another] Sim., towarde your selues, GEN.; tovvards eche other, RHEM. : *both among yourselves, AUTH., TYND., COV., Cov. Test. (om. both), CRAN., BISH. WICL. gives simply to gedir. See ch. Towards (2)] So Cov. iii. 12. Test., GEN., RHEM.: to, AUTH. and remaining Vv. (WICL., into).

16. Alway] So Cov. (both), RHEM. (alvvaies): evermore, AUTH., GEN., WICL.; ever, TYND., CRAN., BISH.

18. Toward] So TYND., Cov. (both), CRAN., GEN., BISH. : concerning, AUTH. ; in, WICL., RHEM. (so Vulg.). 21. But prove] *Prove, AUTH.

22. Every form of evil] All appearance of evil, AUTH., GEN., BISH.,

God of peace Himself sanctify you wholly; and may your spirit and soul and body be kept whole without blame in the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. Faithful is He 24 that calleth you, who also will do it.

Brethren, pray for us. Salute all the brethren with  $\frac{1}{26}$  an holy kiss. I adjure you by the Lord that the epistle 27 be read to all the [holy] brethren.

The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. 28

RHEM.; eugl spice (or lickenesse), WIOL.; all suspicious thinges, TYND., Cov. (both); all euell appearaunce, CRAN.

23. But] Forsothe, WIOL.; now, GEN.; and, AUTH., BISH., RHEM.; omitted by TYND., COV. (both), CRAN.

May the God of peace Himself] So RHEM. but omitting may: the same god of pees, WIGL.; the very God of peace, AUTH. and remaining Vv.

And may] That, WICL., Cov. Test., RHEM.; and I pray God, AUTH. and remaining Vv. (all but AUTH. adding that). Your spirit...whole] So WICL.: your whole spirit, AUTH. and remaining Vv.: see especially notes in loc. Kept] So WICL., TYND., Cov. (both), GEN.: preserved, AUTH., CRAN., BISH., RHEM.

Without blame] So RHEM.: blameless, AUTH., COV. (both), GEN., BISH.; with outen pleynte, WICL.; fautlesse, TYND.; so that in nothyng ye maye be blamed, CBAN. In] So WICL., COV. Test., CRAN., BISH., RHEM.: unto, AUTH., TYND., COV., GEN.

27. Adjure] So AUTH. Marg., RHEM., and sim. coniure, WICL.: charge, AUTH. and 6 remaining Vv.

The epistle] This Ep., AUTH. and all Vv.: see notes on 2 Thess. iii. 14 (Transl.).

28. With you] AUTH. adds *Amen.

THE # SECOND EPISTLE TO THE THESSALONIANS.

- PAUL and Silvanus and Timothy to the church of the Thessalonians in God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. Grace be to you and peace, from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.
- 3 We are bound to give thanks to God always for you, brethren, as it is meet, because that your faith increaseth exceedingly, and the love of every one of you all towards 4 each other aboundeth; so that we ourselves make our boast in you in the churches of God, for your patience and faith in all your persecutions and the afflictions that ye

5 endure;-which is a token of the righteous judgment of

I. Timothy] So WICL., RHEM.: Timotheus, AUTH. and remaining Vv.: see notes on Col. i. 1 (Transl.).

 Grace be] So TYND., Cov. (both), CRAN., GEN.: grace, AUTH., WICL., BISH., RHEM. For ὑμῶν TYND., Cov., GEN., give with you; the six remaining Vv. giving to (or unto) you.

3. Give thanks to] So Cov. Test. (vnto), RHEM., and AUTH. in I Thess. i. 2: do thankyngis... to, WICL.; thank, AUTH. and 5 remaining Vv. Increaseth] So Cov. Test., RHEM.: waxith, WICL.; groweth, AUTH. and remaining Vv. However Cov. Test. omits exceedingly, and WICL. gives euer (?reading semper cr.) before waxith. Love] So TYND., Cov. (both), CRAN., GEN, BISH.: charity, AUTH., WICL., RHEM.; comp. notes on 1 Tim. i. 5 (Transl.). 4. Make our boast in] Similarly, make oure boast of, Cov.; make boast of, Cov. Test.; boast of, CRAN.: glory in, AUTH., WICL., RHEM.; reloyce of, TYND., GEN.; reloyce in, BISH.

The afflictions] Tribulations, AUTH. and the other  $\nabla \mathbf{v}$ . except Cov. (both), troubles. No Version inserts the article.

5. Token] So TYND., COV., CRAN., GEN., BISH. : manifest token, AUTH.; ensaumple, WICL., COV. Test., RHEM. Ye are also suffering] & yee suffren, WIOL.; also you suffer, RHEM.; ye also suffer, AUTH. and remaining Vv. The change appears to have two advantages, first, that it more distinctly preserves the association of  $\kappa al$  and  $\pi d\sigma \chi \epsilon \tau \epsilon$ , and secondly, that it conveys more fully the present and continuing God, that ye may be counted worthy of the kingdom of God, for which ye are also suffering. If so be that it is a 6 righteous thing with God to recompense to them that afflict you affliction; and to you who are afflicted rest with us, 7 at the revelation of the Lord Jesus from heaven with the angels of His power in flame of fire, rendering vengeance 8 to those who know not God, and those who obey not the Gospel of our Lord Jesus. Who shall suffer punishment, 9 even eternal destruction away from the face of the Lord and from the glory of His might, when He shall come to 10 nature of the trials of the Thessalonians.

6. If so be that] So AUTH. in Rom. viii. 9, 17, 1 Cor. xv. 15, 2 Cor. v. 3, I Pet. ii. 3: seeing, AUTH.; yif netheles, WICL.; verely, TYND., CRAN.; for, Cov. (both), GEN., BISH. ; if yet, RHEM. To them that afflict you affliction] Yildynge to hem that turblen you, WICL .; tribulation, to them that vexe you, RHEM. ; tribulation to them that trouble you, AUTH. and remaining Vv. [Cov. (both), vnto]. The change seems to preserve more clearly the antithesis, and also to bring more into prominence the 'lex talionis' that is tacitly referred to.

7. Afflicted] Troubled, AUTH. and the other Vv. except RHEM., vexed: see previous note. At the revelation of ] So BISH., RHEM. (both giving in); in the schewynge of, WIOL; in the appearyng of, Cov. Test.: when...shall be revealed, AUTH.; when ...shall shewe him silfe, TYND., Cov., CRAN., GEN. The angels of His power] So AUTH. Marg., Cov. (both), CRAN., BISH., RHEM., and sim. WICL. (a. of his vertue): his mighty Angels, AUTH., TYND., GEN.

8. In flame of fire] So RHEM., and sim. WICL. and Cov. Test. (the fl.): in flaming fire, AUTH., TYND., GEN., BISH.; with fl. f., Cov., CRAN.

Rendering vengeance to] So TYND.,

GEN., BISH. (all giving vnto): taking vengeance on, AUTH. CRAN. gives the transl. of the text, but has a different construction, whych shall rēdre v. vnto. Those who (bis)] Them that...that, AUTH. Lord Jesus] Lord Jesus *Christ, AUTH.

9. Shall suffer punishment, even] Shall be punished with, AUTH. and the other Vv. except WICL., Cov. Test., RHEM., which follow the Vulg. poenas dabunt in interitu aeternas.

Eternal] So RHEM. : everlasting, AUTH. and remaining  $\nabla \mathbf{v}$ . Though here the change is really unimportant, it is still perhaps best to translate this word uniformly, except where the context seems specially and exclusively to imply simple duration. In the present case the alávios is equally qualitative and quantitative.

 Away from] From, AUTH. and all

 Vv.
 Face] So WICL., Cov.

 Test., RHEM.: presence, AUTH. and remaining Vv.

 Might] So

 AUTH. in Eph. vi. 10: vertue, WICL.;

 power, AUTH. and remaining Vv.

10. Shall come] So AUTH. and all Vv. There is some little difficulty in the translation of  $\delta \tau a \nu$  with the aor. subj. Perhaps, as a general rule, it may be said that when the exact rendering 'shall have' is inapplicable (see notes on Tit. iii. 12, Transl.), we may conveniently adopt in transla-be glorified in His saints, and to be admired in all them that believed (because our testimony to you-ward was be-

- 11 lieved) in that day. Whereunto we also pray always for you, that our God may count you worthy of your calling, and fulfil every good pleasure of goodness and the work of
- 12 faith with power; that the name of our Lord Jesus may be glorified in you, and ye in Him, according to the grace of our God and the Lord Jesus Christ.
- II. Now we beseech you, brethren, touching the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our gathering together unto
  - 2 Him, that ye be not quickly shaken from your sober mind, nor yet be troubled, neither by spirit, nor by word nor by letter as coming through us, to the effect that the
  - 3 day of the Lord is now come. Let no man deceive you in any way; because the day shall not come except there tion the present (indic. or conj.) when the reference to the actual futurity of the subsequent event is less specially contemplated (comp. Matth. xxi. 40, Mark iv. 29 [Rec.], al.), and future when, as here, such a reference is more distinct and prominent.

That believed] That *believe, AUTH. To you-ward] Sim., toward you, BISH.; that we had vnto you, TYND., CBAN. (to); vnto you, COV.: among you, AUTH.

11. Whereunto] Wherefore, AUTH. We also] So GEN.: we, TYND., COV.; also we, AUTH. and remaining Vv.

May] So GEN.: would, AUTH., BISH.; wyll, Cov. Test., CRAN.; the four remaining Vv. omit the auxiliary.

Your] This, AUTH., CRAN.; his, WICL., COV. Test., GEN., RHEM.; the, TYND., COV., BISH. Every good pleasure of g.] So BISH. (all): all the good pleasure of his g., AUTH., GEN., RHEM.

12. Lord Jesus] Lord Jesus *Christ, AUTH.

CHAPTER II. I. Touching] By, AUTH. and all Vv.: see notes in loc. And our] So Wick.: and by our, AUTH., GEN., BISH.

2. Quickly] Soon, AUTH., WICL.; sodenly, TYND., COV., CRAN., GEN., BISH.; hastely, Cov. Test.; easily, RHEM. From your sober mind] Similarly, fro youre witte, WICL.; from youre mynde, TYND., Cov. (both), CRAN., GEN., BISH.; from your sense. RHEM.: AUTH. alone gives the incorrect in mind. Nor yet be] Nor be, Cov. Test., CRAN., BISH., RHEM.: nor, GEN.; or be, AUTH.; nether be yee, WICL.; and be not, TYND., Cov. Coming through] From, AUTH. Although did occurs four times in this verse, it is not worth while to overweight the sentence by translating it uniformly through. To the effect that] As that, AUTH. This slight change seems to make the meaning a little more perspicuous. The Lord] *Christ, AUTH. Now come] At hand, AUTH. and the other Vv. except WICL., nyg.

3. In any way] In any maner, WICL.; by any means, AUTH. and come the falling away first, and the Man of Sin be revealed, the son of perdition; he that opposeth, and ex-4 alteth himself against every one called God or an object of worship; insomuch that he sitteth in the temple of God, displaying himself that he is God. Remember ye 5 not that when I was yet with you I used to tell you these things? And now ye know what restraineth, that 6 he may be revealed in his own time. For the mystery 7 of lawlessness is already working, yet only until he who now restraineth be taken out of the way. And then 8 remaining Vv. Because] For, AUTH. and all Vv. The day shall not come] So AUTH., GEN. (both giving that d.): the lorde commeth not, TYND., Cov. (both); the Lorde shall not come, CBAN., BISH.; no clause is supplied by WICL. or RHEM.

The falling away] A falling away, AUTH., BISH.; departynge awaye (or discencon), WICL.; a reuolt, RHEM.; a departynge, TYND., CRAN., GEN.; the dep., COV. (both), which alone of all the Vv. rightly give the article.

The Man of Sin] So WICL., RHEM.: that man of sin, AUTH., COV., GEN., BISH.; that synfull man, TYND., CRAN.; the s. man, COV. Test.

4. He that opposeth] Who opposeth, AUTH.; that is adversarie, WICL.; whych is the adu., Cov. Test.; which is an adv., TYND, and five remaining Vv. It will thus be seen that the Vv. rightly recognise the substantival character of  $\delta d\nu \tau \iota \kappa \epsilon l \mu \epsilon \nu os$ , and unite  $\epsilon \pi i$  $\pi \dot{\alpha} \nu \tau a \kappa . \tau . \lambda$ . solely with the following participle. Against ] So GEN .: vpon, WICL.; above, AUTH. and remaining Vv. Every one called All that is called, AUTH. and all Vv. except WICL. (alle thing that is seyde). Anobject of worship] That is worshipped, AUTH. and the other Vv. except Cov., Gods servyce. Insomuch] So Cov. Test.: 30, AUTH. and remaining Vy. He sitteth ] He \*as God s., AUTH.

Displaying himself ] Shewing himself, AUTH., WICL., GEN., BISH., RHEM.; and shew him silfe, TYND. (giving shall sitt above); and boasteth himselfe, COV.; boastynge hym self, COV. Test., CRAN.

5. Used to tell] Told, AUTH.: no Version attempts to give the force of the imperfect.

6. Restraineth] Withholdeth, AUTH. and the other Vv. except Cov. Test., doth withholde; and RHEM., letteth. There does not seem any reason for supplying the pronoun 'him,' with Scholef. (Hints, p. 116, ed. 4): we seem bound to preserve the mysterious indefiniteness of the original: Cov. (both) supply. it. May be] So Cov. Test., RHEM.: be, WIOL.; might be, AUTH. and remaining Vv.

His own] His, AUTH. and all Vv.

7. Lawlessness] Iniquity, AUTH. and all Vv. except WICL., wickidnesse. But TYND. gives that in., and Cov., CRAN., give the in. It seems desirable here to retain this more rigidly literal translation as serving more clearly to indicate the essential character of  $\tau \delta$ κατέχον. Is already working] Doth already work, AUTH., CRAN., GEN., BISH. Yet only until, &c.] Similarly, tyll he which now onely letteth, Cov., CRAN., BISH.; only he who now letteth, will let, until he, AUTH.; onely that he that holdith nowe, holde, til it, WICL. ; which onlie loketh, vntill shall the Lawless One be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus shall consume with the breath of His mouth, and 9 shall destroy with the appearance of His coming; whose coming is after the working of Satan in all power and 10 signs and wonders of lying, and in all deceit of unrighteousness to them that are perishing; because they embraced not the love of the truth, that they might be 11 saved. And for this cause doth God send them a work12 ing of error that they should believe the lie; that they may all of them be judged who believed not the truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousness.

it, TYND.; only he that holdeth, let hym holde now, tyll he, Cov. Test.; onely he which now withholdeth, shal let til he, GEN.; only that he vrhich novv holdeth, doe hold, vntil he, RHEM. The insertion of 'yet' may perhaps be admitted as slightly clearing up the elliptical expression.

8. The Lawless One] That wicked, AUTH., TYND., COV. (both), CRAN., BISH.: the ilke wickide (man), WICL.; the wicked man, GEN.; that vvicked one, RHEM. The Lord Jesus] The Lord, AUTH. omitting *Jesus.

Breath] Spirit, AUTH. and all Vv.

Appearance] So TYND., Cov. (both), CRAN.; brightness, AUTH., GEN., BISH.; illumynynge (or schynynge), WICL.; manifestation, RHEM. The regular trans<sup>1</sup>stion of this word in AUTH. is 'appearing' (1 Tim. vi. 14, 2 Tim. i. 10, iv. 1, 8, Tit. ii. 13), which is here slightly changed to avoid the juxtaposition of two participial substantives.

9. Whose] Hym whos, WICL., RHEM.: even him whose, AUTH. and remaining Vv. In] So WICL., Cov. Test., BISH., RHEM.: with, AUTH. and remaining Vv. Wonders of lying] So BISH.: lying wonders, AUTH., Cov. Test., GEN.

10. And in] So WICL., TYND., Cov. Test., GEN., BISH., RHEM.: and with, AUTH., COV., CRAN.

Deceit] So WICL., COV. Test.: seducing, RHEM.; deceivableness, AUTH. and remaining Vv. To them] So WICL., COV. Test. (vnto), RHEM.: in them, AUTH., BISH.; amonge them, TYND., COV., CRAN., GEN.

Are perishing] Perish, AUTH. and all Vv. Embraced] Received, AUTH.

11. Doth God send ] God *shall send, AUTH. A working of error] So WICL .: the operacion of erroure, COV. Test., RHEM.; strong delusion, AUTH. and remaining Vv. : see ver. 9. Though in both cases the introduction of the adjective 'effectual' before 'working' might be rendered suitable by the context, it is still, lexically considered, somewhat too strong as a purely literal rendering. It would thus seem perhaps better to strike out 'effectual' in Eph. iii. 7, iv. 16, or to retain it only in italics. These are however points which it is very difficult to adjust, for if the one translation is too strong, the other certainly seems somewhat too weak: 'energy,' which is adopted by some translators, is appy. too modern. The lie] A lie, AUTH.

12. That they may all of them] That they *all might, AUTH.; that alle, WICL.; that all they myght, TYND., COV., CRAN.; GEN., BISH.; that all

But we are bound to give thanks to God alway for 13 you, brethren beloved of the Lord, that God chose you from the beginning unto salvation in sanctification of the Spirit and faith in the truth: whereunto He called you 14 by our Gospel, unto the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ. Accordingly then, brethren, stand 15 fast, and hold the traditions which ye were taught whether by word or by our epistle. But may our Lord Jesus 16 Christ Himself, and God our Father, which loved us, and gave us eternal comfort and good hope in grace, comfort 17 your hearts, and stablish you in every good work and word.

they maye, Cov. Test.; that al may, RHEM. The two slight changes are made to preserve the reading  $\ddot{a}\pi a r \tau \epsilon_s$ , and the correct sequence of tenses; comp. Latham, Engl. Lang. § 539 (ed. 4). Judged] So RHEM.: demyde (or dampnyde), WICL.; damned, AUTH. and remaining Vv.

Had pleasure in] On the transl. of εὐδοκεῖν, see note on I Thess. ii. 8 (Transl.).

13. To God alway] Alway to God, AUTH.: there is here no necessity for deserting the order of the original.

That] So WICL., COV. Test., RHEM.: because, AUTH.; for because that, TYND., CRAN.; bec. that, COV., GEN., BISH.

Chose you from the beginning] Hath from the beginning chosen you, AUTH. All Vv. except WICL. (chees) give hath chosen. In (1)] So WICL., Cov. (both), BISH., RHEM.: through, AUTH., TYND., CBAN., GEN. Faith in the truth] Feith of treuthe, WICL., GEN. (the f.), BISH. (the tr.), RHEM. (the tr.): belief of the truth, AUTH.

14. Our Lord] The Lord, AUTH.

15. Accordingly then] Therefore, AUTH. and the other Vv. except WICL., and so. Traditions] So AUTH., WICL. [tr. (or techyngis)], RHEM. The other Vv. vary; ordinaunces, TYND., Cov. (both), CRAN., BISH.; instructions, GEN.: see note on ch. iii. 6 (Transl.). Were taught] Have been taught, AUTH.: no Version preserves the correct force of the Aorist. By our] So WICL., COV. Test., GEN., BISH., RHEM.: our, AUTH.; by, TYNΓ., COV., CRAN., all expressing ημων with λόγου. 16. But may] Now, AUTH.

God our Father] God \*even our Father, AUTH.: see especially notes in loc.; and on the transl. of  $\dot{o} \Theta c\dot{o}s \ \kappa al \ \pi a \tau h \rho$  $\dot{\mu} \omega \nu$ , notes on Gal. i. 4 (Transl.). Loved] So WICL.: hath loved, AUTH. and remaining Vv. Gave] So WICL.; hath given, AUTH. and remaining Vv. [Cov. (both) however omit the second hath, see previous note]. Eternal] So RHEM.: everlasting, AUTH.

and remaining Vv.; see notes on ch. i. 9 (Transl.). Comfort] Consolation, AUTH. The change is only made to preserve the same rendering for  $\pi a \rho d\kappa \lambda \eta \sigma \iota \nu \dots \pi a \rho a \kappa a \lambda \ell \sigma a \iota$ , and indeed is given by AUTH. in 2 Cor. i. 3, 4. In grace] So WICL., Cov. Test., BISH., RHEM.: through gr., AUTH. and the four remaining Vv.

17. Stablish you] AUTH. retains you in ordinary type, but contrary to the best authorities; see notes.

Work and word] *Word and work, AUTH. III. Finally pray ye for us, brethren, that the word of the Lord may have free course and be glorified, even as it is 2 also with you: and that we may be delivered from perverse 3 and wicked men; for it is not all that have Faith. But faithful is the Lord, who shall stablish you and keep you 4 from the Wicked One. Yea we have confidence in the Lord touching you, that ye both do and will do the things 5 which we command. But may the Lord direct your hearts into the love of God and into the patience of Christ.

6 Now we command you, brethren, in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw yourselves from every brother walking disorderly, and not after the tradition

CHAPTER III. I. Pray ye for us, brethren] Brethren, pray for us, AUTH. Perhaps this changed order better represents the prominent position of  $\pi \rho o \sigma \epsilon i \chi \epsilon \sigma \theta \epsilon$ . Free course] In the earliest copies of AUTH. 'free' is marked as an insertion, but it may fairly be considered as involved in  $\tau \rho \epsilon \chi p$ .

Even as it is also] Even as it is, AUTH. The change gives a juster equivalent to καθώs καl. See however notes on 1 Thess. i. 5 (Transl.).

2. Perverse] Vncouenable (or noyous), WICL.; importune, Cov. Test.; importunate, RHEM.;-representing Vulg. importunis; disordered, BISH.; unreasonable, AUTH. and 4 remaining Vv.

It is not all, &c.] All. men have not faith, AUTH. and the other Vv. except WICL., feith is not of alle men; and Cov., faith is not every mās.

3. Faithful is the Lord] The Lord is faithful, AUTH. and the other  $\nabla v.$  (our L., RHEM.) except WIGL. (the l. is trewe). Independently of the change of order agreeing better with that of the original, the paronomasia caused by the juxtaposition of  $\pi \iota \sigma \tau \iota s$ and  $\pi \iota \sigma \tau \delta s$  is more distinctly preserved. The Wicked One] Evil, AUTH. and all  $\nabla v.$ ; see notes in loc. It is of no moment whether  $\pi o \nu \eta \rho o \hat{v}$ be translated 'evil' or 'wicked' but the rendering should be kept that is given in ver. 2.

4. Yea] And, AUTH., GEN., BISH., RHEM.; sothely, WICL.; the rest, TYND., COV. (both), CRAN., omit dé in translation. Command] Command *you, AUTH.

5. But may] Forsothe, WICL.; and, AUTH. and the other Vv. except Cov., which omits  $\delta \dot{\epsilon}$  in translation.

Patience of Christ] So AUTH. Marg., WICL., TYND., COV. (both), RHEM.: patient waiting for Christ, AUTH., CRAN., BISH.; weating for of Christ, GEN.

6. The Lord] *Our Lord, AUTH.

Walking] So RHEM.; sim. WICL. (wandrynge): AUTH. (that walketh) and remaining Vv. insert the relative. Though the meaning is practically the same, it still seems desirable in translation, when consistent with our idiom, to mark the anarthrous participle.

Tradition] So AUTH., WICL., RHEM.: institucion, TYND., COV., CRAN., BISH.; ordinaunce, COV. Test.; instruction, GEN. If any change be thought necessary, the last of these translations is perhaps to be preferred.

which they received of us. For yourselves know how ye 7 ought to follow us; in that we behaved not disorderly among you, neither ate we bread from any man for 8 naught, but with toil and travail, working night and day that we might not be burdensome to any of you: not that 9 we have not power, but to make ourselves an ensample to you that ye should follow us. For also when we were 10 with you, this we commanded you, that if any will not work, neither let him eat. For we hear that there are 11 some walking among you disorderly, working at no business, but being busy-bodies. Now them that are such we 12 command and exhort in the Lord Jesus Christ that with quietness they work, and eat their own bread. But ye, 13

They received] *He received, AUTH.

7. In that] For, AUTH. and all VV.; Bee notes in loc. Behaved not] Behaved not ourselves, AUTH., TYND., COV., CRAN., GEN., BISH.

8. Ate we bread from any man ] Did we eat any mans bread, AUTH. It seems desirable here, with all Vv. except WICL., to invert the order of the Greek, that  $\delta \omega \rho \epsilon \partial \nu$  which occupies the emphatic place in Greek may occupy the same place in the English,-that place being not uncommonly in our language the last. But with toil ... working] But wrought with labour, AUTH .: the present transl. preserves the true connection, and avoids the incorrect rendering of epyajouevou by the finite verb. That we...any] Similarly, lest vve should burden any, RHEM. : that we might not be chargeable to any, AUTH.; lest we shulde be c. to eny, Cov. (both); because we wolde not be c. to eny, CRAN., GEN., BISH.; that we greueden none, WICL.; because we wolde not be grevous to eny. TYND.

9. Not that] Not because, AUTH.; not as, WICL.; not as though, Cov. Test., RHEM. That ye should] For to, WICL., RHEM.; to, AUTH. and remaining Vv.

10. For also] So COV. Test., RHEM.: for even, AUTH., GEN.; and, COV.; for, TYND., CRAN., BISH., omitting kal in translation. Will not] So WICL. (wole not), RHEM.: would not, AUTH. and remaining Vv. Neither let him] So RHEM.; and sim. (nether ete he) WICL.: neither should he eat, AUTH.; that the same shuld not eate, TYND., and COV. (both), CRAN., BISH.,—these four omitting that; that he shulde not eat, GEN.

11. Walking] Which walk, AUTH. No Version gives a participial rendering: see notes on ver. 6.

Working at no business] Working not at all, AUTH. This is perhaps the only way in which the paronomasia  $\epsilon\rho\gamma a \zeta o \mu \epsilon \nu o s \ldots \pi \epsilon \rho \iota \epsilon \rho \gamma a \zeta o \mu \epsilon \nu o s can be$ maintained. The word 'business' issupplied by AUTH. in 1 Thess. iv. 11.

Being busybodies] So CRAN.: are busybodies, AUTH., TYND., COV. (both), GEN., BISH. (be b.); doinge curiously, WICL.; curiously meddling, RHEM.

12. In the Lord] *By our Lord, AUTH. 14 brethren, lose not heart in well doing. But if any man obey not our word by the epistle, mark this man, and keep no company with him, that he may be shamed.

15 And count him not as an enemy, but admonish him as 16 a brother. But may the Lord of peace Himself give you peace continually, in every way. The Lord be with you all.

17 The salutation by the hand of me Paul, which is a

13. Lose not heart] Be not* weary, AUTH.

14. But if ] So Cov.: and if, AUTH., RHEM. If 'but' be objected to in consequence of the 'but' in ver. 13, it would then seem better with TYND., COV. Test., CRAN., GEN., BISH., to omit de in translation.

Obey not] So AUTH. and the other Vv. except WICL., schal not obeye; and Cov. Test., doth not obey. At first sight the latter translation might seem preferable, but considered strictly, it would seem to imply that such would probably be the case (see Latham, Eng. Lang. § 537, ed. 4), whereas the Greek el with the indic. 'per se nihil significat præter conditionem' (Klotz, Devar. Vol. II. p. 455). It may thus be best as a general rule, only to adopt the indicative in English where either (a)the context or circumstances of the case corroborate the likelihood of the assumed case, or (b) where the speaker appears to regard it as a matter of fact. The possibility of inserting after 'if' the words 'as is matter of fact.' or 'as seems to be matter of fact,' will commonly facilitate decision.

The epistle] This Epistle, AUTH. All the other Vv. except WICL. (oure worde bi epistle) join  $\delta\iota\dot{a} \tau \eta s \,\epsilon \pi \iota \sigma \tau o \lambda \eta s$ with  $\sigma \eta \mu \epsilon \iota o \partial \sigma \theta \epsilon$ , and translate  $\tau \eta s$  by the English indefinite article. This perhaps, with I Thess. v. 27, might be considered as one of the few cases in which idiom and euphony may justify us in retaining the pronominal translation: as however τοῦτον occurs directly after, it would involve the necessity of translating it that man, as AUTH., or hym, as WICL. and all other Vv. Scholefield (Hints, p. 118, ed. 4) proposes 'our epistle,' but this is scarcely suitable after the preceding 'our word' where the 'our' is a translation of  $\dot{\eta}\mu\hat{\omega}\nu$ , as it would seem to imply that it was repeated with did Mark] So WICL .: της έπιστολής. note, AUTH., GEN., RHEM.; sende vs worde of, TYND., COV., CRAN.; shewe vs of, Cov.
